1,500,000 MORE AMERICANS IN NEW CALL, MAKING 3,000,000 IN ALL; 40 WRECKED GERMAN DIVISIONS TAKEN OUT OF THE BATTLE; COUNT CZERNIN MAKES ANOTHER REPLY TO THE PRESIDENT

ARMY PLANS ENLARGED

Officials Moving to Supply Needed Man Power to Allies.

NEW TONNAGE OBTAINED

President Is Resolved That Reinforcements Shall Be Poured Into France.

CAMPS TO BE KEPT FULL

Men to be Sent to Them for Training as Fast as Quarters Are Ready.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—President Wilson's decision to place all the military resources of the nation, including its deep reservoirs of man-power, at the disposal of General Foch and the Entente Allies for use when needed in the campaign against Germany, is being followed by definite plans for putting more men in France at the earliest possible moment.

Not only is it the purpose of the President, as Commander in Chief of the Army, to rush all troops in training over to Europe as rapidly as it can be done constantly with the safety of the great movement of men involved, but it is the plan to hurry along the second draft and increase the size of the second call to the colors. Several weeks ago it was announced that the basic number for the second call would be approximately 800,000 men. It is understood that plans have now been made for nearly doubling the number of men to be drafted during the next twelve months.

The statement was made today that during the perinod the number of men to be drafted will probably be much nearer 1,500,000, bringing up to more than 3,000,000 the total number of men put into military training by the Government, including the regulars, National Guard, and national army units.

A report was current late this afternoon that General Crowder, the Provost Marshal General, had been called upon to supply a much larger number of drafted men in April than had been expected prior to this time. When General Crowder was asked whether the quota for the second call had been increased beyond 800,000 and he had been called upon to furnish more this month than had been contemplated, he said that he had received no new orders, and that any information regarding draft plans would have to come from the War Department or from Major Gen. March, the Acting Chief of Staff.

The aggregate strength of the American forces now abroad and at home, on active duty and in training camps, is between 1,500,000 and 1,600,000 men. This includes regulars stationed in the Philippines, Hawaii and Panama and at Continental posts. It also embraces all branches of the service, combatant and noncombatant.

Those in the insular possessions will have to be held there, and a certain proportion of the total men available will have to be retained in this country, but the great bulk of the grand total now under arms will be sent to Europe as rapidly as possible. Steps have been taken to obtain the necessary tonnage for their transportation. The steamers seized from Holland and vessels to be obtained from France will be of considerable help in the present situation.

Hastening Method of Movement.

Originally it was the intention to send troops abroad by divisions after each division had completed its training and to forward replacement troops from time to time. There are a number of divisions now fully trained in the National Guard army and some of the draft army divisions are regarded as sufficiently trained for use in the fighting front.

The London official announcement that as a result of communications and conferences among President Wilson, Secretary Baker, Generals Bliss and Pershing, Lord Derby, and A. J. Balfour during the last few days, "large numbers of American battalions" will be sent to Europe during the "coming critical months" and "arrangements for the transportation of these additional forces are now being completed," is interpreted as meaning that the British Government will contribute tonnage to aid in hastening the movement of troops to Europe. There are some regiments that cannot be used immediately in the formation of American divisions, and these, under the arrangement, are to be brigaded with British and French units as long as the necessity lasts.

Under the decisions reached in the last week American troops are moving to the main battle front, and have been for the last four days. Other American units are being put in front line trenches along parts of the line not involved in the present main battle, releasing

Torpedoed Liner Celtic Is Now Safe in Port

The White Star Liner Celtic, which was reported on Monday as having been torpedoed by a German submarine while off the Irish Coast, has reached port in safety. Word of her arrival was received yesterday at the office of her owners here. The cable came to the office, 9 Broadway, in the late afternoon and simply announced:

"Celtic has safely reached port."

It was explained that no further information would be given out regarding the arrival of the vessel. The message is taken to mean that the Celtic has reached her port of departure or some other British port and that one of the largest transports in the allied service is still available.

While lacking knowledge of the extent of the damage suffered by the Celtic, the officers of the White Star Line here believe that she will soon be in commission again.

LENROOT LEADING IN WISCONSIN RACE

BERGER IS FAR BEHIND

Socialist and Peace Candidate, However, Has Probably Received 80,000 Votes in State.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wednesday, April 3.—After the most hotly contested Senatorial fight in the history of the Badger State, Republican leaders early this morning were claiming the election of Representative Irvine L. Lenroot as successor to the late Paul O. Husting in the United States Senate by a plurality of 10,000 or more.

The figures from forty-three of the seventy-one counties, including 100 precincts out of 183 in Milwaukee County, were:

Irvine L. Lenroot, Republican, 69,522.
Victor L. Berger, Socialist, 44,623.

Late returns increased the lead of Lenroot, Republican candidate. The figures for fifty-six counties were: Lenroot, 92,677; Davies, 82,775, and Berger, 55,006. Lenroot's lead was then 9,902 and his plurality, it was figured, would probably exceed 10,000.

The showing made by Lenroot in the early returns from districts outside of Milwaukee was very disappointing to the Republican managers, who said the territory heard from included districts along the shore of Lake Michigan which in ordinary years were Democratic.

Berger cut heavily into the Democratic strength in these localities, while in some of the La Follette strongholds in the northern and western parts of the State a large part of the vote cast for La Follette's man, Thompson, in the primaries, and which the Lenroot managers had counted upon, evidently went to the Socialist candidate.

The increase in the Socialist vote, beyond question a peace vote, was a feature of the election. In the pro-German counties Berger ran strongly. Politicians here are staggered by the vote which Berger received after conducting a campaign of such bitterness against the Administration in Washington and such frank appeals to the pacifist and disloyal elements.

Indications are that, with complete returns in, the Berger vote will aggregate 80,000. The previous high record for a Socialist candidate in Wisconsin was 32,000 polled in the Senatorial contest two years ago. He ran very strong in counties with a large German population. In the little town of Middleton, near Madison, inhabited almost exclusively by Germans who in other years have voted the Democratic ticket, Berger received more votes than Lenroot and Davies together. The returns were: Lenroot, 43; Davies, 39; Berger, 102.

The effect of the hard fight the Democrats had made in Republican strongholds up-State showed in returns from these localities late in the evening. Complete returns from 31 out of 70 counties outside of Milwaukee gave Lenroot 32,998; Davies 30,943, and Berger 15,500, a lead for Lenroot of 2,055.

In the City of Milwaukee returns received up to midnight from 75 out of 142 precincts gave Davies 11,807; Lenroot, 7,287, and Berger 12,460. If the same proportion was kept up in the remaining precincts, the plurality of Davies over Lenroot in the City of Milwaukee would be about 9,000.

The early returns for the Mayoralty election in this city gave the Socialist leaders ground for an optimism that the later returns did not sustain. Returns from 103 precincts out of 142 in the city indicate the re-election of Daniel W. Hoan, the Socialist Mayor, by a majority of about 3,000 over Percy Bra-

VIENNA, April 2, (via The Hague.)—Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, made the following speech to a deputation of the Vienna City Council this morning:

"Gentlemen—I am quite ready to reply to the questions put by the Burgomaster and thereby to give both you and the wider public a full view of political conditions as I see them at the moment. I had hoped to speak before the competent forum, but the fact that one of our commissions cannot meet at present makes this impossible, so I take this opportunity of affording in brief a review of the international situation.

"With the signature of peace with Rumania the war in the East is ended. Three treaties of peace have been signed—with Petrograd, Ukraine, and Rumania. One principal section of the war is thus ended.

Doubts Attempt to Split Teutons.

"Before discussing the separate peaces which have been signed and going into details, I wish to return to the statements of the President of the United States wherein he replied to the speech I made before the delegations on Jan. 24. In many parts of the world Mr. Wilson's speech was regarded as an attempt to drive a wedge between Vienna and Berlin. I do not believe that, because I have much too high an opinion of Mr. Wilson's statesmanship to suspect him of such a train of thought.

"According to my impressions, Mr. Wilson does not want to separate Vienna from Berlin. He does not desire that, and knows that it is impossible.

"He perhaps thinks, however, that Vienna presents more favorable soil for sowing the seeds of a general peace. He has perhaps said to himself that the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy has the good fortune to have a monarch who genuinely and honorably desires a general peace, but that this monarch will never be guilty of a breach of faith; that he will never make a shameful peace, and that behind this monarch stand 55,000,000 souls.

Hope in a "Great Idea."

"I imagine that Mr. Wilson says to himself that this closely knit mass of people represents a force which is not to be disregarded and that this honorable and firm will to peace with which the monarch is imbued and which binds him to the peoples of both States is capable of carrying a great idea in the service of which Mr. Wilson has also placed himself.

"Before I discuss Mr. Wilson's last utterances I would like to clear up one misunderstanding. In my last speech which I delivered before the Austrian delegations I replied to an inquiry in this connection that probably Mr. Wilson was already in possession of my utterances. Later Mr. Wilson corrected this, and pointed out that there must be some mistake. I had prepared my speech beforehand, so as to avoid any possibility of its being incorrectly or incompletely transmitted, and at the moment I

Our Airplane Mechanics Help British in Picardy

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 2, (Associated Press.)—A considerable number of American aviation mechanics are now co-operating with the British Royal Flying Corps on the battlefield in Picardy.

A certain number were within an airdrome west of Peronne when it was bombed heavily by the Germans.

The Americans are part of the forces trained in England.

HURLEY DEMANDS FASTER SHIP WORK

Telegraphs to All Yards Requiring Explanation of Low Output in March.

'SHIPS, NOT EXCUSES,' ASKED

Declares American People Will Put Blame Where It Belongs if There Is Any Failure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, sent a telegram today to the manager of every shipyard in the nation engaged on work for the Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation, in which he declared that production in March had proved a keen disappointment, and that neither builder, workman, nor Government agency should expect to escape public condemnation unless immediate and practical methods were employed to speed up.

"The American people," Mr. Hurley said, "want ships, not excuses," and he made it plain that in view of the imperative necessity of rushing troops, munitions, and foods to France, any who failed to do his utmost to build ships was a slacker. If the Shipping Board or Emergency Fleet Corporation was to any extent blameable for delay, he said, he wanted to know it, so that responsibility could be placed where it belonged and faults corrected.

The message sent out today was the result of investigations made and reports received after it became evident that the aMrch deliveries would fall at least 30,000 tons under the minimum estimate made by the Emergency Fleet Corporation upon data obtained from the shipyards. It was countersigned by Charles Piez as General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Admits Disappointment.

The telegram follows:

"We are keenly disappointed in the amount of tonnage delivered by American shipyards during month of March and the slow progress made in many yards. Only twenty-one steel vessels aggregating 166,700 tons were delivered during that month and our minimum estimate was for 197,075 tons. Instead of this reduction from our estimate we should have had an increase. This estimate was made on promises of shipbuilders. Thirty steel ships were launched with a total tonnage of 219,586. Eleven wooden ships were launched amounting to 40,000 tons.

"We are particularly anxious that you and your organization should put forth a special effort during the month of April. We are anxious that you should keep us fully informed concerning all causes of delay encountered in building ships during this month daily, by wire if necessary. We are concerned with the entire program, but we want April to break all records.

"Are the majority of your men doing a full day's work? Are you working overtime? Are you running a night shift, or planning to do so? It is imperative that every power that can be taken advantage of be used. We want your reply promptly to this telegram, stating frankly the facts. Money, material, and men have been supplied without stint by the nation. Keynote of present situation is management—leadership. Emergency Fleet Corporation looks to you for team work in applying leadership to speeding up of program. We will welcome any suggestions which you wish to make, and if, in your opinion, the fault lies with the Emergency Fleet Corporation don't hesitate to advise us. What tonnage do you expect to produce during April in the way of finished ships? How many keels will you lay? How many ships will you launch? Please don't over-estimate. We are anxious to get actual facts so that our war program may be carried out.

"We are holding you personally responsible for the successful management of your property. If you fail to maintain your schedule of production, which schedule the country is expecting you to meet and which we must have you meet in order to win this war, the country will charge you and us with not doing our part. Our country is holding every foreman and every workman in the shipyards, and especially every shipyard owner, stockholder, and manager, as well as every officer and employe of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, re-

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Tuesday, April 2.—The Allies' respite from massed attacks since the last battle of Arras does not mean that the enemy has abandoned his ambitious plans to drive a wedge between the British and French armies by making a breach in the lines between Amiens and Montdidier and straightening the line of his advance to avoid a dangerous salient by overwhelming our left flank north of Arras. It is probable that he is pausing only to drag his guns across the wild waste of the Somme battlefield, where there is slow progress; to bring new reserves of men into the battle line, and to prepare another blow as equal in fury to the first effort as his means now allow after his bloody losses and heavy engagements with the French armies on his left wing.

I doubt whether his next effort will reach anything like the strength of that battering ram which shocked the allied lines on March 21. For twelve days since then his wastage of man power has been incalculable, and every mile of his way is strewn with his dead—here and there a few men, here and there heaps of mortality.

Backward from those twelve days there has flowed a tide of mangled men, filling his hospitals and Red Cross trains. Forty at least of his assault divisions have had to be withdrawn from the allied front after casualties amounting, in some cases, as we know, certainly to 40 to 50 per cent. Many of his companies and battalions have been almost annihilated, only a score or so of men going back to tell the frightful tale to the people.

Foiled by Heroic Rearguards.

The heroic British rearguards foiled his plans and smashed his time table and broke the spearheads of his armies, so that they had to turn aside in a direction not belonging to the great strategical plan of the German high command. Arras is not his, Amiens is not his, the British armies are still intact in spite of all the losses of men and ground, and new French and British armies are at his throat, ready to rend him to death if he is for a moment at their mercy.

The enemy knows all this, but is playing for big stakes, and their gamblers are ready to throw in all their human counters in order to win or lose the last hazard. So they will not stop now, because if they stop, they have already lost, and they are waiting only to gather their forces for the final throw.

But this delay is the Allies' enormous gain. They, too, have had time to bring fresh men to replace those who fought until they were spent and who barred the way of the Germans' advance with their bodies and souls. The enemy now, in his next battle, will meet men who are not tired and whose resolution is as great as those who met the first onslaught.

Australians and New Zealanders have come into line—fresh, keen, uplifted by fierce enthusiasm, stirred by emotions which make these fellows very dangerous to their enemy. I saw them coming to the relief of the hard-pressed troops, and it was a sight which made one's pulse beat and gave one a sense of new security. When the full menace was upon the lines these Australians came swinging down toward the old Somme battlefields with the spirit of men going to the rescue of a great cause. It was their business along the line of the Somme, for did they not take Pozières, and is not that blasted slope hallowed for all of them by memorials of their own dead

One of Guns Bombarding Paris Blows Up, Killing Five; Three New Yorkers Slain in Church on Good Friday

PARIS, April 2.—One of the German long-range guns bombarding Paris has burst, according to prisoners captured on the French front. Five of the gun crew were killed.

This announcement was made officially tonight.

The eighth long-range bombardment of Paris began at 10:10 o'clock today, when a projectile exploded in the region of the city, wounding two women.

Further identifications show that three members of the Landon family of New York, who had been living in Paris, were killed on Good Friday, when a shell from the long-range German gun struck a church. They were Mrs. Mary G. Landon, wife of Edward H. Landon of New York, and his daughters, Mrs. Lucy Landon Speed, wife of Captain Ralph Speed of the British Army Service Corps, and Miss Ruth Landon.

Edward H. Landon, whose wife and two daughters were killed in Paris when a shell from a long-range German gun struck a church there on Good Friday, is a retired New York lawyer who has been in Paris most of the time since the war started. The family is prominent socially here and in Paris. Mrs. Landon was Miss Mary Grinnell, a niece of Levi P. Morton, former Vice President of the United States and once Governor of New York.

Members of the Landon family here have received a cablegram telling of the deaths of Mrs. Landon and Mrs. Speed and saying Miss Ruth Landon was missing.

CASUALTY LISTS PUT UNDER BAN

Baker Cables That All Information Must Come from Pershing Hereafter.

REASONS ARE NOT STATED

All Matters Concerning Troops Abroad to be Announced by Commander.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Secretary Baker has placed a ban on any information being made public in Washington, or in fact, in this country, officially dealing with the American Expeditionary Force in France.

Matters affecting the forces at home may be announced by the War Department, but nothing regarding the forces in the field in Europe, other than through General Pershing's headquarters in France. The new ban is being applied so literally that announcement was made by the War Department tonight that no more casualty lists would be issued until further notice.

A casualty list was given out today. General March, the acting Chief of Staff, and General McCain, the Adjutant General, interpreted the instructions from Secretary Baker to forbid the further publication of casualty lists and announced that no casualty list would be issued tomorrow.

The establishment of this new ban was disclosed when the following official announcement was issued:

The War Department has been notified by cable that the Secretary of War has prescribed the following rules for handling publicity of matters pertaining to troops and operations:

First—All matters pertaining to events, persons, policies, or operations abroad will only be officially given out from the headquarters, American Expeditionary Force in France.

Second—Similar matters affecting forces at home will be given out from the War Department.

The reason for this action on the part of Secretary Baker has not been disclosed.

Official Information Scanty.

Very little official information has been disclosed regarding the American forces abroad. The information given out has consisted mostly of routine statements listing the casualties day by day. These were first announced through the Committee on Public Information. As thus issued, the emergency addresses were given. This was not satisfactory to those identified with the expedition, and General Pershing recently cabled urging that the publication of emergency addresses of soldiers killed or wounded be discontinued.

Chairman Creel of the Committee on Public Information regarded the lists as useless if issued without addresses, and refused longer to handle them in his office. The War Department then began issuing the casualty lists through the office of the Adjutant General, giving in each case only the name, rank, and how the casualty occurred, addresses being withheld.

Until the American forces reached the verge of entering the great battle now in progress in France no announcements regarding the use of the expedition were made by the War Department. The battle has been in progress thirteen days, and all that has been given out about it have been paraphrases of a few dispatches from General Pershing, giving information that had already been published in the cable dispatches from abroad to American newspapers. There have been weekly war statements issued by the War Department, but these did not disclose as AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE IN FRANCE, April 1.—Early this morning the Germans directed a heavy artillery fire against our lines. More than 4,000 shells were fired against our positions—more than half of them gas shells. Our artillery replied actively, and soon after daylight the bombardment of our positions ceased.

It has been raining most of the day. In indescribable mud the American troops were moved successfully, all in the best spirits despite the lack of information as to where they were going, all hoping to be chosen to take part in the big battle. There passed strings of American artillery, supply trains, and infantry covered with mud, but the men were smiling, and all anxious for the latest news from home. At noon there passed two companies of light artillery. They halted for "chow"—a luncheon of bean soup and bread served from a big "goulash cannon." The men exhibited their beloved French "seventy-fives," which all of them praised. One had written on its side, "Fighting," but another bore the less martial name "Gaby," and so on. The men called them the finest guns in the world. All afternoon there passed lines of Americans and the well-known army mule doing its bit in the mud of Sunny France.

The men uncovered as they passed the graves of the French who fell in 1915. Flowers were growing on the graves, showing the tender recent care which the French have not failed to bestow also on American graves.

The shifting of soldiers brought to light many interesting stories of war experience. One night Americans who had been raiding brought in a German officer. He was taken before the commanding American officer, only to find that both had worked in the same office in an Eastern American city. The German came to Europe in 1914, and had been in the war ever since. On another day a German was brought in speaking perfect English. He said he had been a bartender in Brooklyn before the war, adding:

"I wish to God I could get back. It's God's country. The war can't end too soon for me. I have had enough of Kaiser Bill forever."

Corporal Beaten to Death.

A different sort of story was one that told of a recent night when four Americans met a patrol of boches in No Man's Land. The Americans sailed in, killed three Germans, and put the rest to flight. But the American Corporal was captured. He was putting up a fight on the way back to the German trenches the last seen of him. The next day his body was seen lying near the boche trench. That night a party brought him in. A slicker was tied about the head. When unwrapped, the head was nothing but pulp, smashed by German rifle butts. The commanding Lieutenant said:

"I had had an idea of civilized warfare, but that sight converted me. The next day I had a chance to snipe a German, and I did it with joy in my heart."

NO CHANGE, BERLIN REPORTS

But Tells of Heavy British Losses Near Hebuterne, and Between Avre and Luce.

LONDON, April 2.—Relative quiet prevailed on the British front today except for successful minor operations near Serre, (north of Albert,) which resulted in the capture of a German post.

Yesterday, in the sector between the Avre and Luce Rivers, the British took fifty prisoners and thirteen machine guns, and in the neighborhood of Hebuterne, north of Serre, they captured seventy-three prisoners and three machine guns, besides killing many Germans.

The report from Field Marshal Haig's headquarters in France tonight says:

Except for minor enterprises which we carried out in the neighborhood of Serre and as a result of which we captured a German post, the day passed more quietly on the whole battle front.

The War Office in its announcement this evening says:

The day passed quietly on the British front. There was no serious fighting on the French front.

Following is the text of the day official statement:

In the course of the fighting yesterday in the area between the Avre and the Luce Rivers we captured fifty prisoners and thirteen machine guns. A large number of German dead were found on the ground in this locality by us, and two counter-attacks attempted by the enemy later in the day were broken up, with heavy loss, by our artillery. A German battery in action in this area was successfully engaged at short range and silenced by our machine guns.

A successful local enterprise carried out by us in the neighborhood of Hebuterne resulted in the capture of seventy-three prisoners and three machine guns. Many Germans were killed in this operation, also, and a hostile counterattack during the afternoon was completely repulsed.

On the remainder of the front successful raids, in which we secured several prisoners and killed a number of the enemy, were carried out in the neighborhood of Acheville and Hollebeke.

Still Moving Toward Amiens Zone.

LONDON, April 2.—The general situation at the moment as described by Repter's correspondent at British Headquarters is that the main movement of fresh enemy troops and others that are moderately fresh continues to be toward the zone between the Somme and Montdidier.

North of the Somme the British have succeeded in stabilizing the line, at any rate for the time being.

German Losses 25 to 70 Per Cent.

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, April 2, (Associated Press.)—The British stormed strongly held German positions in a wood along the Luce River yesterday. When the enemy withdrew after sharp fighting, he left the ground strewn with his dead.

The Germans shelled the wood heavily after it was occupied by the British, and organized two counterattacks for the purpose of retaking it. Both were caught in the British artillery barrage and broken.

The British yesterday improved their position by an attack south of Hangard, and later repulsed two German counterattacks which essayed to restore the situation.

South of Habuterne the British conducted a successful local attack and repulsed a counterassault.

According to prisoners, the 208th German Division since the beginning of the offensive has suffered losses of 70 per cent. The 20th Division lost 50 per cent. The 88th Division lost 30 per cent. the first day and 40 per cent. in an attack on Mezières March 29.

In the 1st Division the average strength of the companies was reduced to forty men by March 28. The Guard Ersatz Division suffered 25 per cent. loss between March 21 and 28.

The 5th Division had 50 per cent. casualties at Ham, and additional heavy losses in crossing the Somme. In an attack north of the Scarpe River one regiment of the 26th Division lost twenty-four officers.

There has been a considerable increase in the artillery fire against the British positions at Passchendaele and on the Goeberg ridge, in Belgium, northeast of Ypres. The correspondent says, however, that the Germans are committed so heavily to the present battle front that it is not easy to believe they will try an offensive elsewhere.

BERLIN SAYS BRITISH ATTACKS BROKE DOWN

Reports "Heavy Losses" Before German Positions Between the Luce and the Avre.

BERLIN, via London, April 2.—"There is nothing new to report," was the statement made by the War Office this evening concerning operations on the western front.

The day bulletin said that British counterattacks near Hebuterne and against the heights between the Avre and the Luce broke down with heavy losses. This report says:

The position on the battlefield is unchanged. Counterattacks made by the enemy near Hebuterne and with special stubbornness against the heights captured by us between the Luce and the Avre broke down with heavy losses. Minor infantry engagements took place between the Avre and the Oise.

The French have continued to shell Laon, and numbers of the inhabitants have fallen victims.

Reconnoitring engagements occurred on the eastern bank of the Meuse near Haudiomont and southeast of Thann (Alsace). Some prisoners were brought in.

Twenty-two enemy airplanes and five captive balloons were brought down. Lieutenant Kroll won his twenty-third aerial victory. By the energetic carrying out of long-distance observation from the coast as far as south of the Somme aerial detachment No. 3, under Lieutenant Friecke, rendered extraordinary service

French Guns Rake German Concentrations East of Cantigny.

PARIS, April 2.—Spirited artillery fighting, particularly in the region between Montdidier and Lassigny, was the principal feature of today's operations on the French front opposing the German offensive, according to tonight's official report, which also announces the shelling of enemy concentrations east of Cantigny, (northwest of Montdidier,) and the repulse of a strong reconnoitring force of Germans on the left bank of the Oise, southwest of La Fère.

The day communiqué records some gains by French and British troops last night between the Somme and Demuin.

Following is the night report:

The day was marked by quite spirited artillery fighting, particularly between Montdidier and Lassigny. Our batteries caught under their fire enemy concentrations east of Cantigny. A strong German reconnoissance, attacked by our troops on the left bank of the Oise, southwest of Servais, was repulsed.

London Estimates Those of the Germans, However, at 250,000 to 300,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 2.—The storm of the ten days' battle on the western front has been succeeded today by a complete lull, and Field Marshal Haig's midday report, dealing with small raids and the capture of little groups of prisoners, reads strangely after tales of awful carnage.

Competent authorities here, however, believe that the lull is merely temporary. They say that the Central Powers are in no position to settle down again to a waiting game lasting perhaps for months. Austria, in particular, urgently needs a quick decision and must either attack or be attacked by Italy within a month. The Germans, it is suggested, are merely pausing to reorganize and are now so deeply committed on the present battlefield that they must renew their efforts there. It would be much easier for them to start a fresh attack on either the right or left of their positions than to try an entirely new offensive against Verdun or Ypres.

Their losses in the last ten days are believed to be so enormous that even Hindenburg must begin to feel the need of economy. It is reckoned that he had 192 divisions on the west front in all, and that of them he sent 100 into the attack. Of these between forty and fifty were so badly mauled that they were withdrawn to refit. As the Germans generally relieve a division after it has suffered 5,000 casualties, it is held that the total German losses may be estimated conservatively at from 250,000 to 300,000.

Concerning the allied losses no estimate has been given out. It is admitted that in the first onslaught, when the men in the first line of outposts were holding the enemy masses up and sacrificing themselves deliberately, many units suffered heavily, but since then the action has been fought in such a way as to minimize the casualties greatly. An exact count has been kept, and THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is informed from a competent source that the allied losses are quite amazingly low "when all things are considered."

France Decorates President of Cuba.

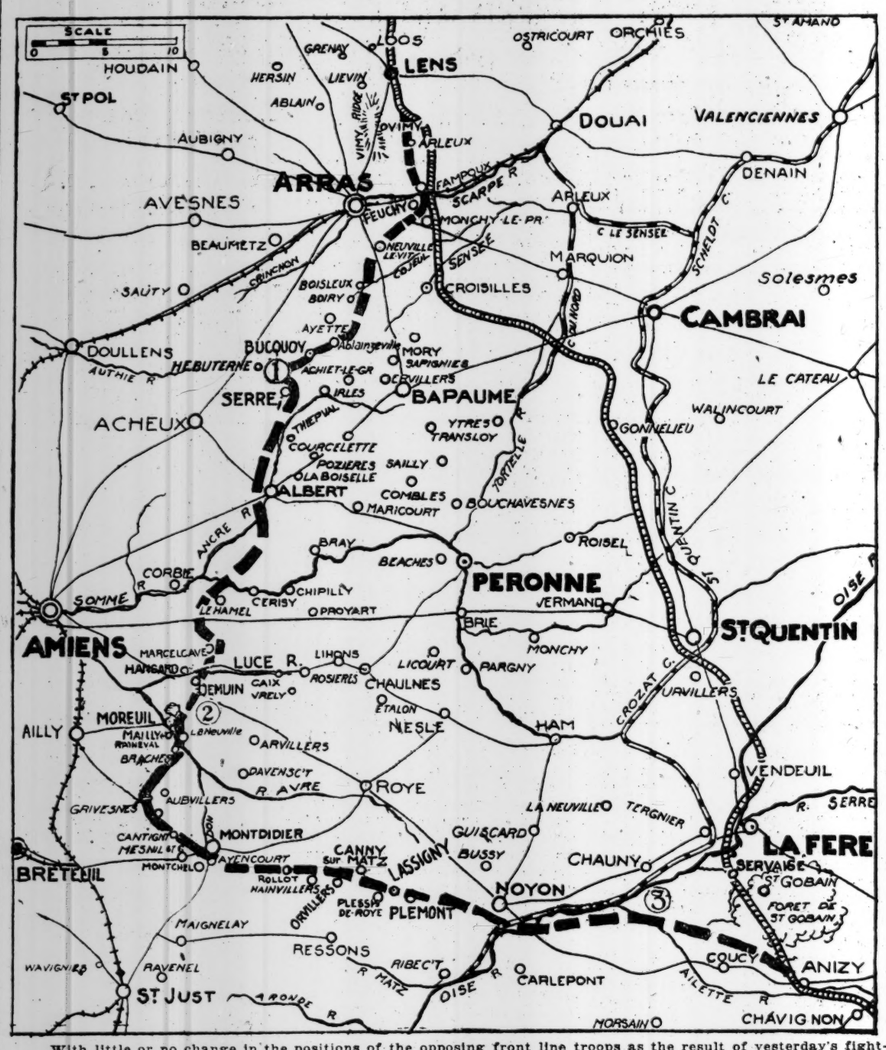
HAVANA, April 2.—The Cuban Government was notified today that the Cross of the French Legion of Honor had been conferred on President Menocal.

Where the German Offensive Halts



With little or no change in the positions of the opposing front line troops as the result of yesterday's fighting, the points of the greatest activity recorded in official communications were in the neighborhood of (1) Hebuterne, where Field Marshal Haig reports local successes, and the Germans the breakdown of British attacks; between (2) the Luce and the Avre Rivers, where there have been some conflicts, with diverse claims as to the result, and (3) on the left bank of the Oise, southwest of Servaise, where the French repulsed a strong German reconnoitring party. The region between Montdidier and Lassigny has been the scene of spirited artillery engagements.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The fighting in Picardy has died down completely for the time being. The net result to the Germans has been a very material gain in territory, but a gain achieved at a very great price. Just how great was the price paid we shall probably not know. But we do know that it was inevitable that relatively it was much greater than the losses of the defense.

In the one battle for Arras alone, which was a total repulse, the Germans suffered losses several times those of the British. And it is to the relative loss that we must turn for a basis of judgment rather than the actual numbers.

Regardless of this last attack, which restored to a certain extent, and for a limited time, the war of movement, the war is still a war of attrition and so it must remain. For us it is the German Army which must be destroyed or dispersed. This is the only way we can secure a military victory commensurate with our aims. And this army can be eliminated from the conflict only through attrition. The attrition has gone forward these last ten days at a terrific rate and will so continue, at least for some time to come.

As far as the battle has gone, and it must be understood that it is not yet over, it has been a German defeat. This judgment is reached by comparing the German object in the attack with the results achieved. This object was not to drive the British back to the Somme; it was not to control the water courses of the Avre and the Oise; it was not to gain a certain amount of territory over which they could exercise their brutal sway. It was to split the French and the British armies along the Oise; to drive to the channel and thus separate these two necessary forces by an impassable barrier, and then to destroy them separately, concentrating against first one wing and then the other.

If the Germans could reach the sea through Amiens and cut off the army of the north from that of the south, severing all connection and all means of communication between them, the rest would be relatively easy. The defeat of the Allies could then be accomplished even though an actual rift in the line were not made by the advance along the Oise or the Somme until this point was reached.

None of this have the Germans accomplished. The Allies line is still intact; the Germans have not only been slowed up, but have been stopped short; they have been forced to suspend their operations until they can bring up more men to feed into the maw and more artillery to support them, and until they can reconstruct the supply lines over which their men and guns can be fed. Their gains have been made at a price relatively much greater than that of their opponents. They have therefore failed in their self-allotted task.

The next attack is now in process of forming. We may be certain that the Germans have sacrificed men by the thousands and tens of thousands. They still have them by the tens of thousands. They will use them unsparingly in their effort to conquer. They have gone too far to stop, and, in fact, their own press has condemned them to failure if in their final effort they have not reached their goal. They must go and live or die by the result of the battle they themselves have initiated on ground selected by them.

It is true that there is no exact basis of comparison between the present situation and any which has heretofore existed. There have never been so many men involved, there has never been an attack the front of which extended over so much territory, there has never been such a wealth of artillery employed. But at the same time if we may judge of the situation from the other great battles which have been fought, the possibility of a German success has gone glimmering.

The battle of the Marne offers no basis of comparison whatever. There is not the slightest element in common with that mad rush in the open, with flanks exposed, hoping to crush France and England before a concentration could be effected. Then all of the battle was open. There was an opportunity for extreme generalship, for the application of the accepted principles of military strategy. These do not exist today so that the comparison is lost.

But there is a comparison with Verdun, with Russia, with Rumania, with Italy. In each of these cases there came a positive definite lapse in the fighting, a period of quiet during which Germany was preparing another blow. In each of these cases the blow was delivered, but proved a complete failure.

One of the primary reasons for this failure is that in spite of the development of trench warfare, the element of surprise is still an essential in every successful move. There is no surprise when the enemy attacks at a point which for several weeks he has been constantly hammering.

Germany must attack, when she strikes again, at some point on the present front between Arras and the Montdidier salient. Where this point is no one can say. But to attempt to strike elsewhere would be to pass up whatever advantage has accrued to her through the operations of the last ten days, to acknowledge defeat on this front, and because of the intrenchments which must follow a prolonged period of quiet on the Picardy field, to make the probability of ultimately reaping benefit from her costly advance to the Somme extremely small. Since it is necessary for Germany thus to acknowledge defeat or to fight again, she will fight, but in doing so will fight with the advantage against her. The Allies know where the attack is coming, they have effected their concentrations to meet it, and they have prepared their defenses. There can therefore be no such rush as marked the retreat from Cambrai. Rather succeeding operations will take on the tinge of the Verdun fighting.

Washington Discusses Plans for Merging Our Troops with Allied Units.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 2.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent cabled last week, while the arrangements were in making, how high was the appreciation felt here for the immediate steps which were taken by the United States in view of recent developments. The announcement made in today's papers regarding the employment of American troops in France has created in the public mind as deep an impression as had previously been obtained in better informed quarters from knowledge of the American Government's unhesitating determination.

The public announcement was most useful in that it has offset a certain tendency to regard the American contribution to the work of war with some misgiving, which set in largely as a consequence of the somewhat dolorous messages which had come from New York and Washington descriptive of American dissatisfaction at certain aspects of the war preparations. Colonel Roosevelt's statement about showing the Germans that Americans could shoot as well as shout was a particularly unfortunate instance of indiscriminate exportation of domestic criticism.

Among those people who were well informed about America's effort I can testify that there has been no lack of appreciation and of the fullest sympathy. This morning's announcement has had a useful effect upon common public opinion. In both the morning and evening papers there is a volume of appreciation of America's decision.

The Daily Chronicle says:

"There can be no doubt that this is the quickest and most practical method of initiating them in the actual fighting and that it will bring far more immediate help to ourselves and the French than could be brought in any other way. It speaks volumes for the practical vision and unswerving sense of realities which characterize President Wilson and his Government.

"The fine spirit shown by the United States throughout this crisis has been a source of the utmost encouragement and moral support to her allies in Europe. Nowhere has the lesson of Brest-Litovsk been more clearly read than in America. Nowhere now is the absolute need for defeating Imperial Germany more distinctly realized.

"Ranged solidly behind their President, the American people are straining all their gigantic strength to achieve the common end. No stone is being left unturned by them to fulfill the double task of feeding the Allies and reinforcing the combatant front."

The Times says that the decision of the United States to brigade American battalions with French and British units is both generous and wise.

"It is generous," says The Times, "because th enatural aspiration of our great American ally is to see its rapidly-growing army operating in the field as one cohesive whole. This distribution of a portion of its units, even though expedient, will be only temporary. It implies a spirit of chivalrous sacrifice in the face of stern necessity. It is wise because the needs of the Allies in France are urgent, and because it has become imperative that the training of the American units should be accelerated."

The Daily Telegraph says:

"The part played by President Wilson in the deliberations which ended in this historic decision is emphasized in a statement from our Press Bureau, and it will not be forgotten by those peoples of Europe which already owe so much to his strong and resourceful statesmanship."

The Daily Express remarks that the new plan proves that America is in the war for victory and is additional evidence of President Wilson's idealistic statesmanship.

The Star says:

"In plain English, the Americans will be available as drafts to fill up the gaps in French and British units. They will not be held in reserve until the American Army reaches its maturity. In a true spirit of soldiership and comradeship they will march to the sound of the guns, and will merge their national pride in the common stock of courage for the common good.

"It is a chivalrous decision, and President Wilson, Mr. Baker, General Pershing, and General Bliss have done a very great thing in a very great way. The British people and French people are moved by this splendid proof of American fellowship in the fight for the freedom of the world.

"The natural desire of the American soldiers would be to fight as an American army under the Stars and Stripes, and it is no light matter for them to be blended for a moment with the French and British armies, but let us assure them that they will not lose their ration of glory upon the day when we have made liberty secure and peace inviolable. This act of self-sacrifice will be remembered and the French and British soldiers will tell how they fought shoulder to shoulder with their American comrades."

Philip Gibbs's Narrative of the Great Battle and by the graves of many comrades? "We will take Pozières back," they said. "It is our job."

Impatient to Repeat Old Victories.

To those who fought there under months of furious fire which broke the earth to fine powder, who went up from Le Sars and into Bapaume on that famous day a year ago, the news that the enemy had come pouring back over that ground was a shock and a challenge. They waited impatiently for the call to come to their lines elsewhere. Every hour their impatience grew.

"When are we going down? It's a darned shame we are not on our way."

At last the call came, and down the roads the Australians came marching along with their easy, slouching step and with their guns and transport and cookers. It was like men coming back after foreign travels to their old home threatened by invasion. In all the villages behind the Somme battlefields they were known at sight of their slouch hats and their long, clean-shaved mugs. The villagers came out shouting and cheering. "Les Australiens! Vivent Australiens!"

Old women came running to them, plucking their loose sleeves and patting their brawny shoulders. Girls waved to them, cheering with shrill voices. And these fellows grinned and said: "That's all right. Don't you be afraid, kid. We will give 'em hell!"

On the transport wagons gypsy-looking fellows sat looking down on these scenes with their arms around their dogs. Australian gunners, hard as the steel of their 18-pounders, rode their mules through the market towns. They were eager to begin work. Long columns of Australian infantry marched day and night to get to the fighting lines, and when I looked down these lines of clean-cut, hatchet faces, the splendor of these men, the grim spirit of them, stirred me with a sense of historic drama.

The New Zealanders followed, spick and span, debonair lads, with a ribbon around their hats, and ruddier than the Australians—little country boys from English orchards. It was glory on the roads as they passed.

Things Happened When They Fought.

Very soon after they went into the battle line there were things doing. They sent out patrols and cleared No Man's Land of Germans. They caught the enemy in ambushes and raked him with bullets and brought in prisoners and machine guns. They slaughtered him in several small attacks, and drove him out of villages and woods, and scared him horribly by day and night.

Australians who came out since the Somme battles and who had heard endless stories of Pozières and Bapaume with envy because they were not in that epic of their brothers, scouted around and said: "Well, nobody can say now we haven't seen the Somme. And when are we going up to Pozières?"

"New Zealand boys have gone out on perilous adventures and rounded up many Germans. The day after the arrival of these forces I met several of their lads lightly wounded by machine gun bullets. "We were a bit rash," said one of them. "We put our heads into it." But where they were the enemy could get no further.

The English, Irish, and Scottish troops who bore the terrific shock of the German assaults on the first day of these battles and fought ten days back to the present lines deserve what rest they can now get, like Ulysses and his men after their long voyage.

It is impossible for me to narrate all I have heard and known about those rearguard fights, because the historic episodes are so crowded that one's pen cannot write them quick enough. On that great stretch of battlefields sixty miles long and twenty deep there were crowds of British, all fighting backward, with the enemy pressing them close and leaving lines of dead in their wake, and each British brigade, each battalion, has its own crowded history.

Among these men were Ulster soldiers, Inniskillings, Royal British Rifles, and others, and their history is typical of all that happened. The enemy broke through on their right flank on March 21 below St. Quentin, and in a fog so thick that the British machine gunners could not see fifty yards ahead streamed through in columns. The Inniskilling Fusiliers held on to their forward redoubts until almost surrounded, and then with other Ulster comrades fell back beyond the canal, blowing up the bridges and fighting desperately to defend the bridgeheads against incessant attacks.

Clerks and Servants Stop Gap.

The enemy struck in between these Ulster troops and battalions of Manchesters, Bedfords, Yorkshires, and Scottish fusiliers on their left, and it was necessary to draw back toward Ham. To fill up the gap, 200 men from headquarters—staff clerks, servants, and signalers—assembled, and with great gallantry held their ground. To pioneer battalions, among them young citizens of Belfast, rifles were given, and they became a fighting force which beat off heavy attacks.

The enemy was always trying to surround these Ulstermen, and once 200 Germans got behind divisional headquarters and were flung out after sharp fighting by staff officers and men. An officer sent through a message, saying: "I am writing this with one hand and firing a rifle with the other." After continual rearguard actions for five days the Ulster troops were supported by French battalions, but were still called upon to fight while the French relief was in progress.

During the last days of the withdrawal the staff officer of a division and an officer of the Royal Irish Rifles were captured in a motor car by a German cavalry patrol. German officers took them prisoners, but left the car later.

Another German patrol captured an Ulster ambulance driver, but on the way met a French patrol advancing in the darkness of the night. The ambulance man shouted out "English prisoner!" and when the French soldiers fired some shots the Germans took to flight.

An Irish ambulance driver went back, salved a derelict motor car, which is punctured with bullet holes, and brought it back safely. Afterward this gallant man spent all that night rescuing wounded.

This is but an outline of a narrative full of strange and thrilling episodes in which the men of Ulster fought as heroes. So did many other brave men in those days of crisis a week ago.

Last Stand by Manchesters.

Nothing is nobler, or more tragic in its nobility, than the last stand of Manchesters in a redoubt called after their own name near St. Quentin. When the enemy was all around them they held on here serving their machine guns. By means of a buried cable they were able to get messages through for some time.

The last words came from the commanding officer about 3:20 in the afternoon, when he was slightly wounded. He spoke clamly, even cheerily, but said they could not hold out much longer as practically every man was hit, and the Germans were swarming around. "The Manchesters will defend this redoubt to the last moment," said this gallant officer. Those were his last words, and the redoubt was overwhelmed.

Scottish Fusiliers, Bedfords, Yorkshires, King's Liverpools, and South Lancashires, and pioneers fought an astounding number of rearguard actions and killed a great number of the enemy, who were like wolves about them.

A party of Scottish Fusiliers who failed to get an order to withdraw stayed on till the officer felt very lonely and discovered that the enemy was two miles to the rear of him. He led his men out and they marched down the road at night with Germans all around them. Twice they were challenged in the darkness, but no attack was made on them, and they reached their own lines safely after their extraordinary adventure.

Again and again, after reaching places where they hoped to rest awhile, these men were called upon to fight at once, and had to rush out of their billets to throw themselves across a road and bar the enemy's way. While near the village of Bouchoir, near the Roye road, they saw a column of German transports crossing this road, and turning down in the direction where they were in ambush.

The Scottish Fusiliers wanted to let this transport pass them so that they could bag the lot, but could not be restrained from firing too soon. They emptied German saddles at twenty yards and captured some wagons, a watercart, and a field cooker. The rest of the transport galloped away wildly and caused confusion in the German lines.

So at least these men were relieved and they staggered with fatigue and ack of sleep, like thousands of other men who had been fighting for a week or more across those same fields of war.

French Confidence Strong as Renewed Drive for Amiens Is Expected.

PREDICT FRONTAL ATTACK

Renault Returns from the Front Full of Optimism Over the Outlook.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 2.—"Certainly we must expect new and terrible convulsions on the part of the Germans, but it seems that since we have withstood the most terrible we are now in a position to annihilate those which will follow." is the conclusion of a war editorial in Pichon's newspaper this morning. The same note of confidence in expectation of a new drive runs throughout the press.

"The battle for Amiens is not yet ended," sums up the Petit Parisien's view, and Bidou in the Journal, amplifies the same idea by an analysis whose conclusion is that the Germans, having vainly attempted to encircle Amiens by advances in the direction of Doullens in the north and the village of Canty in the south, will now be compelled to make a frontal attack against the almost perpendicular line that protects Amiens from Moreuil to Albert. Bidou ends:

"This frontal rupture which the enemy is forced to attempt is a far more difficult and costly manoeuvre than the flank envelopments tried before."

Rene Renault, President of the Chamber of Deputies' Army Commission, who returned yesterday from a visit to the front with Premier Clemenceau, said:

"I brought from my trip to the French and British armies an impression of confidence, absolute, complete, and increasing every instant. The soldiers' morale is extraordinary and the leaders have an air of mastery, of trust in themselves and the means at their disposal, which inspires the utmost confidence."

According to the French press, reports have been received from the British front that the enemy is moving up further large forces, and Reinach states that there are indications that the Germans are also drawing troops from Champagne and Lorraine. That in the face of the expected new onslaught optimism here increases daily despite the Gothas and the bombardment is the best proof that things are going well for the Allies.

READING THANKS WILSON.

Sends Message to President About Troop Acceleration.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Lord Reading, the British Ambassador, sent to President Wilson today a message of thanks in behalf of the British Government for "the instant and comprehensive measures" which the President took in response to the request that American troops be used to reinforce the allied armies in France.

An embassy statement announcing that the message had been sent through the State Department said:

"The knowledge that owing to the President's prompt co-operation the Allies will receive the strong reinforcements necessary during the next few months is most welcome to the British Government and people."

WAR ON BULGARIA AND TURKEY URGED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Senator King of Utah today offered a resolution in the Senate declaring war against Turkey and Bulgaria. Without debate it was referred to the Military Affairs Committee.

Mr. King explained afterward that he had offered the resolution because Turkish and Bulgarian troops were being used against American and allied forces, while America was at peace with those two countries. He felt, furthermore, that Turkey, because of its massacre of Armenians and other acts of barbarism in the war, was the natural enemy of the United States.

GERMANS RENEW ATTACKS

But Strong Assault Fails to Break Down the Spirited French Defense.

MONTDIDIER DRIVE HALTED

Fighting Since Friday Indicates a Definite Stemming of the Teuton Advance.

By G. H. PERRIS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Tuesday, April 2.—Grivesnes is one of the low, straggling villages of Santerre lying six miles northwest of Montdidier on one of the roads to Amiens, which is twenty miles beyond. Between the village and the mass of woods behind it there is the usual modest country house, dignified with the name of chateau. Just before noon Sunday perhaps the most famous of all bodies of German troops, the First Division of the Prussian Guard, debouched from the neighboring hamlet of Malpart and advanced upon Grivesnes.

They were received with heavy rifle and machine gun fire, but came on in wave after wave from the east, determind to carry this crossroads position. After an hour of murderous fusillades and charges repelled with cruel losses, the greycoats got into the village, and for two hours a hand-to-hand struggle continued in the dusty road and among the cottages. At 2:40 P. M. the allied command had the affair in hand and ordered a general advance which swept the Prussians from the place.

In the grounds of the chateau the First Grenadier Guards were dealt with faithfully by a French detachment and fled in disorder. In this as in other recent actions the French armored cars did excellent service.

Guards Fall in New Attack.

Unwilling to accept such a reverse, the guards returned to the attack at 7 o'clock this morning, when they suffered another defeat. This Germandivision was formerly commanded by Gen. von Hutier himself.

Further north, along the Avre and the Luce, there has been more severe fighting, without any considerable change in the front. At one or two points the enemy slightly advanced. On the other hand, the French have retaken the village of Hangard.

Today for the first time since the beginning of the offensive, the enemy has brought a considerable number of guns of middle and large calibres into play. Amiens is a dead city. The shops, factories, and houses are closed. Only the distant echo of cannon breaks the silence. The crowd has vanished.

Stemmed Tide at Montdidier.

Monday, April 1.—The battle of Montdidier, as we may provisionally call it, began on Friday with one of the greatest German onslaughts of the war, blazed on throughout Saturday and that night, and only partially slackened yesterday. It marks an abrupt and radical change in the fate of the adventure into which the Kaiser and his officers have thrown the main mass of their remaining forces. For eight days, save for the arrest on the Oise, their offensive swung forward triumphantly, though not quite up to the time table, and frightfully penalized.

On the ninth day a new chapter of the tragic story was opened. The Allies, their lines unbroken, were standing with clenched teeth on good positions and were hourly adding to their strength in men and guns. Amiens appeared to the enemy like a mirage on the western horizon, and the two Crown Princes may have reflected that there would be accounts to pay at home if this time, after sacrifices such as can only be paralleled in rare episodes of military history like the retreat from Moscow, they did not bring back a victorious peace.

A smashing blow at the Franco-British junction was then to be decisive. It was begun with means believed to be adequate to this aim and was directed westward on both sides of Montdidier toward the Beauvais-Amiens Railway, with a supporting thrust from the threatened flank west of Lassigny. I have described some passages in Friday's and Saturday's fighting in these two parts of the field.

Sunday's Fighting Favored Allies.

Yesterday there was on our part both loss and gain, the balance, so far as it can yet be struck, being favorable. In any case the Allies had made their first considerable and successful stand since the flood fell upon them. Another day of slaughter confirms this characterization of the positions and our hopes.

Saturday, as I have reported, the enemy reached the Avre at Moreuil, capturing this small town. Further south, toward Montdidier, which they already held, the Germans crossed the river, again suffering very heavy losses, but were arrested on the hills of the western bank. In the evening the struggle, despite the exhaustion of both sides, attained its fiercest intensity. Moreuil was recaptured on Saturday night by a mixed Canadian and French force, lost again during the night and once more carried by storm in the old-fashioned way yesterday morning. No Stosstruppen, (shock troops,) no expert grenadiers or flame pumpers this time. Mixed in the same ranks, the British Colonials in khaki and the French in light blue, went forward irresistibly with the bayonet.

"The Canadians," says one of my informants, "performed prodigies of valor, and when the boches fell back they had lost half their effectives.

Full of their success, our troops turned northward and would not be satisfied till they had been firmly set on the wooded heights near the town. Later in the day several violent enemy attacks were made south of the Somme, but they seem to have been of rather a local and scattered kind, as though, at least for the moment, fresh efforts of the dimensions of those of Friday and Saturday were impossible.

The British have made some progress in the Valley of the Luce, and two strong German attacks were repulsed between Marcelcave and the Somme, as were others in the British sphere on the north of the river. On the other hand, the British line was beaten back to the village of Hangard, on the north bank of the Luce, nearly opposite Demuin.

Meanwhile the French in a counter-attack, effectively supported by their famous three-inch guns, had retaken the villages of Ayencourt and Le Monchel, southwest of Montdidier, which had been lost on Saturday.

Last night the allied front ran from the Somme east of Hamel to west of Marcelcave, through Hangard and west of Demuin, around Mareuil and the woods north of it, across the Avre to the Village of Braches, southward to the edge of Malpart, west of Cantigny, east of Avencourt and Montchel, and so, having rounded Montdidier, turned cast at Rubescourt toward Lassigny.

In the last-named sector the only considerable combat that passed yesterday, so far as my news goes, resulted in an encouraging advance near Orvillers. From north of Rubescourt the front now runs to the southern border of Orvillers, turns north to include Biermont, Roye-sur-Matz station, and Canny-sur-Matz, runs south of Lissigny at Plessis de Roye and Plemont, and so eastward to a point south of the Oise at Pont l'Eveque, near Noyon.

Like the actions of the preceding days, this battle has been in the main a conflict of infantry. On neither side has it been possible to get heavy artillery in position in time, but on the allied side French and British guns, freshly detrained, gave support of moral as well as material importance. When the 75 has a target of masses advancing in close, deep waves, its effects are terrible beyond words. In the open country the air squadrons of the Allies have also worked havoc in the enemy's ranks, besides bursting tons of explosives on his camps and lines of communication.

French Troops Did Miracles.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 1, (Associated Press.)—The French performed remarkable feats in connection with the transport of troops when called upon to support their British allies in holding the southern part of the line in the first stage of the battle. One army corps came from a long distance to be thrown immediately into the fighting as the men debarked from motor lorries with their packs. This same corps has now been in the fighting lines ten days without relief and has requested permission to remain there, although it has borne a great part in barring the route toward Paris through the valley of the Oise.

Other French corps have entered the struggle since, but none has earned a greater amount of praise than this first reinforcement.

The reserves of the Allies are still virtually intact.

CONSTANTINE'S AGENTS EXECUTED IN GREECE

Lieutenants Landed by Submarine Planned to Arrange Spy System and Establish a Naval Base.

ATHENS, March 30.—Lieutenants Calamaras and Hodjopoulos, who came to Greece recently on a German submarine as agents of ex-King Constantine, were condemned to death by a court-martial, and the sentence was carried out today. Their lawyer, M. Conoupis, also received the death sentence.

The two officers, after receiving instructions at Zurich, Berlin, and Vienna, came to Greece in the submarine from Pola with a letter from Constantine and plans to arrange a system of espionage and to establish a naval base. Conoupis was intermediary in the matter. A sister of Lieutenant Calamaras was sentenced to life imprisonment and a peasant to fifteen years for harboring the officers.

A royal court-martial has been directed to prosecute Captain Paparrigopoulos, ex-aide de camp to King Constantine, who is said to have arranged for the visit of the Lieutenants, and Kolidyas Capchiefst, who also aided in their plans.

CAPTURE 700 TURKS.

British in Palestine Also Get Much Booty in Week's Fighting.

LONDON, April 2.—An official statement issued today at the War Office regarding British operations in Palestine says:

Seven hundred prisoners, four guns, several machine guns, and a number of motor lorries were captured east of the River Jordan between March 25 and April 1.

On March 30 raiding operations against the Hedjaz Railway having been successfully accomplished, our troops commenced a retirement toward Es-Salt.

The statement reads:

During March 30 our raiding operations east of the Jordan, directed against the Hedjas Railway, were successfully accomplished and our troops commenced their retirement toward Es-Salt. Several miles of the railway track with culverts and an important bridge were effectively demolished.

The enemy offered stubborn resistance in prepared positions in and about the village of Amman, in which direction our attack was not pressed, and a small Turkish force which attacked our rear guard April 1 was easily repulsed.

FIRE 4,000 SHELLS AGAINST OUR LINES

The Americans generally are in excellent shape, though not yet up to the standard of the magnificent French troops, whom they emulate and admire. The boche may despoil cities and ruin cathedrals, but when it comes to annihilating a truckload of American apple pies and doughnuts, it is a different proposition; despite the expenditure of many thousand dollars in ammunition.

Yesterday a truck loaded with 7,000 doughnuts and more than 100 apple pies started from a Salvation Army hut several miles back of the American lines to go and carry goodies to Uncle Sam's boys in the trenches. Halfway in view of the enemy the truck broke down. It was spotted by the boches while the driver and helper tried to repair it. After seventy shells had fallen for half an hour around it, the men had to flee. The bombardment of the pies and doughnuts kept up all afternoon.

Party to Rescue Pies.

At night the "Colonel" in charge of the Salvation Army took several men to rescue the truck. The boche spotted them, forcing a retreat before shells which fell for seven hours afterward. This morning a soldier on a motor cycle went past the truck at a clip of seventy-five miles an hour, reconnoitring for pies, and narrowly missing being hit. But he reported that, although shells had potted the road and fields nearby, the pies and doughnuts were safe.

In the afternoon the soldiers learned of the plight of the doughnuts and pies, and there was a rush of volunteers to go and get them tonight at all costs. Army officers gave consent to 100 men; and as this is being written the boys in brown are being picked to rescue the Salvation Army pies and doughnuts.

It is estimated that the Germans fired 400 shells at this truck of pies and doughnuts, evidently taking it for an ammunition truck. The boys swear they will get those pies tonight, boche shells or no boche shells.

HEAVY FIRING CONTINUES.

Americans Retaliate Effectively on Foe Northwest of Toul.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 2 (Associated Press).—Northwest of Toul the American troops have again been subjected to heavy bombardment on various parts of the sector. The American artillery retaliated effectively.

The usual patrols were out last night, but no clashes are reported. The weather prevents aerial activity.

STRICTER DISCIPLINE FOR OVERSEAS ARMY

General Order Issued, Designed to Raise Troops to Highest Possible Efficiency.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 2, (Associated Press.)—Stricter discipline, in order to bring the men to the highest possible state of efficiency, is to be required by the American commanders in France. The following general order has been issued to one of the American units which is to go to the battle front:

The character of the service this command is now about to undertake demands the enforcement of stricter discipline and the maintenance of higher standards of efficiency than any heretofore required.

In future the troops of this command will be held at all times to the strictest observance of that rigid discipline in camp and on the march which is essential to their maximum efficiency on the day of battle.

The order, which was read to all the men, was issued by the direction of the officer commanding, who explained that it was for the purpose of raising the troops to the highest possible state of efficiency.

Activity still continues throughout the zone.

SEE BAKER'S HAND IN UNITY.

Washington Officials Think That Was His Special Mission.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Many officials here were convinced tonight that Secretary Baker had been sent to Europe by President Wilson for the purpose of bringing about the amalgamation of forces that has been effected. In urging single command for the whole battlefrort in the west, it was regarded as certain that the American Secretary would not have gone empty-handed to the conferences.

The strength of the American Army actually in France was not sufficient to warrant more than a plea for new measures to meet the German onrush. With the whole man power of the United States made available to play its part in the ranks of the allied armies as well as in the purely American forces, it was argued that Mr. Baker could speak with compelling force. There are many who believe that he crossed the ocean authorized to make this great sacrifice of pride in national achievement upon the altar of world democracy.

Whatever may have been the original purpose of the Secretary's mission, the complete unification of German's three most powerful enemies, it is held here, has been accomplished. The effect it is believed will be seen shortly at the battle front.

GERMAN TENSION AT HIGHEST MARK

People Are Now Steeled For a Prolonged Struggle on the Western Front.

HOPED TO BREAK THROUGH

Surprised at Vigor of Allies' Resistance, But Determined to Fight On.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, April 2.—From a traveler just come from Germany I learn that the tension of public opinion in that country is "almost unbearable."

The people realize that they are faced with a task which will not quickly reach its end. The slowing down of the offensive has not affected the general public to any extent. It is regarded as an inevitable pause between two mighty efforts.

My informant could detect some disappointment here and there, especially among the upper business circles to which he has access, that the "break through," loudly heralded by the war correspondents on the last two occasions has not been effective. All those with whom he came in contact, especially in Rhineland industrial circles, gave him the impression that the people have steeled themselves for a tremendous struggle to be carried on until it is shown who can put, as one German expressed it, "an extra and deciding ounce into the last blow."

From another and very reliable source I hear that there prevails in the upper circles of the German army great surprise, not to say astonishment, at the tremenduos resistance which the German forces have encountered, but despite that and the extraordinarily high losses the offensive plans are to be sternly persevered in.

I also hear that a new German gas shell of which great things were expected has not nearly come up to anticipations.

The Munich Post refers to the gigantic sufferings and sacrifices which the fighting causes, and says that such can only be justified if they bring peace.

The Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung is quite pessimistic. It points out that the great battle is not yet over and "however great the German victory is so far and however brilliant it may yet be it can never achieve what the heroes of talk, safe behind the lines, expect of it. The war will of the French people may be broken and England and Italy may be made more inclined to a peace by understanding, but to make England and the United States powerless and to force them to lay down their arms and submit to the victors' terms cannot be achieved by any victory on land.

If Hindenburg's genius brings about a complete victory, England and America cannot be forced to capitulation. Even with peace by force, one frightful weapon remains against us. We cannot live long without wheat, cotton and copper from America, nickel from Canada, cotton from Egypt and India, phosphates from North Africa, rubber from the English colonies, Indian jute, etc. When England and America, after the war, do not deliver such things to us, then as victors we are vanquished."

U-BOAT SINKS ITALIAN SHIP.

The Alessandra Attacked Off Madeira—Crew Is Saved.

The Italian steamship Alessandra, of 2,432 tons gross register, has been sunk by a German submarine, off the Island of Madeira, according to advices received in marine circles here yesterday. The crew was landed last Saturday at Funchal.

The Alessandra was last reported leaving Gibraltar for New York.

RAID AUSTRIAN TRENCHES.

Italians Take Prisoners and Repel Attacks by Patrols.

ROME, April 2.—The War Office today issued the following bulletin:

Our patrols were active in the Tonale area and Inval Arsa, capturing a few prisoners. In Giudicaria and east of Ponte della Friula enemy parties were driven back by rifle fire.

Along the whole front there has been slight artillery activity. Bad weather has hindered aerial activity.

$200,000,000 FOR BRITAIN.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Credits to the Allies in the lest year were raised to more than $5,000,000,000 by a loan of $200,000,000 to Great Britain.

That nation's total credits from the United States now are $2,720,000,000 and all the Allies, $5,160,600,000.

LONDON IS LEARNING WHO HELD BACK FOE

Byng a Popular Hero Because of Army's Work—Gough of Fifth Army Dropped.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 2.—The English papers have now been permitted to give within limits information regarding the identity of commanders on the western front. General Sir Julian Byng is one of the heroes of the day, for in the great events of the last twelve days nothing has been finer than the stand made by the Third Army against the enemy's onset.

All the indications are that the main German offensive was launched against that part of the British line which was held by Gen. Byng's army. Nevertheless, von Below's hammer blows made practically no impression on this force. The Third Army did not give way for more than 100 yards under the weight of greatly superior numbers, and only retired in order to conform with the new dispositions rendered necessary by the great bend in the line on its right.

Every division in the Third Army fought gloriously against great odds. None fought better than the Fifty-first Division, composed of Highland Territorials, whose valor was gratefully and admiringly acknowledged by the King during his recent visit to the front.

General Sir Henry Rawlinson, who was the British representative on the Versailles War Council, has been appointed to the command of the Fourth Army, into which several divisions of the old Fifth Army that was aligned on the St. Quentin sector, have been absorbed.

General Gough, who was in command of the Fifth Army, is for the time being unemployed.

Remarkable incidents connected with the prolonged battle, are becoming known. One of the most dramatic was an audacious and successful effort of a scratch battalion in closing a gap in the British line.

Major General Sandoman Carey, seeing this gap suddenly open, at once improvised a force to close the breach. It was a miscellaneous body, composed of mechanics, aerial artificers, signalers, machine gunners, and men of the labor corps. For nearly six days this scratch force gallantly held its position on the left of the Fifth Army. The skill of its commander and the tenacity of the men composing it rendered invaluable service in a critical emergency.

GIRLS DIRECTED ARMY TRAFFIC

Red Cross Workers Helped Allied Movement at Roye.

PARIS, April 2.—Girls attached to one front line unit of the Red Cross made a fine record in the recent German offensive.

At Roye they took over the direction of military traffic. One girl in gray uniform standing at the four corners directed columns of guns, cavalry, supply wagons, and troops, thus preventing a terrific jam.

The unit had been located at Greycourt, a few miles back of the lines, doing reconstruction and relief work, when the offensive began. They were the last women to leave several towns before the Germans entered, and were on duty in half a dozen villages, widely separated, when word came of the German advance.

They aided hundreds of refugees to the railheads, and established a temporary kitchen in one town, feeding 250 British soldiers who had not eaten for hours.

In four different towns the girls managed to keep just one day ahead of the oncoming Germans. At one place they crossed a bridge a few minutes before it was blown up. Previously they had driven across this bridge night and day while it was mined. The military authorities finally had to order them to cross the bridge.

The Red Cross girls worked eight days without removing their clothes, sleeping on straw in barns and caves and similar billets.

THE CARLISLE CASTLE SUNK

Vessel, with Cargo of War Supplies, Destroyed in English Channel.

BOSTON, April 2.—Sinking of the British steamer Carlisle Castle, presumably by a German submarine, while on a voyage from this country for a foreign port, was reported in shipping circles here today. She was chartered to the Cunard Line and carried war supplies.

200,000 Insured in Navy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—More than 200,000 applications of officers and enlisted men in the naval service had been filed up to March 31 for war risk insurance. The average amount of insurance on each policy was about $7,300 for each individual, which would make a total of more than $1,500,000,000 insurance.

CZERNIN AGAIN REPLIES TO WILSON

made my speech I supposed that it had already reached Washington. Apparently, however, it only arrived there some days later.

Wilson's Four Points a Basis.

"This does not affect the matter itself. My object was to assure that the President of the United States should get the exact text of my speech and this object was attained and the trifling delay of a few days was a matter of indifference.

"With regard to Mr. Wilson's reply, I can only say that I consider it very important that the German Chancellor, in his admirable speech of Feb. 25, took the answer out of my mouth and declared that the four points developed by Mr. Wilson in his speech of Feb. 11 are the basis upon which a general peace can be discussed. I entirely agree with him in this.

"President Wilson's four points are a suitable basis upon which to begin negotiating about a general peace. The question is whether or not Mr. Wilson will succeed in uniting his allies upon this basis.

Asserts France Blocked Peace.

"God is my witness that we have tried everything possible to avoid a new offensive. The Entente would not have it. A short time before the beginning of the offensive in the west M. Clemenceau inquired of me whether and upon what basis I was prepared to negotiate. I immediately replied, in agreement with Berlin, that I was ready to engotiate, and that as regards France I saw no other obstacle for peace than France's desire for Alsace-Lorraine.

"The reply from Paris was that it that I was ready to negotiate, and basis. There was then no choice left.

"The gigantic struggle in the west has already begun. Austro-Hungarian and German troops are fighting shoulder to shoulder as they did in Russia, Serbia, Rumania, and Italy. We are fighting united for the defense of Austria-Hungary and Germany. Our armies will show the Entente that French and Italian aspirations to portions of our territory are Utopias which will be terribly avenged.

Says Entente "Verges on Lunacy."

"The explanation of this attitude of the Entente Powers, which verges on lunacy, is to a great extent to be sought in certain domestic events here, to which I shall return later. Whatever may happen, we shall not sacrifice German interests any more than Germany will desert us. Loyalty on the Danube is not less than German loyalty. We are not fighting for imperialist or annexationist ends, either for ourselves or for Germany, but we shall act together to the end for our defense, for our political existence and for our future.

"The first breach in the determination of our enemies to war has been driven by the peace negotiations with Russia. That was a break-through by the idea of peace.

"It is a symptom of childish dilettantism to overlook the close relationship of the various peace signatures with each other. The constellation of enemy powers in the East was like a net. When one mesh was cut through the remaining meshes loosened of their own accord.

"We first gave international recognition to the separation of Ukraine from Russia, which had to be accomplished as an internal affair of Russia. Profiting from resultant circumstances which were favorable to our aims, we concluded with the Ukraine the peace sought by that country.

"This gave the lead to peace with Petrograd, whereby Rumania was left standing alone, so that she also had to conclude peace. So one peace brought another and the desired success, namely, the end of the war in the East, was achieved."

[No more of Count Czernin's speech had been received by The Times correspondent at The Hague up to 10 o'clock last night.]

GERMANY PROPOSES BARTER OF ALSATIANS

Asks Through Vatican the Return of Refugees in Exchange for French Civil Captives.

PARIS, April 2.—The Germans have made overtures through the Holy See for the return by France of inhabitants of Alsace and Lorraine who have escaped from those regions, offering in exchange an equal number of civilians from the invaded districts of France.

Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, transmitted the offer to Baron Denys Cochin, a prominent Catholic leader and recently a member of the Cabinet. The Baron refused to act as intermediary in the negotiations, on the ground that to do so would be to recognize Alsatians as German subjects. He wrote a sharp letter, which brought an equally spirited rejoinder from Cardinal Gasparri.

GERMANY NOW SPURNS WORLD PEACE LEAGUE

Semi-Official Statement Calls Project Fantastic and Rejects Discussion on Alsace.

AMSTERDAM, March 20, (Correspondence of Associated Press.)—For the first time in Germany a semi-official statement dismisses the idea of a league of nations as fantastic and impossible. The statement, as published in the German papers, says:

"We do not see that a league of nations could offer any guarantee of lasting peace among men. The nations would perhaps greet such a league with joy, but in due time they would learn to curse it, because it could not fail to deceive all their hopes most cruelly.

"The only possible result would be continual strife and quarreling, and finally perhaps a fresh war, in which the whole world would be involved.

"So far as Alsace-Lorraine is concerned, we decline all leagues and congresses."

REDS WANT ALLIES TO CHECK COSSACKS

Say That if Manchurian Frontier Is Closed They Can Deal with Semenoff's Forces.

ANSWER GERMAN DEMANDS

Ask Proof That Bolshevist Troops Are in Finland—Berlin Seeks Arrest of Deserters.

MOSCOW, April 1, (Associated Press.)—Captain William R. Webster of the American Red Cross and Captain W. L. Hicks of the British Military Mission attended a meeting of the Central Siberian Soviet at Irkutsk. They were assured that less than 1,200 Austrian prisoners throughout Siberia had been armed and enlisted in the Red Guards, and that all these men were Socialists who had renounced their Austrian citizenship. The Soviet gave the assurance that no more prisoners would be armed, and also announced its intention to defend Siberia against the German invasion.

The United States and Great Britain were requested by the Soviet to permit the free exportation of manufactured articles, especially farm machinery, into Siberia through Archangel and Vladivostok. The Soviet officials also asked the assistance of the Allies in checking Cossack raids across the Manchurian border, saying that they were unwilling to follow the marauders into Chinese territory, but were quite able to defeat General Semenoff and his followers if they were prevented from escaping to Chinese soil.

A foreign trade and finance commission of nine members, who include Nikolai Lenine and M. Radek, has been appointed to frame legislation for the establishment of a State monopoly in foreign trade, and generally to deal with all matters pertaining to economic relations with the United States, Germany, the Ukraine, and other countries.

LONDON, April 2.—The Russian Government, according to a Russian wireless statement received here, has addressed the following to the German Government:

Neither the Councils of the Central Government nor the local authorities are sending Red Guards to Finland. If the German Government has in its possession information that Red Guards are arriving in Finland from Russia, the Russian Government will make inquiries and take most severe measures against it. The Russian Government will be very grateful to the German Government for an indication of the points on the Finnish frontier at which Russian Red Guards have entered Finland.

An exchange of the instruments of ratification of the peace treaty concluded at Brest-Litovsk between the Central Powers and Russia took place March 30, according to a Reuter dispatch from Moscow.

BERLIN, April 2, via London, (British Admiralty, per Wireless Press.)—The German Government has addressed a note to the Russian Government, in which it says German and Austrian deserters at Moscow are threatening to take forcible possession of the Swedish and Danish Consulates in the same manner that they have already taken possession of lodgings for war prisoners.

"They are endeavoring by violence," says the note, "to put these prisoners into the Red Guard. The civil and military authorities at Moscow are said to be powerless, and, in some instances, to favor such activities. The German Government expects immediate energetic measures to be taken by the Russian Government, and especially expects the dissolution of the War Prisoners' Committee, composed of these deserters under the leadership of the Austrian, Asennz, and the arrest of all of its members."

ANTI-RED RUSSIANS ALLIES OF GERMANS

Plea for Recognition of the Soviet Government by Entente to Foil Them.

By ARTHUR RANSOME.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Sunday, March 31.—Further news from Siberia makes it clear that there, as everywhere else in Russia, politicians opposed to the Soviet Government are compelled to seek the aid of foreign troops—sufficient proof of the fact that these politicians are politically conscious that the bulk of the working classes support the Soviets.

Thus, in Ukraine, while the Rada is supported by German bayonets in Kiev, the Ukranian Soviet in Kharkov is not only itself putting up what regular resistance it can but it is getting at least moral support by an actual rising of the population in the German rear. It is confirmed that Kherson and Nikolayev are again in the hands of Soviet forces. Odessa has been retaken for the Soviet by sailors of the Black Sea fleet which the Ukranian Soviet ineffectually tried to demobilize.

The Rada, not content with the treachery of summoning German help, is now trying to deprive the fleet of its base by countenancing a Turkish expedition to the Crimea with the nominal aim of "restoring order there." The fleet and the Ukranian Soviet troops will resist this attempt.

In the north it is confirmed from Archangel that Finnish White Guards moving eastward are making propaganda for a federation with Finland of the Russian northern provinces with a view to cutting off the northern ports. This position is curious inasmuch as all our enemies recognize the Soviet Government as their enemy, and we do not recognize it at all.

I cannot too strongly urge recognition as a means of strengthening the Soviet Government here and of easing the task of co-operation.

CAUCASUS IN ARMS TO FIGHT THE TURKS

Refuses to Recognize Cession of Territory Made Under Brest-Litovsk Treaty.

PETROGRAD, April 1, (Associated Press.)—Fierce fighting has broken out in the districts of Batum, Kars, and Ardaham, in the Caucasus. The Armenians and Georgians have formed a large army for the defense of the territory against the Turks, who have begun military occupation of the three districts by virtue of the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty.

The Georgians have seized most of the Russian warships in the harbor of Batum and have taken them into the Black Sea.

The entire population of Georgia has been mobilized to oppose the invaders.

Special War Service at Trinity.

On Saturday next, the first anniversary of the entry of the United States into the war, old Trinity Church, at the head of Wall Street, will hold a special midday service to mark the occasion. It is expected that the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Parish, who is now a volunteer chaplain with the 302d United States Engineers at Camp Upton, will make an address.

BAKER IN ROME AFTER SEEING VENICE

Weather Prevents American War Secretary's Visit to Piave and Mountain Fronts.

IS MUCH IMPRESSED BY TRIP

Greeted at the Capital by Officials —Will Be Received by the King.

ROME, April 2.—Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War, arrived here this afternoon. The Secretary, who was accompanied by Thomas Nelson Page, the American Ambassador, was received by General Zupelli, Minister of War, Francesco Nitti, Minister of the Treasury; Colonel Vachelli, head of the Division of the General Staff; Robert R. Perkins, American Red Cross Commissioner to Italy, and the personel of the American Embassy and Consulate.

Mr. Baker arrived in Rome too late to keep his engagement to witness the marriage of Miss Augusta Grover of Princeton to Hart Anderson, Secretary of the American Embassy. The marriage was celebrated in the Embassy this morning.

Secretary Baker gave out this statement:

"The Government and people of the United States are fighting like the Italian people and Government, for the freedom of the world. I am happy to have this opportunity, however brief, to bring the greetings of America to Italy, its army, and people, and to express the admiration we feel for their magnificent deeds and indomitable spirit. It strengthens our pride and increases our confidence that we are able to count Italy among the nations allied to save civilization from destruction."

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, April 1.—(Associated Press.)—Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War, accompanied by the members of his staff, arrived at the Italian Army Headquarters this morning. He was joined here by Ambassador Page, who came from Rome, and Major Gen. Eben Swift, head of the American military mission to Italy.

The party proceeded to the Supreme Command, where a handsome villa was placed at the disposition of the Secretary. Mr. Baker and Mr. Page called on General Diaz, the Secretary remaining for a long talk with the Italian Commander in Chief.

Later General Diaz entertained Secretary Baker, Ambassador Page, and General Swift at luncheon. The gathering gave opportunity for an agreeable exchange of views in which General Diaz spoke in high terms of the American troops and Ambassador Page referred to the strong bonds of friendship existing between America and Italy and the desire of the United States to do everything which would contribute to the winning of the common cause.

Venice's Desolation Witnessed.

VENICE, April 1, (Associated Press.)—The desolate condition of Venice, left so by the evacuation of two-thirds of its population and the destruction of many of its churches and buildings by aerial bombardments, was witnessed today by Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War. The distant rumble of the bombardment at the south of the Piave River, twelve miles east of the city, usually echoes through Venice, but there was no cannonade during the Secretary's visit.

Admiral Marzolo, naval commandant of Venice, sent his Chief of Staff and the Admiral's barge to convey the party to Venice. The trip was through the lagoons, which afforded a view of the region flooded by the Italian military engineers in order to hold back the enemy's advance. Arriving in Venice, Mr. Baker and Ambassador Page were escorted to the Admiral's headquarters. The party then passed through the Grand Canal to the Place San Marco and to the City Council Chamber, where the Mayor of Venice, Count Grimani, with the Prefect and members of the municipality, extended it the welcome of the city. Count Grimani's address was a warm tribute to the United States and an acknowledgement of America's part in assisting Venice during the recent critical period.

Later Mr. Baker and party visited the Doge's palace, the Campanile, and the Basilica of San Marco. The Secretary noted the defensive armor of sandbags with which all these world monuments were covered. He also went through the interior of the Doge's palace, now stripped of most of its precious paintings and presenting the appearance of a citadel.

Regarding his impressions of Italy, Secretary Baker authorized the following statement:

"I have been deeply interested in the military activity of the Italian Army and regret that fog prevented my seeing the marvelous engineering works constructed by them in the ragged mountain country through which their line runs. Nothing could exceed the hospitality with which my visit has been received and it has been made possible for me to see a great deal in a short time.

"The relations between the Italian Army and people and the Americans here is most sympathetic and cordial, and it gave me please to express the appreciation of America for the splendid loyalty of Italy to the common cause and to reciprocate the warm sentiments expressed everywhere for America and Americans."

much information as had been sent in news dispatches from General Pershing's headquarters in France.

American forces have now been in France since last Summer and some of our men have been on the fighting front, occupying trenches for six months. No daily communiqués regarding the employment of American forces have been issued, although every other nation having forces engaged in the war has been issuing communiqués, and the British, French, and German War Offices have issued several official statements regarding military operations daily.

News at Second Hand.

A peculiar feature of the situation appears to be that high officials in the War Department have been obtaining their first news regarding the recent vital developments as to the more immediate use of American forces on a large scale from the newspapers or from published reports of French and British announcements. If the War Department has been taken fully into the confidence of the Administration, or of General Pershing or Secretary Baker, that fact has not been admitted at the department.

The announcement of General Pershing's offer of the unlimited use of American forces was first made in a Parisian newspaper and was later confirmed. Responsible officials of the War Department denied absolutely that they had any knowledge of the offer, beyond what they read in the press. Similarly, when General Foch was named to co-ordinate the allied forces, the first intimation on this side of the water came when the President's congratulatory message to General Foch was made public. Then it was learned from the White House that the message was intended to congratulate General Foch on the fact that he had been intrusted with the unity of command over all the forces on the western front involved in the battle. General March, when asked about the appointment of General Foch, said he had no advices on the subject.

For three days responsible officials of the War Department have insisted that they were without knowledge of the fact that American troops were already on the move toward the battle front, although their movement has been characterized by the greatest enthusiasm and has been dealt with in considerable detail in censored dispatches from abroad. The announcement that American troops were to be rushed to Europe as rapidly as possible from now on also came from abroad in an official statement issued at London, and concerning which the War Department today professed to have no official confirmation.

HOT FIRE ON OVERMAN BILL.

Reed and Smith Oppose Wider Powers for President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The Overman bill to give the President broader power to redistribute and co-ordinate governmental agencies came up for debate in the Senate today and was vigorously bombarded on both sides of the chamber.

As it stands before the Senate, the bill gives the President power to "utilize, co-ordinate or consolidate any executive or administrative commissions, bureaus, agencies, offices, or officers now existing by law, to transfer any duties or powers from one existing department to another, to transfer the personnel thereof or any part of it, either by detail or assignment." To abolish any department existing by law, the President must obtain legislation from Congress. The law would remain in effect for one year after the war.

Its opponents predict that the measure will be drastically cut so as to narrow down the power to be given to the President. The majority in the Senate is not averse to allowing the President to co-ordinate the War, Navy and Shipping Board activities so as to centralize their functions, but it insists that the measure specify precisely what departments are to be affected.

Senator Cummins said: "If it were necessary to save this country, I'd favor giving the President power to abolish any agencies and create any he saw fit. But that necessity does not exist. This measure is merely a step toward destroying our union, rather than saving it."

"The Senator distrusts the Commander in Chief of the nation," flung back Senator Overman. "He is afraid the President would abuse the power given to him. Let me ask the Senator to tell this Senate if he distrusts the President."

"Mr. President, I hope the Senator from North Carolina won't press me too far as to my trust in the President of the United States," rejoined Senator Cummins. "I have confidence in his good faith, but I would not put such power as this bill contemplates into his hands. I would not do it with any President. The Senator from North Carolina has not convinced me that such power as this bill would bestow is necessary at this time."

"I want to say I think it is necessary," insisted Senator Overman. "We have the most unscientific Government in the whole world. It needs overhauling. The President is hampered through lack of co-ordinated authority. He wants Congress to give it to him."

NAMES REVIEWERS OF EXCESS PROFITS

Board of Fourteen Appointed by Roper to Pass On Complicated Returns.

HEADED BY AN ECONOMIST

Business Liberally Represented—Four Advisory Members—Leniency to Delinquent Taxpayers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The heaviest administrative load connected with the collection of income, corporation, and excess profits taxes will come in the examination of excess profits tax returns. Many technical questions must necessarily arise from this form of taxation, which is new to our system of Government and attended with innumerable complications. To meet the vast amount of work thus entailed upon the Bureau of Internal Revenue, a special board of fourteen reviewers has been designated by Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper to co-ordinate the work of the bureau and the rights of business men and firms subject to the tax. The men who will serve on this board are:

T. S. ADAMS, economist, of Yale University, Chairman.
J. E. STERRETT, accountant, New York City.
STUART W. CRAMER of the National Council of Cotton Manufacturers, Charlotte, N. C.
E. T. MEREDITH, agricultural publisher, Des Moines, Iowa.
WILLIAM N. DAVIS, engineer and oil expert, Bartlesville, Okla.
THOMAS E. LYONS, member of Wisconsin State Tax Commission, Madison, Wis.
R. C. ALLEN, State Geologist, Lansing, Mich.
RALPH ARNOLD, geologist and petroleum engineer, Los Angeles, Cal.
JOHN MARKS, lawyer and sugar planter, Napoleonville, La.
A. P. RAMSTEDT, mining, smelting, and refining expert, Wallace, Idaho.
GEORGE M. CORNWALL, lumber expert and editor of The Timberman, Portland, Ore.,
CARL H. NAU, accountant, Cleveland, Ohio.
H. H. BOND, Massachusetts Income Tax Deputy, Boston, Mass.
L. F. SPEER, Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

A number of these reviewers served as advisers in constructing the regulations for the administration of the excess profits tax.

Legal questions arising in connection with the work of the reviewers will be referred to Arthur A. Ballantine, Solicitor for the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and to special attorneys, among whom are Fred T. Field, Hugh Satterlee, and Robert N. Miller.

Advisory Board Also Named.

The appointment of four advisory members, who will not participate in the daily review work, but will be called in for conferences on important questions, is also announced. These advisers are:

CORDELL HULL, member of the Ways and Means Committee, House of Representatives.
WALLACE D. SIMMONS, President Simmons Hardware Company, St. Louis, Mo.
HENRY WALTERS, Chairman of the Atlantic Coast Line and the Louisville & Nashville Railway, Baltimore, Md.
JOHN BURKE, Treasurer of the United States.

There will be advanced to each Collector at the beginning of each quarter of the fiscal year out of the appropriation for the refundment of internal revenue taxes a sum estimated to be sufficient for the repayment to taxpayers of excessive collections, as follows:

1. Collections exceeding the tax shown by the return of the taxpayer to be due.
2. Collections exceeding the amount of tax shown by the assessment list to be due.
3. Duplicate payments where (a) both are made before assessment; (b) both are made after assessment; (c) one is made before, and one after assessment.

Rulings by Commissioner.

Commissioner Roper announced a ruling today, providing for the transmittal of ownership certificates in which exemption is claimed. The substance of the ruling follows:

"Where a debtor corporation, or its duly authorized withholding agent, has made no payments of interest to nonresident alien individuals, or foreign corporations, having no office or place of business in the United States, or has withheld no tax from citizens or residents of the United States, whether or not the bonds upon which such interest accrued contain a tax-free covenant clause, the exemption certificates filed in connection with such interest payments shall not hereafter be forwarded to Collectors of Internal Revenue revised, but shall be transmitted direct to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C., accompanied by a return on Form 1,096. When used in this connection, Form 1,096 shall be filed monthly, and in such cases, this office will not require that the return be sworn to."

Commissioner Roper also made a ruling in regard to computation of excess profits taxes for a period of less than a full year and filing of excess profits tax returns for such period. The ruling is that if a taxpayer who is engaged in a trade or business the net income from which is subject to taxation at the graduated rates imposed makes a return for a period of less than twelve months the average invested capital shall be determined by monthly average, based upon the number of months in the period, and the deduction will be an amount which bears the same ratio to the deduction allowable for a full year as the number of months in such period bears to twelve months. The following illustration of the working of this tax is given:

"A corporation making its return on a calendar year basis started business Aug. 16, 1917, with a capital of $100,000, which remained unchanged for the balance of the year 1917. Its net income for that period was $8,000.

"The deduction computed under the provisions of Articles 20 and 21 would, as this corporation was not in existence during the whole of at least one calendar year during the pre-war period, be 8 per cent. of the invested capital, or $8,000 plus $3,000, a total of $11,000. But, inasmuch as the return is being made only for a period of four and one-half months, the deduction would be reduced to an amount which bears the same ratio to $11,000 as four and one-half months bears to a full year of twelve months, or, in other words, the deduction would be reduced to $4,125.

"For the purpose of applying the rates of taxation the invested capital of $100,000 would likewise be reduced to an amount which bears the same ratio to the full invested capital as the number of months in the period for which the return is made bears to twelve months, or, in other words, would be reduced to $37,500.

"The amount of the net income taxable at each rate would be as follows:

In excess of the deduction and not in excess of 15 per cent. of the capital (rate 20 per cent.)	$1,500.00
In excess of 15 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 20 per cent. thereof (the rate 25 per cent.)	1,875.00
In excess of 20 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 25 per cent. thereof (rate 35 per cent.)	500.00

"The tax would then be computed as follows:

20 per cent. of $1,500	$300.00
25 per cent. of $1,875	468.75
35 per cent. of $500	175.00
Total tax	$943.75

"If a taxpayer who is engaged in a trade or business, the net income from which is subject to taxation at the rate of 8 per cent. imposed, makes a return for a period of less than twelve months, the deduction of $3,000 of $6,000 allowed will be reduced to an amount which bears the same ratio to such full deduction as the number of months in the period bears to twelve months."

SIX KILLED BY EXPLOSION.

Girl Among Victims in Plant Doing War Work—Many Hurt.

PITTSBURGH Penn., April 2.—Six workmen, one of them a woman machinist's helper, are dead, seven others are in Pittsburgh hospitals suffering from severe injuries, and nearly a score of workmen are more or less injured, as a result of an explosion today in the machine shop of the Flannery Bolt Company's plant at Bridgeville, a suburb.

Ignition of several hundred gallons of oil in a huge cylinder, fourteen feet long and twelve feet in diameter, was responsible for the explosion, which showered burning oil on all the employees of the machine shop.

Jeanette Barnwell, 19 years old, one of the victims of the explosion, was the first of several thousand women who have taken up work in plants in the Pittsburgh district, to meet death in an industrial accident. The Flannery plant is working on Government contracts.

SAYS HIRED GUNMAN KILLED HARRY COHEN

District Attorney Declares Gambling House Men Feared Prosecution.

HEARS OF DARK STRANGER

Rothenberg and His Friend Say Tall Man Accompanied Victim When He Left Them.

Harry Cohen, alias "Harry the Yot," the burglar and gambler who was shot and killed on Monday morning in the hallway of his apartment at 7 West Ninety-second Street, was killed, according to District Attorney Swann, by a gunman hired by proprietors of gambling houses, who feared the disclosures which Cohen had promised to the District Attorney.

Morris Rothenberg, who was arrested on Monday night for the murder by Detectives under Police Captain McKenna, has been connected with Cohen by a series of circumstances, although Rothenberg continued to protest his innocence and offered an alibi which a friend corroborated.

Rothenberg admitted that he was with Cohen up to 6 o'clock on Monday morning in a gambling house in Sixth Avenue near Forty-eighth Street. It was there that Cohen lost all the money he was carrying, which resulted in his telephoning about two hours before he was murdered to Assistant District Attorney Smith and promising to make sensational exposures of gamblers.

But Rothenberg asserted that at 6 o'clock Cohen had started uptown toward his home with a dark stranger, apparently a Greek or Italian. Joseph Galupo, Jr., a friend of Rothenberg, said he was with Cohen at 6 o'clock on Monday morning and that he had also seen Cohen start home with the stranger.

One admission from Rothenberg, which the District Attorney considered important, was that he had received gifts of money from Cohen. He said Cohen had recently been interested in gambling houses. Rothenberg, according to the story, was employed as a "steerer," or one who brings patrons to the gambling house. As the man who killed Cohen accepted a bill of $50 from him a few minutes before the shooting, in the presence of the elevator boy at 7 West Ninety-second Street, District Attorney Swann considered the fact that Rothenberg was in the habit of getting money from Cohen to be significant.

Joseph Edney, the negro elevator boy, who saw the shots fired and chased the murderer, stuck to his identification of Rothenberg as the man who did the shooting.

Rothenberg had been a waiter and café singer. His friend and alibi witness, Joseph Galupo, Jr., is a fruit-stand keeper by occupation, but has not pursued that lawful calling for two years, he said. He was reticent about his means of support.

District Attorney Swann said yesterday that no connection had been established between Rothenberg and the alleged organization of gamblers who were desperate enough to finance a second "Rosenthal murder," rather than let Cohen's information get into the hands of the District Attorney. Judge Swann said that Cohen himself had told about a fund of $10,000 being raised by gamblers to safeguard their interests, when the investigation by the District Attorney's office began a few days after the Hylan Administration took office.

The revolver with which the shooting was done, which was found to contain bullets with their noses notched to make them spread like dumdum bullets, was not easy to trace because the number of the weapon had been filed away by its careful possessor. Acting Captain McKenna was able, however, to find out, through representatives of the Colt Arms Company, where the revolver had been sold, but the weapon was not definitely traced to Rothenberg.

District Attorney Swann said he had been rather startled because Mrs. Cohen, the wife of the dead man, had made an apparent attempt to defend Rothenberg. She denied at first, he said, that Rothenberg had ever been with her husband. Later, after lengthy questioning, she admitted that he had been there frequently and that he often had dinner with them.

FORSTMAN DENIES ANY GERMAN TAINT

Declares He Never Saw Compromising Letters, and Bought Wool at Metz's Suggestion.

Julius Forstmann, President of the $2,000,000 Forstmann & Huffmann Woolen Mills of Passaic, appeared before Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker yesterday afternoon to declare himself a loyal citizen of the United States. The mill, of which Mr. Forstmann is the head, is one of the big plants recently seized by the Alien Property Custodian. Robert H. McCarter of Newark appeared at the hearing as leading counsel for Mr. Forstmann.

"Mr. Forstmann," said Mr. McCarter addressing Mr. Becker, "was born in Germany. He married in Germany. Two of his five children were born in Germany. He came here at the age of 33 years, and when he left Germany he burned his bridges behind him. He settled in Passaic and he built up a great business, and has identified himself with all the civic activities of his adopted city. He owns his home there and he owns an estate in the Catskills, where he is now developing a fish and game preserve."

"In 1914," added Mr. McCarter, "Mr. Forstmann was approached by the Hon. Herman A. Metz, then a member of Congress from New York City and now wearing the uniform of an officer of his country, and Mr. Metz told him that unless some arrangement could be made to get wool and cotton into Germany the dye industry would suffer tremendously."

Lieut. Col. H. A. Metz, National Guard New York, was the first witness called by Mr. McCarter. He told of the efforts to exchange wool and cotton for dyestuffs and verified the statement that he had sought the aid of Mr. Forstmann.

Mr. Forstmann took the stand and denied that he had ever knowingly violated any regulation of the Textile Alliance, and said that he had never bought any wool for Germany except under the circumstances mentioned by Mr. McCarter.

At the conclusion of Mr. McCarter's examination of Mr. Forstmann, Mr. Becker read into the record the following letter from the German Foreign Office. The signature was removed from the copy before it was given out:

Berlin, June 28, 1916.

To Herr Count v. Bernstorff, Rye, N. Y.:

Your Excellency: Interested parties here have repeatedly made representation for preferential treatment of the firm of Forstmann & Huffmann in Passaic, N. J., in connection with shipment of coal tar dyes to the U. S. A., since this pure German firm, as is well known on your side, undertook last year the wool supply for Germany, and therefore, claims it has been especially badly treated by England. It is most respectfully recommended to your Excellency, should there be no reason to the contrary, to arrange for the greatest possible consideration for this firm in the later distribution of the shipments to consumers which are now in prospect.

Mr. Forstmann said that it was the first time he had ever heard of the letter and he added that the German Foreign Office had no justification for transmitting such a letter to the former Ambassador.

Dr. Charles W. Howe, President of the National Bank of Passaic; Richard J. Scoles, President of the Passaic Trust and Safety Deposit Company, and Charles M. Johnson, President of the Passaic Board of Trade appeared as character witnesses for Mr. Forstmann. They testified that he had been one of the largest individual subscribers to Liberty bonds, that he had led in subscription to the Red Cross, and had liberally contributed to the support of the war activities of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Forstmann said he owned $600,000 worth of Liberty bonds. Other prominent Passaic citizens were present also to testify to the loyalty of Mr. Forstmann.

MIKE DONOVAN'S WILL FILED

Discloses an Estate of $4,700 and That His Name Was O'Donovan.

The will of Mike Donovan, teacher of boxing at the New York Athletic Club, who died on March 24, filed yesterday, discloses that his real name was Michael J. O'Donovan. His entire estate consisted of $4,700 in personal property, which is the principal of a mortgage held in trust for him by the New York Athletic Club.

The testator asked that the mortgage be converted into cash and divided among his three sons, six daughters, and his grandchildren in sums ranging from $200 to $500 each.

Worsted Knitting Yarn of Highest Quality

THE Patriotic Yarn Association was organized to supply the women of this country with the best worsted knitting yarn in the market at the lowest possible cost, allowing only for the expense of distribution, with the understanding that they will make up garments for men in the service of the United States and her Allies. We desire to reach the individual knitter direct, that she may be unrestricted in the disposition of her finished garment, provided only that she knit solely for the above-mentioned cause and give her written word of honor to that effect. We also gladly help out small organizations of recognized reputation working for patriotic purposes.

We will take care of requests for yarn in the order in which they are received, and advise that you act promptly to avoid disappointment. The supply is limited.

The Man at Home

AS part of the magnificent morale of the great American Army of Business, which is supporting the American Armies in the Field, it is every man's duty to keep himself in bodily and mental trim.

His smart personal appearance is the outward token of that indomitable spirit which prompts an air of confidence in the midst of sacrifice and struggle.

We have looked after his needs in time of peace. We have learned his preferences when he had the leisure to dwell upon the cut of a lapel. That we have gained his confidence is shown by the splendid growth of this business. And now that he is deep in the work of helping to support the war—having grown neither careless of his appearance nor unmindful of those differences which separate the smart from the commonplace—he will find that his confidence has not been misplaced.

Our Spring and Summer assortments of clothes, for the office, for home, for travel, for country and sport wear, and for evening, reflect the spirit of the hour—his spirit—to a nicety. In character, they are neither too grave nor too gay—the conservative, tasteful expression of a period when serious thoughts and cheerful hopes are mingled in the public mind.

But it is the unexpected values, in this rising market, which will attract his immediate attention. Honesty is a homely virtue. As an element of fashion, its appeal is a minor one. The most honest tailor in the world might make a suit of clothes which, as a fit or an example of smartness, would be a shocking failure.

Honesty is not more unusual in the clothing business than in any other business—because it is the best policy. But there has been something beyond the basic integrity of our merchandise, to bring the Weber and Heilbroner business a prominence beyond its years.

That added force has been that these clothes were specially designed to fit metropolitan tastes and metropolitan moods, with a cleverness of cut and skill in the making new in ready-to-wear clothes. That cleverness is more manifest this Spring than ever before.

The choice weaves and patterns were growing harder to secure—and would grow more difficult still. That the prices of wool and woolens would keep on going up, higher and higher was apparent. We anticipated in every direction. We made our purchases before prices reached anything like their present level—and bought more liberally than ever. Today the demands of the Government are keeping the woolen mills busy day and night. As high as woolens appear to be now, if the war storm continues they will be infinitely higher.

We are giving our clients the benefit of our anticipation of the market. Where we secured an advantage in the woolens, you secure it in the clothes—in many instances at prices much more reasonable than conditions warrant.

Comparisons we have always courted. It has been by the contrasts which they afford that this business has forged ahead from one store to eleven. But this Spring and Summer comparisons mean even more to us. We are so conscious of the result of the efforts we have made to present the very limit in value that we want you fully to understand it.

The Weber and Heilbroner Spring and Summer Suit fabrics—all wool—merge appropriately in color and weave with the models into which they are cut. There are cheery light tweeds and mixtures accurately meeting metropolitan and suburban requirements, and unfinished-worsteds and fine flannels of subdued tones equally sharing favor with men of perfect taste.

The models, from the dignified, youthful cutaway to our "Urban and Suburban" business-and-golf suit, reflect as always the current style thought of the best stylists among the leading tailors of this city, reproduced in minute detail.

There is a topcoat, or Spring overcoat, for every purpose, from "The Splasher," the new Weber and Heilbroner topcoat for shower or shine, to imported motor and country club coats, built for us by Burberry and other leading London coat makers.

INCOME TAXES HERE PUT AT $900,000,000

Returns by Mail Greatly Increase First Estimates Made by Collectors.

MANY GET TIME EXTENSION

German, Loyal to the United States, Sends Check for Double His Tax.

Thousands of income tax returns, many with checks, mailed late on Monday, reached the New York internal revenue offices yesterday morning. Collector Edwards's office, in the Custom House, took twenty-five extra clerks to sort the morning's mail, while a similar condition existed in the Third, or Upper Manhattan, District, of which Mark Eisner is Collector. The Brooklyn and Bronx offices also received big bundles of returns from the Post Office.

At Collector Eisner's office several hundred people called with belated returns, which, however, were received subject to penalty. With receipt of thousands of returns by mail yesterday, revenue officials here were convinced that the estimate of $800,000,000 as New York City's quota of the income and excess profits taxes was not only conservative, but might, when all payments were in next June, reach $900,000,000.

The big tax certain to be collected here was tentatively estimated by districts as follows: First, (Brooklyn,) $100,000,000; Second, or Wall Street, $600,000,000, and Third, (Upper Manhattan,) $100,000,000. The Bronx office, which is a branch of the Fourteenth District, with headquarters in Albany, was unable yesterday to say how much money would be available to the Government on the face of the income tax returns. There were indications that the collections in the Upper Manhattan District would run far ahead of the $100,000,000 estimated Monday night, and, taken in connection with the Federal taxes to be paid in the Bronx, jump the city's total collections to around $900,000,000.

Collector Edwards, at the Office of the Second District, in the Custom House, made the statement that his estimate of the individual returns up to date were in excess of 100,000; that more than 13,000 corporations filed returns on Form 1,031, and more than 7,000 filed excess profits returns on Form 1,103. The Collector also said that there were nearly 5,000 excess profits partnership returns and 1,200 nonresident alien returns, making a total of 127,000 returns.

Many taxpayers, big and little, who had been granted an extension of thirty days from April 1 within which to file their returns, called at the two Manhattan revenue offices yesterday and protested against the order issued by Commissioner Roper directing Collectors to grant extensions only (except in the cases of sick or absent persons) upon condition that taxpayers so favored pay their taxes when filing their returns. If the order stands, all persons to whom extensions were granted will be under the necessity of paying their taxes on or before May 1.

Collector Edwards went over twenty income tax blanks filed with him by corporations and partnerships the tax on which totaled $25,000,000. As to the amount of money which had been taken in in the Second District, the Collector could make no statement pending the sending of the figures to Washington, where it was understood Commissioner Roper would make public total returns from the entire country.

Collector Edwards gave out a copy of a letter received from a German, who sent with his return a check for just double the amount necessary. The letter, in part, read:

"I inclose my income tax return. While the amount of this tax is computed at $45.20, I am inclosing a check for double the amount. I do this in a spirit of penance, because I feel that every German or person of German extraction who lives in this country should be at least thankful that he has escaped the toils of militarism with which Germany, or at least the rulers of Germany, have become obsessed.

"I also wish to state frankly that I have always been and even now am conscientiously opposed to all war, but although it has taken me a long time I have finally reached the conclusion that there is no alternative but to support this country with all our strength if civilization is not to perish, and I feel this more particularly and especially because I am convinced that if any good is to come out of all this waste and destruction it will only be through the efforts and leadership of President Wilson. I hope from the bottom of my heart that Mr. Wilson will still be our President when this war is terminated."

CLEMENCEAU AT FRONT, SHELLED BY GERMANS

Premier Returns to Paris Enthusiastic Over the Prospects of Allied Success.

PARIS, April 2.—Premier Clemenceau, while making his daily visit to the front yesterday, ventured so near the first line that his automobile was shelled vigorously by the German artillery. All the windows were broken, but M. Clemenceau was not hurt.

The Premier returned to Paris enthusiastic and full of confidence in the favorable issue of the present great battle.

Congress Discusses Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Adjournment plans were discussed in the House today. Democratic Leader Kitchin predicted that, unless something unforeseen developed, Congress would adjourn between July 1 and July 15. Many members, however, do not believe an early adjournment probable.

May Seize Some Yards.

There is no direct assertion in the message that shipyards which do not give acceptable reasons for delays will be taken over by the Government, but there has been agitation for the adoption of such drastic measures in the past, and Government officials are not in a mood to adopt half-way measures now.

It is believed, however, that as a result of the action taken today a definite knowledge of conditions will be obtained, so that responsibility may be placed whefe it belongs, either with employer, labor, or Government agencies. The fact that the deliveries fell below the minimum in March is taken as sufficient ground for the belief that in many of the yards work has not been proceeding under full pressure.

Following the wage adjustments and the settlement of other disputes between employers and workmen through the Labor Adjustment Board, it was hoped that there would be a general speeding up on a scale that would show immediate and very material results despite delays in shipments due to transportation difficulties. This has not proved to be the case, although there is evidence that some of the shipyards are showing a vast improvement. The Shipping Board is anxious and willing to give full credit where credit is deserved, but is not prepared to accept a situation quietly if it is shown that there has not been the fullest co-operation and the greatest extension of the effort in every direction in view of the crisis faced by the nation.

That was the attitude assumed today in sending out the message. It is felt that as a result of the action today it will be possible to place the situation before the nation in such a manner that all may judge whether the utmost energy is being used behind the shipping program.

Demand Three Shifts of Men.

The Shipping Board and other Government agencies which have supplied large sums of money for the program in order to meet wage increases and in other ways to facilitate the work have been making a consistent campaign to put two and three shifts of men on work in yards where this is practicable and to induce labor organizations to cast aside all restrictions which might hinder the maximum of construction. It is felt now that much can be accomplished in this direction if employers and employees are brought to a realization of the tremendous responsibility confronting all interests involved in ship construction.

Steps are being taken in other directions to facilitate the delivery of necessary materials to the shipyards by overcoming transportation difficulties and seeing to it that steel mills and other industries furnish supplies in a constant stream to the ship plants.

The matter has been taken up at conferences here, and the War Industries Board, of which Bernard M. Baruch is Chairman, is working out a plan to establish the necessary priority of deliveries.

The belief was expressed today that by complete co-operation of all interests the estimate for April could be more than accomplished.

30 JAPANESE SHIPS SOON TO BE IN ATLANTIC

United States Charters 250,000 Tons in Addition to Vessels Previously Negotiated For.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—More than 250,000 tons of shipping constructed in Japan, of which thirty vessels averaging 5,000 tons each will fly the Japanese flag, soon will be in the transatlantic service carrying troops, food, and munitions to France.

In addition to this tonnage, the United States Government has arranged for a new construction in Japan, which will aggregate another 200,000 tons.

All of the vessels, as rapidly as they can be made available, will be armed with guns and provided with gun crews, and all the latest devices to fight the German submarines will be installed on them.

Official announcement already has been made by the War Trade Board of the sale to the United States of 100,000 tons of these vessels, the delivery of which will begin in May and will be completed by September. The Government has also made formal announcement concerning negotiations to obtain the 200,000 tons of new construction.

The additional 150,000 tons making up the total of 450,000 tons are to be chartered by the United States, but will remain in the possession of Japan. The thirty vessels are now afloat and it is understood that they can be placed in the Atlantic soon enough to be of great value in supplying the fighting forces of Europe this Summer.

Information concerning the agreement affecting the 150,000 tons which will be obtained by charter has come in unofficial press dispatches from Tokio. While Government departments here have made no formal announcement about these ships, the news contained in the dispatches concerning the negotiations and the agreement has not been denied.

In connection with the negotiations for the use of all of the tonnage involved in the transatlantic trade, the United States has agreed to furnish Japan with steel plates so that Japan's building program will not be interrupted. The first shipment of steel plates will total 100,000 tons, sufficient for the construction of 300,000 tons of shipping.

TOKIO, Wednesday, March 27, (by The Associated Press.)—The amount of tonnage to be turned over to the United States by Japan under the arrangement made by the Japanese Shipping Commission is estimated by the press at about 250,000. Of this, 150,000 tons will be provided by the Government, and the remainder by shipbuilders in exchange for American steel. An official announcement probably will be made soon.

EXEMPTS DUTCH SHIPS BOUND FOR AMERICA

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The American Government has decided that Dutch ships en route to the United States from Holland at the time the Dutch shipping in American ports was requisitioned shall not be taken over on arrival here.

The War Trade Board announced tonight that inasmuch as the requisitioning had been done, according to President Wilson's proclamation, to restore the ships laid up in American harbors to their normal activity, it was not intended to take the use of those which were in service from Holland when the proclamation was issued.

The American Government is expected soon to reply to Holland's formal protest against the requisitioning, which was presented to the State Department today by the Netherlands Minister, August Philipp. It is expected that the reply will go more fully into the legal phase of the question and will cite additional reasons why the action was justifiable. Assurance has been given to the Minister that grain will be provided to load two ships which the Netherlands Government has arranged to send to this country for needed foodstuffs.

French veterans for use in the principal operations. The heavy flow of troops to France has been in progress for several weeks, and arrangements have now been made for accelerating the movement of those ready for departure.

Camps for the New Men.

This accelerated movement will open increased facilities in the present training camps for use by men to be obtained under the new draft, and it is now understood to be the plan to place men of the second draft in the training camps as rapidly as the latter can accommodate them. The schedules called for sending about 66,000 men into the training camps during April. This may be increased to 100,000 men. It is not the purpose to call out the entire second quota at once, but to feed large portions of this quota into the camps as fast as they can be taken care of.

The suggestion has been made that additional training camp facilities might be obtained by moving some of the green men to British training camps vacated by men sent to France, but there has been no official intimation that this suggestion is considered acceptable or feasible at this time. The movement of men to France is primarily a matter of tonnage and the number of men in the United States now far enough along in their training is great enough to tax all available transport facilities well along into the Summer months.

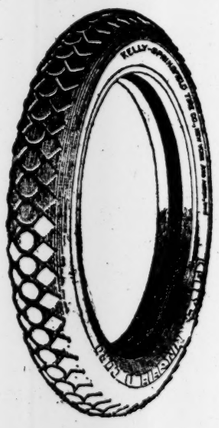
We found out what Kelly Cords would do before we offered them for sale. The experimenting was all ours. The pleasure is all yours.



We made our tests with 500 Kelly Cords. If there was a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Tires, it would have interfered. We subjected those tires to the most inhuman treatment we could think of. We drove them over heavy, icy, rutty, winter roads, day and night, on cars weighted up to 5200 pounds, until we wore them out. We then averaged up the odometers and got over 12,000 miles for the 500 tires. You are not buying a new untried tire when you buy Kelly Cords. You are getting a seasoned veteran. ENLISTING IN AIR SERVICE IS HALTED

Alan R. Hawley of Aero Club Calls It to Attention of the President.

CAUSED BY LACK OF FUNDS

Department of Aeronautics, He Suggests, as One Remedy for the Existing Situation.

In a letter sent to President Wilson yesterday Alan R. Hawley, President of the Aero Club of America, called the President's attention to the fact that the Signal Corps is refusing further enlistments for the air service, and urged that steps be taken immediately to correct past mistakes. Mr. Hawley wrote:

"A number of men who had applied for admission in the air service of the army have advised the Aero Club of America that they have been notified by the Signal Corps authorities that no further enlistments are being accepted at this time. Secretary Baker's report, published recently, stated there were less than 4,000 aviators under training, yet it will take 20,000 aviators to keep 5,000 aviators on the fighting front continuously for one year. In answer to our inquiries we were advised that no further enlistments are accepted because there is a lack of training fields and of aeronautic equipment, and that these cannot be provided because there are no funds available for the extension of the air service.

"We submit, Mr. President, that this is a condition which threatens the cause of the Allies more seriously than anything else. The Allies must be able to count on not less than 25,000 American aviators. The percentage of replacements needed in the air service has increased greatly in the last six months, and will further increase in the coming year, because there is much more aerial fighting, attacking troops from the air, bombing at low altitudes, and night raiding.

"This condition today is analogous to the condition which existed last October in the American aircraft situation, when the work of developing additional sources of supplies for aircraft and motors practically stopped, notwithstanding the fact that the Italian reverses and the Russian collapse demanded imperatively that our program be tripled in size. The Aero Club of America officials urged and pleaded for prompt consideration of this new condition at the time, and pointed out that it was absolutely necessary to immediately give two billion dollars additional appropriations for extending the aircraft program. That was six months ago, when prompt action would have prevented the confusion and mistakes which were subsequently made.

"The main cause of the present deplorable condition of our aircraft program was that the authorities in charge tried to make 20,000 airplanes do the work of 80,000. The original program did not take into consideration that it takes an average of two airplanes to give an aviator the one hundred hours of preliminary and advanced training needed to make him fit for the present-day highly specialized work of a military aviator. Nor did it take into consideration that it takes close to 100 per cent. replacements per month in airplanes and motors to keep aviators equipped for fighting. Nor did it take into consideration that it takes 40 per cent. replacements in aviators per month to keep up the fighting personnel of aero squadrons. The number of airplanes under construction today is not sufficient to even give the preliminary and advanced training to the number of aviators the United States must supply within the coming twelve months.

"Lacking funds necessary to place additional orders, the authorities changed the orders which they had placed, so as to meet the requests from France and from the different allies for different types of machines. This caused the setbacks which have resulted in the aircraft program—which is still the same program made at the time when Italy was victorious and Russia was still fighting—being behind by several months.

"We agree with the members of Congress who advise us that those in charge of the present aircraft program have failed to make good and that it is hardly possible to expect better from the same organization if conducted by the same authorities on the present plan of action. We have followed the aircraft program step by step, and are familiar with the inside problems that have caused the delays. These delays are numerous, but the main ones are:

(1) Lack of concentrated responsibility, authority, and control in the management of aerial matters.

(2) Lack of sufficient appropriations to extend the aircraft program to meet the military needs of the Allies.

(3) Lack of touch between the authorities dealing with the strategic side of the war and the authorities having charge of the supplying of aircraft and aviators needed to build American and allied air forces.

(4) The lack of a Government department having the authority and organization necessary to deal with all aircraft matters and prevent delays due to division of responsibility, bureaucratic jealousies and official squabbles over matters of departmental jurisdiction, duplication of efforts, &c. The present Aircraft Board is only an advisory board and has no power to act or to get the necessary organization to extend or carry out an extended aircraft program.

"To correct the situation, two successive steps must be taken, as follows:

(1) The immediate appointment of an Assistant Secretary of War and an Assistant Secretary of the Navy to represent the army and navy, respectively, in the Aircraft Board. This is to solve the immediate problems while the second step is being taken.

(2) The creation of a Department of Aeronautics, based on the British plan, which places the air services under a separate Department of Aeronautics, the head of which is independent of, although co-operating closely with, the War and Navy Departments.

"The British Government went through every one of the troubles we have gone through in connection with our air service. The official reports of the investigation of the British Air Service in 1916 show that there were scandals and charges, countercharges and confusion, just as we have in the United States today. After three years of trying different plans, the military and naval authorities and other branches of the British Government came to the conclusion that the only solution was a separate Department of Aeronautics, with an Air Minister at the head, whose functions are identical with the duties of the War Minister and the First Lord of the Admiralty."

ALDERMEN TAKE UP FOOD WASTE BILL

Measure Suggested by Broadway Association Provides Fine for Violators.

COLORADO BEANS COMING

Grain Corporation Expects to Sell 1,000 Carloads at 10 Cents a Pound or Less.

An ordinance calculated to stop waste of foodstuffs by making it punishable by a fine of not more than $50 was discussed at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Aldermen. President Smith urged the adoption of the ordinance, and although the majority of the members seemed to favor it, the measure was referred to a special committee for further consideration.

"A short time ago a committee from the Broadway Association, consisting of Jefferson De Mott Thompson, Leon Weinstock, and August Janssen, brought to my attention a condition of waste of foodstuffs that Mr. Janssen claimed came under his personal supervision in the course of a tour of inspection through certain sections of the city," Mr. Smith said. "Wilful waste at any time is sinful, and at a time like this it is criminal. President Wilson, calling upon the country to organize for war, among other things said that America now had an opportunity to remedy her unpardonable fault of waste in foodstuffs of all kinds.

"The purpose of the ordinance is to fix, if it be possible, the responsibility for the waste spoken of in the letter signed by August Janssen, Chairman of the Food Conservation Committee of the Broadway Association."

The Grain Corporation of the United States Food Administration requested the Federal Food Board yesterday to assist in the distribution and sale of 1,000 carloads of "pinto" beans which are being brought East from Colorado to relieve the scarcity of white beans in this part of the country. The shortage of white beans has put the price of that product up 18 and 20 cents a pound. The pinto beans will probably be sold at 10 cents a pound or less.

Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams yesterday concluded his hearing of the cases of the big egg dealers, Swift & Co., who are charged with having assisted in the distribution and sale of 150,000 dozen eggs last January at a price far above the prices allowed by the regulations. C. H. Zinn & Co., brokers in eggs and poultry, were defendants to the same complaint. The evidence showed the C. H. Zinn & Co., acting as brokers for Swift & Co., procured the eggs in question at 48½ cents a dozen from a Western shipper, Elmer Wood, when the price fixed for those eggs by the Food Administrator was 43 cents plus 5 per cent. profit, or 45.15 cents a dozen.

Mr. Williams would not make his decision public yesterday, but declared that he would send certain recommendations to Food Administrator Hoover within the next two days.

Delehanty-McIntyre Case Near End.

Through the signing yesterday by attorneys in the suit brought by James A. Delehanty to oust Judge John F. McIntyre from his seat in General Sessions of a stipulation as to what the testimony of 4,700 election officers yet to be called before Supreme Court Justice Sawyer and a jury would be, it is expected that the case will be closed this week. In the last two weeks the court and jury have heard the testimony of 300 election officers. The recount has already shown the election of ex-Judge Delehanty over Judge McIntyre.

Prompt deliveries are increasingly necessary—motor trucks offer the only means of making them with certainty. In advance of rush seasons business houses are looking to their transportation facilities.

John Mathews, soda fountains, mineral waters, New York, use an Autocar motor truck to reach their trade.

"With the Autocar we are able to supply out-of-town customers we could not have reached with our regular teaming system," they say. "One Autocar is doing work that used to require three or four teams."

DENIES RAILROADS HAVE FALLEN DOWN

Wonders Accomplished, A. H. Smith Says, in Spite of Lack of Capital.

MORE TERMINALS NEEDED

Tells Rotary Club That Although Revenue Increased Investors Received $120,000,000 Less.

The operating revenue of the railroads of the United States last year were greater by $415,716,868 than in 1916, but their expenses increased during the same period by $476,463,154, while taxes increased by more than $60,000,000, according to Regional Director Alfred H. Smith of the Eastern Railroads, who spoke last night at the Rotary Club in the Hotel McAlpin.

"In other words," Mr. Smith said, "the increased service which the railroads gave, according to the tabulation of earnings and expenses of all American railroads which has just been completed, produced an increase of more than $400,000,000 in operating income in 1917, without increase in rates, but at the same time the investors who own the railroads received $120,000,000 less in 1917 than they had in the year before.

"That is for the whole country. The Eastern railroads were hit much the hardest, their income, in spite of vastly increased service, showing a decrease of 19.4 per cent. Any business man who faced such a showing at the end of his busiest year would consider it pretty serious, and as lending little encouragement to growth.

"Passenger transportation last year amounted to 35,000,000,000 passenger miles—equivalent to 350 miles per year for every inhabitant—or equal to an annual trip from New York to Rochester, or to Portland, Me., or to Baltimore, and return, for each individual. The unit of freight service is hauling a ton a mile. The average per ton-mile charge of American railroads is about 7 mills, the lowest on record and lowest in the world. That means carrying a ton over four miles for a three-cent postage stamp. Gauged by the dollar-of-pay measure, our railroads give four times as much as those of Germany. They pay higher wages, give better service and more of it—by every standard of comparison."

Mr. Smith said that the most serious drawback to the railroads in their effort to handle the unprecedented traffic of the present time was a shortage of terminal facilities, which railroad men foresaw ten years ago, but were unable to prevent because of the decreased earnings and investing power of railroads during that period. He said:

"The railroads were the pioneer advocates of 'preparedness' in their own field. Following the business boom of 1907 the late James J. Hill told the public that their railroads required an investment of $1,000,000,000 a year for at least five years, if they were to keep pace with the country's needs. He emphasized that the most vital need was bigger terminals. Every railroad since then has been trying to convince the public of this need. It has now become plain to all that the railroads are no bigger than their terminal capacity—their unloading facilities."

Mr. Smith denied the oft-repeated statements that the railroads had fallen down last year. Considering badly disturbed labor conditions, diminished net earnings, and the state of the railroad plant due to the lack of money for investment, he said that the railroads had performed wonders in 1917. He said:

"The increased freight service was upward of 15 per cent. greater than the preceding year, due to intensified efforts by the railroad army and some measurde of better co-operation. Instead of breaking down the railroads have distinctly 'speeded up.' They have increased their average loads, both carloads and trailoads, and have increased their mileage of equipment and at every point have exerted themselves successfully in rendering more service to meet the tremendous demands precipitated by the war.

"This year began badly, because the railroads were staggered by the terrific weather of the first two months of the year, but with better weather, the railroads have shown that the improvement is continuous.

"During the twenty days of the past month in the Eastern district, 2,715,198 cars were loaded and received from connections, an increase of 50,000 carloads in this short period over the record of the previous year."

The total of "cars above normal," which means cars standing still on sidetracks because the entire facilities of the railroads are engaged in moving other freight, was 44,000 yesterday, Mr. Smith said, as against 161,000 cars on Feb. 6, when the "peak" of congestion was reached. He said:

"The congestion against which the railroads struggled is being steadily reduced, despite exceedingly heavy freight movement, particularly of food products for export to our army and allies. There are still large quantities of freight accumulated at North Atlantic ports, though less than three months ago, and special measures are being taken to dispose of this.

"The Government drafted the railroad companies, as it drafted its men, and they are expected to give first devotion and maximum service to the nation throughout the crisis. The different companies, large and small, have temporarily merged their identities, and as the troops in service are merely known by numbers and regiments, so the railroads during the war are being commanded and operated as one great army. The organization of the wartime operation has brought tasks and problems similar to those of mustering our great military units and hastily changing from the ways of peace."

man, non-partisan candidate. The rest of the Socialist city ticket at that time was in doubt.

SOCIALISTS BEATEN IN CHICAGO ELECTION

Loyalty Issue Wins in Aldermanic Contest—Rainey Elected to Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 2.—The Aldermanic election in this city was fought on the issue exclusively of loyalty. The loyalists won. Every Socialist candidate was defeated.

In the thirty-five wards of Chicago in each of which one Alderman was elected today, there was a Socialist candidate in all save two. They went down to defeat. Eight thousand fewer men and women combined voted the Socialist ticket today than in the last judicial election when men alone voted.

Alderman Rodriguez, Socialist, from the Fifteenth Ward, was defeated by Oscar H. Olson, Republican, not withstanding the fact that the Socialist had the indorsement of the Municipal Voters' League. The defeat of Rodriguez leaves the Socialist representation in the City Council at two members. The Council now stands: Democrats, 45; Republicans, 22; Socialists, 2, and Independent, 1.

John W. Rainey, Democrat, was elected to Congress for the Fourth District vacancy. He won by a clear majority of 5,637 votes over his two opponents, Kasimir P. Gugis, Socialist, who got O. W. Christopher, Republican, who received 4,310 votes, and Kasimir P. Gugis, Socialist, who got 2,301 votes.

Bloomington voted dry by a majority of 2,138 votes.

Women kept Moline in the dry column Moline adjoins Rock Island, where the Federal Government has been waging a war against the presence of saloons near the arsenal.

Voters of Rock Island have cleaned the city in response to the demands of the Federal Government, and voted out forty-one saloons by a majority of 800 votes. Fulton Township also voted dry.

HARTFORD DEMOCRATS ELECT ENTIRE TICKET

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, April 2.—By about the same plurality accorded to Woodrow Wilson in 1916, Hartford today vindicated herself of any suspicion of lukewarm loyalty, electing John A. Gleason, a democrat, to the office of Town and City Clerk on the issue of Americanism by a margin of 3,382 votes.

Henry F. Smith, a native of Prussia, who Gleason defeated, and has been in office nearly twenty years, carried down to defeat with him the Republican Mayor, Frank S. Hagarty, against whom not a breath of disloyalty or lack of ardent patriotism has ever been uttered. The Democratic nominee, Richard J. Kinsella, won over Hagarty by about 500 votes.

Mr. Cleason, who has been a political writer on The Hartford Times, had a vote of 7,889 to 4,507 for Smith, who admitted he had contributed toward German war funds, but declared that he had been a loyal American since last April.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—A prayer for victory of the allied arms, a "lasting and righteous peace," and for the men "defending the cause of truth and freedom in the awful battle being waged across the seas," was made today in the Senate by the Right Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of York.

The invocation closed with the Lord's prayer, in which Senators and spectators joined.

Roi Cooper Megrue who invented the "noisless war play," even as Bully Bottom invented the roarless stage lion, was put to shame last night at the Casino. Lincoln J. Carter, who used to astonish Third Avenue and Fourteenth Street with the melodrama of race-track and railway collisions, emerged from retirement to show a degenerate world the proper way to wage war in the theatre.

Does he hesitate to affright the ladies? Not Lincoln J.! Pistols bark, machine guns rattle, Jack Johnsons roar, and, last but not least in volume of sound, the tire of a Red Cross flivver explodes. That was a property joke in the very best manner of Third Avenue, though a Broadway audience failed to flag it.

The result of so much sound and fury proved even more appalling. Clods of earth were torn up and hurled across the footlights; walls crumbled, filling the auditorium with brick dust. What with the smell of burned saltpeter, the audience had fair need of gas masks. In days to come, no doubt, the coat checking department will be changed to a concession renting them, together with commodious ear muffs.

Patriotism was rampant throughout. Once again the Hun was assaulted with all the resources of the English language. And after the great scene in the trenches Mr. Carter himself emerged before the footlights to carry on the linguistic hate. Except when he disclaimed any desire of gain on the part of his producing manager "my friend Wood," the speech rang true enough. A man whose acquaintance with A. H. Woods is so recent that he does not know how his name goes may well confine himself to patriotic generalities. As regards these Mr. Carter is strong medicine, and the result of his play, and of his entr'acte speeches, may well be of value as propaganda. It takes all sorts to make a world, and a world war.

The scenic effects were no less stirring. In the first act we saw the boys in olive drab march by on Fifth Avenue, with a multitude of Hun-hating visages painted on the backdrop, while another multitude of real flags fluttered from canvas windows. The second act showed a Belgian inn, with American forces somewhat miraculously in occupation of the living room and a spy plot in occupation of the cellar. The third act witnessed an airplane encounter in the clouds, the audience looking downward, upon an earth painted like a war map, through clouds in the similitude of an avenue of doughnuts—at the end of which the warring planes looped the loop on wires.

The last act showed hero and heroine mounting to the tower of a church within the enemy's lines. The murdered boches as they went, without a quiver, and having reached the bellfry, the heroine pealed out our national air on the chimes, to the tune of which the American Army, (still miraculously in Belgium,) drove out a platoon of Huns into the wings. If this sort of thing is worth your money, you get your money's worth, while Mr. Carter and Mr. Woods, (alias Wood,) rejoice patriotically.

James L. Crane was the ace. In the first act he was a horrid pacifist, but when he got into his stride he was surely a fighter. Mr. Carter thus appears a keen observer of the psychology of pacifism as demonstrated so often in peace conventions. Sue MacManamy was the spying villainess, and most alluring, as is the way with people like her on the stage. Marion Coakley was the Belgian heroine, and a very charming one.

GALLI-CURCI HAS LARYNGITIS

Rosa Raisa Takes Her Concert Tour —Russian's Recital Here.

Rosa Raisa has halted preparations to sail for South America next Tuesday, owing to a telegraphic inquiry yesterday as to whether she would fill a number of concerts for Amelita Galli-Curci, who is ill in the West. Mme. Galli-Curci, after singing in Chicago last Sunday, became so ill with laryngitis that she went to Minneapolis for treatment, cancelling her concert Monday at Buffalo and others beginning tomorrow with the New York Symphony Orchestra in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Lucy Gates will sing these three, and Miss Raisa has been asked to fill several more already sold out for the Italian prima donna's tour at fees which caused the younger artist to cable for a postponement of her season at Buenos Aires.

The Russian soprano, at her first matinee recital in Carnegie Hall yesterday, had two huge American flags over the stage and a patriotic introduction in the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the audience, directed by W. L. Chapman, with Louis H. Dressler at the organ and Alice M. Shaw at the piano. Miss Raisa, accompanied by Richard Hageman of the Metropolitan, surprised her admirers with a program of many favorite songs and fewer operatic airs than she had given at any appearance since her first New York engagement some months ago with the Chicago Opera Company.

Olive Fremstad and Sophie Braslau were among those who heard, with shining eyes and shouts of approval, the first exhibition of Raisa's great dramatic talent applied to little lyrics of the more intimate sort, Russian songs by Arensky and Rachmaninoff, and many encores in the singer's native tongue. The galleries shouted also for the Hebrew "Elli, Elli," which they did not get. The singer added Burleigh's "Just You" in English and di Nogera's "My Love Is a Muleteer" after Weckerlin's old French "bergerette," "Jeunes Fillettes," as well as Sibella's "Twilight Dreams" and Buzzi-Peccia's "When I Go Alone."

Miss Raisa has before now proved herself a singer of remarkable natural powers. Her sustained phrasing and wealth of golden tone earned an ovation for the great air, rarely attempted, of the "Casta Diva" from "Norma," which fitted not inaptly among the older pieces such as Pergolesi's "Si Tu m'Ami," and others more familiar from "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Il Trovatore." There was in conclusion a duet from Verdi's early opera, "Louisa Miller," with Giacomo Rimini, who also gave a baritone air from "The Masked Ball."

YVETTE GUILBERT SINGS.

Gives an Entire Program from Rare Poems of Baudelaire.

Yvette Guilbert, closing her season with three recitals at the Maxine Elliott Theatre this week, began at yesterday's matinée with a departure, an entire program from rare poems of Baudelaire, the French translator of Poe, and all but unknown for his own works, which, with musical settings by Maurice Rollinat, were heard on this occasion for the first time in New York.

Readers of Baudelaire are most familiar with his share in a single volume in English, the "Pastels in Prose," from various authors, but less so with his original "Fleurs de Mal" and fantasies such as "Les Nuits" or the "Sensualités Amoureuses" and "La Mort des Amants" sung by Guilbert. The French artist, who spoke in plain English about these poems, conveyed in her singing the touch of mystery in an "Invocation Mystique," of subtlety in "Les Sons et les Parfums." Three final songs were from poems of the composer Rollinat.

REPEAL OF SUFFRAGE SOUGHT BY WOMEN

Antis Start Movement for Resubmission of the Question to the People.

TO RAISE FUND OF $50,000

Old Organization Is Transformed Into a Fighting Campaign Unit.

The deferred annual meeting of the New York State Association Opposed to Woman's Suffrage, now in process of transformation into the Women Voters' Anti-Suffrage Party, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of the Misses Hewitt, 9 Lexington Avenue, and about 100 women present expressed firm determination to take up the campaign for the resubmission of woman's suffrage to the people of the State. Plans for a detailed political organization down to the minutest units, worked out with the assistance of men experts, were presented as the basis from which the new campaign was to be started, and preparations were made for the raising of a campaign fund which for the present is set at $50,000.

Leaders in past anti-suffrage campaigns, both here and in Massachusetts, talked to the audience and laid down as a primary requisite for success in the future that everybody must work as hard as possible. "Suffrage has won its way to its present place," said Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, President of the National Association Opposed to Woman's Suffrage, "largely because there were women in the suffrage ranks who were willing to sacrifice everything to the advancement of what they believed was right. We disagree with their theories, we abhor their methods, we despise some of their leaders but we cannot help admiring their perseverance.

"May God fill our hearts with righteous indignation and touch our tongues with a divine fire of eloquence so that we may carry the gospel of anti-suffrage, anti-socialism, anti-feminism, anti-demoralization into every corner of the land with such an inspiring trumpet call that a mighty army of believers will rise and follow our flag to victory."

Mrs. Edwin Post, one of the leaders of the movement in Massachusetts, said: "Suffrage would never have won in New York, even with socialism, if every one of our splendid, consecrated women had done her duty as an anti-suffragist. If we had done this from the beginning, the suffragists would be eating out of our hand by now instead of our eating out of theirs, as we are practically doing in Massachusetts. There is a general feeling that something is threatening us. Get together, American patriots!"

The meeting was held under the Chairmanship of Mrs. Charles S. Fairchild, the incoming President, and the first speaker was the retiring President, Miss Mary G. Kilbreth, who declared: "Woman suffrage in this State can be repealed. It depends only on our conviction, our energy, and our money and how much of the three we are willing to give. We propose to make a political enrollment of the vast mass of women who have not been heard from, who have the normal interests and occupations of women leading busy and industrious home-keeping lives, who have a definite job in life as women and do not wish to enter the political arena. Our work will be war work—straight war work. The morale of the population behind the lines ranks with the troops and munitions at the front. Remember that practically every pacifist is a suffragist."

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Charles S. Fairchild; Vice Presidents, Miss Gertrude L. Hoyt, Mrs. George W. Wickersham, Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. William D. Guthrie, and Miss Georgine Iselin; Honorary Vice Presidents, Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, and Miss Alice Hill Chittenden; Treasurer, Mrs. Harald de Raasleff; Secretary, Mrs. K. B. Lapham; Executive Committee, Mrs. John A. Church, Mrs. F. S. Wheeler, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mrs. Henry Seligman, Miss Tuckerman, Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood, and Miss Anna O'Brien; Chairman Organization Committee, Mrs. Edwin Ford.

Volunteers were called for to serve on the Finance Committee. Two or three women volunteered for subordinate places, but nobody was willing to be Chairman, so it was finally decided to leave this to the appointment of the President.

STRANSKY DECLARES HE STANDS FOR AMERICA

Philharmonic Leader, Refuting Charge He Is Pro-German, Gives Instances of His Loyalty.

Josef Stransky, leader of the Philharmonic Society, made a public statement yesterday in reply to the letter received by a Philharmonic Director at Monday's annual meeting, when it appeared that persons not in that society had sought to oust the conductor from his present place by charging that he was pro-German. Mr. Stransky, in his reply to matters contained in the letter, said:

While I readily admit that during the first part of the war my sympathies were with the German people, I was not in favor of the policies of the German Government. Since America's entrance into the war I decided to take a definite stand with my adopted country, and the following lines will prove, I think, that I have fullheartedly taken that step:

First—As a natural expression of my feelings, I opened the Philharmonic season with the playing of the Star-Spangled Banner without suggestion or instruction from any side, and I have conducted it ever since wherever the Philharmonic Orchestra has appeared.

Second—I came from Bohemia, of Czecho-Slav parents, and it is a known fact that in this present world struggle, Bohemia is fighting for her independence and that she favors the Allies.

Third—My sympathies ever since I came to this country have been outspoken for America. In fact, I have renounced my native country, and taken out my American papers with the intention of becoming an American and staying in America.

Fourth—The letter writer refers to the fact that at a Philharmonic concert Lady Speyer was in my box. Why doesn't he also refer to the fact that Mrs. Jay took luncheon at my home a short time ago, or that the Scottish officer, Seumas, Chief of Clan Shearghuis of Stra-Chur, frequently appeared in my box? I have never spoken to Lady Speyer about politics. Like every one else, I read in the papers that Sir Edgar and Lady Speyer were in favor at the British Court, and that they were asked by King George to retain their title.

Fifth—The late Hugo Reisinger was a personal friend of mine long before I came to America, and I naturally retained my friendship for his family, no member of which has ever appeared to me in any other light than as a good American.

Sixth—It is quite true that I knew Count Bernstorff, but I met him only at the time when he was still persona grata at the White House, and when any number of Americans were meeting him.

Seventh—At the beginning of the last season I donated my services to a Red Cross concert in Brooklyn, and also for the sufferers in Halifax.

Eighth—I was the first one to suggest that orchestras should visit camps, and I conducted two orchestral concerts which were given by the Philharmonic Society at Camp Dix and Camp Upton, where I dined with the officers.

Ninth—I have given contributions to several American war charities. I am a contributing member of the American Red Cross. I have lately sent a contribution to the Junior American Guard. I am a member of the society for the support of needy musicians in France, and following a speech which I made before the Philharmonic Orchestra, every member of the orchestra joined that organization to support our fellow-musicians in France.

Tenth—It was my suggestion before the Philharmonic Board that caused the elimination of compositions of living German composers from Philharmonic programs for the duration of the war.

LAGGING AIRPLANE PRODUCTION.

In its review of what the Aircraft Production Board has not accomplished in the nine months of its existence the Aeronautical Society of America says that as soon as the Germans learned that performance was falling far behind promise and that a species of paralysis had fastened upon the airplane industry in the United States they took over 400 woodworking factories and set to work furiously to build enough planes to win the mastery of the air on the western front before the ambitious American program could be realized.

The German output was recently 700 airplanes a day, and it is doubtless increasing. According to the Aeronautical Society, less than 5 per cent. of the facilities of this country are enlisted in airplane production, and the society contends that the wooden and metal parts of from 25,000 to 30,000 machines could have been fabricated in six months. As to the Liberty motors to put into the planes, it asserts that the output should now be 1,000 a day, the estimate being based upon the production of 12,000 automobile engines a day by the motor car factories. Unfortunately, the Liberty motor has not been the dazzling triumph that Secretary BAKER proclaimed it when he said, in the Official Bulletin of Sept. 30, that "in power, speed, serviceability, and minimum weight the new engine invites comparison with the best that the European war has produced." In the six months that have elapsed the Liberty engine has not lived up to the reputation given it by the optimistic Secretary of War; true, it has undergone tinkering enough to be perfect; yet the experts vote it not fast enough for a fighting plane and too heavy for a reconnoissance machine. Its future is debatable.

Today, as Senator LODGE said in the Senate on March 26, "we have not a fighting plane in France"—that is to say, an American-built fighting plane. Mr. LODGE declares that "we have spent $840,000,000 for airplanes in the last year." Perhaps it would be nearer the mark to say that that vast sum has been available for airplane purposes, including the training of aviators. The appropriation made last June was $640,000,000, to launch and execute our great program. With this sum a powerful naval fleet could be built; how powerful may be judged from the fact that our forty battleships, including the giant California, of 32,000 tons, not yet in commission, must have cost, guns, turrets, and all equipment, much less than the appropriation provided by Congress in June, 1917, to build airplanes to win the war on the western front. The contract price for the hull and machinery of the dreadnought California was $7,800,000. A published table of the cost of our forty battleships, exclusive of armament and equipment, makes the total $253,619,770, but the full figure for the later vessels, the dreadnoughts, is not given. The difference between $640,000,000, the appropriation for airplanes, and $253,619,770 is $386,380,230. No methodical calculation is, therefore, needed to convince anybody that what the Government was to spend on airplanes would complete and equip a great fleet of battleships.

How the appropriation and increments have been spent or are being laid out has not been divulged, but what the country does know is that the American army in France has not got an air fleet adequate to its needs. What a mockery it is to put it in that way! To make the best of a bad case Senator HITCHCOCK says that "we are not behind time in the delivery of training airplanes, of which "we have about 2,000"; also that American combat machines are really being made, and the curve of production will begin to rise this month. No responsible official promises more than twoscore in July. "Our aviators across the water," admits Mr. HITCHCOCK, "are not now flying in combat "planes because France is not able "to deliver any of them." To say, as the Senator does, that we are only ninety days behind in production seems misleading; it certainly assumes a prodigious output at what is called the "peak" of production, of which there is not the slightest evidence at present.

The Aeronautical Society's indictment is called a protest to the American people. What can they do about the lame performance of the Aircraft Production Board, which has imperilled the fortunes of the Allies in the field? The American people can at least insist upon having the truth, upon tearing away the veil of secrecy that has concealed the inefficiency of the responsible authorities; the American people can demand that all our facilities be pressed into service, even if the Government has to take them over, and that the execution of a rational program be speeded under the supervision of a man of the type of EDWARD STETTINIUS; finally, they can ask for an accounting.

THE QUEBEC RIOTS.

Incandescent as are Nationalist politics, separatist passion, and inherited ancient and carefully stimulated recent prejudices in many parts of the Province of Quebec, lovers of the old town of Quebec will be glad to believe that the anti-conscriptionist riots that have been going on there for some days were hatched from the outside. Strange faces have abounded. Outsiders have been foremost and loudest in the demonstrations. In the "heaving" of bricks and shooting of revolvers from housetops and alleyways, the random sniping, the chance hand of sympathetic ruffianism as well as of organized emeute may be detected. In its insults, assaults, and batterings, long patiently borne by the soldiers, the crowd was the mean bully that such crowds are.

Almost amusing, high-comic, indeed, were this a time of peace and ordinary broken heads, is the Nationalist chief, Mr. ARMAND LAVERGNE, who took, or tried to take, charge of Quebec, sought to become the master of the situation, and in a beautiful imaginative moment insisted that Sir ROBERT BORDEN'S Government had set him at the helm of things. Among those fogs and snowdrifts one seems to see a sun-baked Provençal statesman, some worthy colleague of Tartarin of Tarascon.

It is not for the United States, at least it is not for New York, remembering 1863, to look with too frosty a face of superiority upon this fight in Quebec against the Military Service act. It is well that the violence of disloyalty should show itself, if at all, in these critical hours. The contrast speaks for itself. It is easy to rage against the rioters, against men false to France, to Great Britain, to democracy, men without a country, who shirk their duty, range themselves with the enemies of civilization. From such blind, misguided men and their sinister misguiders it is good to turn to the main preservers of order in Quebec, the French-Canadian conscripts, largely green recruits, who have been as calm as veterans, good natured as well as brave, never losing their heads. Men to be proud of, they are enough to justify conscription; they honor and exalt the French-Canadian name and race. They help to redeem the follies and the crimes of selfish teachers and leaders of a gallant people. We see in those raw levies the heroic stuff which Mr. PHILIP GIBBS painted for us in yesterday's TIMES, the epic of a machine-gun detachment "organized in the early days of the war by "a French-Canadian officer," of late down on the south of the line:

> These Canadians have fought running fights with the German artillery, have engaged German cavalry and smashed them, have checked enemy columns crossing ridges and pouring onward, have scattered large bodies of men surrounding British troops, and in ten days of crowded life have destroyed many German storm troops and helped to hold up the tide of their advance.

French Canadian, British Canadian, American Canadian—let us be grateful to all the brave soldiers fighting for us, and not bother too much about a pack of scurvy malingerers and rioters.

PERSUASION.

It must pain all admirers of suasion and persuasion to hear from Albany that prohibition is "dead this year," because over the week-end effort to defect Senators WICKS of Oneida, NEWTON of Livingston, and ARGETSINGER of Monroe from the Wet ranks failed.

Perhaps the conversion of Senator ARGETSINGER cannot be expected so long as the Republican Sage of Rochester, Mr. GEORGE W. ALDRIDGE, sits among the scoffers, but surely Mr. WICKS and Mr. NEWTON could have been pierced by the arrows of conviction if they had been properly attacked. By what methods is even a hardened Wet to be turned from the error of his ways? By speaking gently to the erring, by tranquil reasoning, by tender appeal. The latest number of The American Issue, organ of the Anti-Saloon League, contains an article by the State Superintendent of that institution, an article which is a model of the winning gentleness that softens and converts. Thus:

> The almost criminal political idiocy of Senator ELON R. BROWN, the legislative exponent of the Barnes-Brown-Booze bunch, assisted by his me-too lieutenant, Speaker SWEET, who has been hypnotized by the buzzing of the Gubernatorial bee.

If Senator NEWTON, Senator WICKS, yes, even Senator ARGETSINGER and Mr. ALDRIDGE, had been sprinkled with honey dew and molasses like this, they couldn't have resisted, and prohibition at Albany would have had a kinder fate.

CORPORATE CARE FOR INDUSTRIAL WELFARE.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has joined those private corporations which are setting an example of regard for the welfare of their workers. It has used group insurance as a means of giving them old age and service pensions, and sick benefits. As the announcement is accompanied by an increase of wages, there can be no suggestion that the benefits are inspired by a wish to make benevolence a cover for economy. The workers get their benefits free and clear at the cost of the corporation. Within the last thirty months it has practically doubled the payments to common labor and has increased the wages of other classes by 79 per cent. The increase just announced adds three millions to the company's costs, a considerable sum, which would be largely increased if other Standard subsidiaries should be led by experience to see the benefits to them of liberality to their help.

There is reason and fitness in such action by our private corporations. They are prospering greatly. A table published yesterday by THE TIMES shows that their profits are so large that their excess taxes range up to 46 per cent. of net income. When excess profit taxes average 15 per cent. on common stock there is an indication of liberal profits, of which no better use could be made than by division which shall attach the workers to the enterprise in these days of shifting labor. Beyond this business reason there are many cases which justify belief that captains of industry are genuinely desirous of sharing their prosperity with those who helped them to it, thus candidly forestalling a demand for "social justice" which could not be so easily controlled. A division of profits differs from a division of property. Property can be divided but once. Profits can be divided so long as they continue. Division of profits, therefore, is in a way an insurance of profits by promoting a disposition to allow or to increase what would be destroyed if the property were turned over to those not interested in its preservation.

Mr. SCHWAB had a vision the other day of a "social renaissance," in which the "workman without property will dominate the world." In that case the world will be as propertyless as Russia under Bolshevist rule, and as unhappy as Russia, which has learned that poverty and idleness are the result of the abolition of property. A man who inherits land enough to support him must labor for his living. A mechanic who gives his children an art or trade gives them the equivalent of a landed inheritance, which is worthless without labor. A worker who capitalizes his wages finds himself a man of property, and he can manage his wages better than he could property. Just as the brain needs hands, so hands need brain power. Wages buy property management for the wage-earners as truly as they buy muscle power for the employers. The manual worker who could not build up an enterprise can have for himself an undivided share in one so long as he is the faithful worker of a loyal employer, such as are becoming numerous in these later days.

The benefits given in Germany by Government are given here by both Government and private corporations. So far as they are a duty of society they may be given by Government well enough, but it is plain that the connection is less direct than when they are given by the industry in which the profits are made. Government lacks the means to "make" taxes; it takes them, and the waste in distribution is both great and unjust. There is fitness in distributions in the oil trade, or steel trade, or any other trade, in proportion both to the need of the worker and his contribution to the assets from which the relief proceeds. There is no need of explanation why this work is done by private corporations rather than by public. Our railways and public utilities lack the resources from which to make such payments. Taxes which are light for profit-earning corporations are burdensome to concerns with deficits. The interest of passengers and shippers has been so much thought of that there was not left enough for justice to the wage-earners who serve them. Now the result is seen—the taxpayers are to be called upon to make good the wage fund, and the process is less welcome than the voluntary action of prosperous corporations.

It is borrowing trouble to ask what will happen when profits and wages and relief funds cease rising together. Will workers be as loyal on the decline as employers have been on the rise? The answer is not certainly in the negative. Once the workers come to see the solidarity of interest between themselves and those who fill the pay envelopes there will dawn a perception of the interest of the worker in the permanence as well as the prosperity of the source of their wages.

PUNISHMENT FOR THE DISLOYAL.

Tardily but with serious minds the national lawmakers are repairing the astonishing defects in the Federal statutes relating to seditious and disloyal utterances. Treason, as was shown by the result of the trial of the editors of a German-language newspaper published in Philadelphia, can be established only when an "overt act" has been committed. For that crime the punishment of death may be inflicted. Disloyalty manifested in speech is equally offensive and scarcely less dangerous, but the penalties imposed by existing law are grotesquely inadequate.

The bill unanimously reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday, after it had adopted Senator POINDEXTER'S amendment, prescribes penalties severe enough to be really deterrent. Under its provisions, whoever in the presence or hearing of others utters disloyal, threatening, violent, abusive, or seditious language about the Government, the Constitution, the President, the flag, or the uniform of the army and navy of the United States, or any words calculated to bring the Government or its institutions into contempt or disrepute, or calculated to incite resistance to Federal authority or to hamper the efforts of the Government in the prosecution of the war, may be punished by imprisonment of twenty years and a fine of $10,000. The Poindexter amendment further provides that "whoever shall by word or act support or favor the cause of the German Empire or its allies in the present war or by word or act oppose the cause of the United States therein," shall be subject to the same penalties.

These are punishments proportionate to the magnitude of the crime. Although it is becoming more prudent, less open, disloyalty is still rife, and manifestations of joy over recent German successes, toasts to the Kaiser, to HINDENBURG, and expressions of the hope that the German arms may yet triumph, are reported almost daily. These offenders are not our pacifists; they are now becomingly quiet, doubtless because of the moral conviction that when so flagrantly criminal and abominable a disturber of the peace as the German Empire has defied the force of civilization, discussion of peace and theories of peace must be deferred until he is overthrown and chained for a thousand years. The toasts to the Kaiser of which we hear nowadays are offered in the German language, and in places of German resort by Germans, actually alien enemies or other Germans whom birth or naturalization has not yet made American. These offenses are going to be made too dangerous to be persisted in. While we are at war with Germany utterances in support of the enemy or expressions of the hope that he may triumph cannot be tolerated. The bill reported by the Senate Committee, we hope, will be speedily enacted, and its provisions rigorously enforced. It may be expected further that, putting aside all soft squeamishness about inflicting the death penalty, Congress will duly provide that criminal acts designed to impede our preparations for war, acts which destroy property and endanger human life, like the blowing up of munition factories or warehouses or attempts to destroy ships, shall be punished by death.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Political Bars Let Down.

By the action taken on Monday, the New York Woman Suffrage Party placed both its leaders and its members as individuals exactly right with respect to the political groups into which the other voters of the United States have been and will be divided. By formal resolution, that is, they rescinded the rule hitherto forbidding affiliation by the women with any of the old parties and making such affiliation, when done, equivalent to resignation from the Woman Suffrage Party.

This action does, indeed, throw an amusing light on the protests which these same leaders have always made when anybody scolded them for not doing what they have now done, and charged them with endeavoring to draw, or rather to keep drawn, a sex line in politics. That, however, is a matter of no particular importance now, and it can soon be forgotten in appreciation of the fact that the Great Renunciation has been made, or, at any rate, the first long and essential step toward it taken. In the good time to come—we must all hope that it will be a good time—the Woman's Party will disappear in the general electorate where all enfranchised citizens belong, and the perils and inconveniences and antagonisms inevitably involved in the possession of political power by women, as such, will go with it.

That the complete disappearance of the Woman's Party is not to be immediate need excite no disquietude. Its survival is admittedly temporary. The leaders of that party think that they still have one legitimate task to perform—the pushing to enactment of the Anthony amendment to the Constitution—and to act on that belief is their right, whatever one may think as to its wisdom. By uniting as individuals with the old parties they will soon find full opportunity for the utilization of their energies and the display of their intelligence. They may be sure of a welcome from the several "machines"—a welcome which, whether entirely sincere or not, will be cordial in expression, and some of them are likely to find that they have gained influence, not lost it.

A Single Class Excluded.

In the general exultation over the new joys and profits and economies that have come to the nation as a result of the absurdly simple—and absurdly belated—action of setting the clocks ahead an hour for the Summer months, time should be taken for giving deserved commiseration to the one fraction of the population that loses by the change. People of the sort called night workers—those whose daily tasks begin somewhere in the neighborhood of 6 P. M. and continue until two or three hours after midnight—will have to be truly public-spirited not to dwell rather lugubriously in their minds on the fact that they have not gained, but lost, a daylight hour, and the very hour, too, that was about the most precious to them of all the twenty-four.

They will get, after the clocks have been set back in the Fall, no compensating advantage over the rest of us. It will simply be the ending of their present grievance. To that, if they want to be ill-tempered, they will say "Thank you for nothing!" for it will only put them back on a level, as regards sunlighted leisure time, with the neighbors whose good fortune in Summer they have not shared.

But of course the night workers will not be ill-tempered; they will be generous and kind, realizing that even though they do not share directly in the new privilege, they do so indirectly through the benefiting gained by the country as a whole. And, after all, though the night-working class includes not a few thousands of both men and women, taking this large country over, relatively they are but few. They are not the objects of a special spite, and everybody is, or will be when they think of it, sincerely sorry for the ill-luck that deprives them, through no fault of theirs, of participation in the common blessing.

And perhaps, after all, their luck is not so bad. The men in the trenches and on the firing line, according to all accounts, find that hardship in a good cause has satisfactions higher than any other, and that way lies joy for these other seeming stepchildren of Fortune.

Legislative Wisdom Illustrated.

A correspondent of The Houston (Texas) Post complains bitterly to that paper because the State Legislature has passed a law prohibiting the carrying of pistols by peace officers whose salaries are less than $40 a month. Up here in the North, in spite of all we have read about the new Texas, it is hard for us to realize that revolvers of the long, blue sort are not the common, every day and every night wear of all male Texans not in either of their infancies. Texas dry, and Texas unarmed, and Texas that doesn't touch a card, somehow doesn't seem to be Texas at all. The Post's correspondent, however, apparently complains, not because the pistol-carrying privilege has been still further restricted, but because the Legislature drew among peace officers a line the position of which he cannot understand.

The Post itself confesses a like incomprehension, but it does what it can to lighten the mystery by hazarding the suggestion that the legislators may have feared that a pistol in the hands of a man getting less than $40 a month would make a highwayman or a train robber out of him.

The theory is a plausible one. A man with that wage, these days, out of Texas as well as in it, would have to do something to increase his earnings, and if he did have a pistol his thoughts might naturally turn to some such avocation as the two mentioned. One does what he can and uses the tools he has, and in none of the tamer walks of life is a pistol of much utility.

Everything considered, the Texas Legislature seems to have known what it was about when it passed that law. Legislatures do, now and then, rarely as they get the credit for it.

"Germany's Honor."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a cable dispatch from The Hague printed in your issue of this morning, the following words are quoted from a recent editorial in the Vossische Zeitung: "Germany's honor and existence are at stake."

Inasmuch as, since the beginning of the war, Germany, in every conceivable relation of life—public and private, diplomatic, military, civil, and social—has notoriously flouted and trampled under foot the very name and thought of honor, I should like to propose that henceforward, throughout the entire English-speaking world, until the conclusion of a righteous peace, even the outward sound and semblance of the word "honor" be suppressed wherever occurring in relation with the word "German," and that for it be substituted the formula, "h—r," (to be pronounced "h-blank-r,") as an unmistakable token that the sacred word "honor" is not to be sullied by being so much as mentioned in connection with the German name—not even by denying that such a thing as German "h-blank-r" exists at present in the world.

HIGH FRENCH MORALE.

Praise for the Spirit of the Soldiers and the Women.

Dear —:

* * * On Sunday I think I saw at least 10,000 French soldiers. The thing that pleases me most is their spirit. Many of them are tired and wish the war was over, but they have no thought of giving up. They look well and have their toes in the ground. Their physical fitness is far beyond what I expected. This is true of both officers and men. Yesterday I stood alongside a lot of them who had been only ten minutes out of the trenches. * * *

My hat is off nearly all the time, in thought at least, to the women of France for what they are doing. I saw so many of them in the fields yesterday. They ought to have a secure place among the world's heroines. Don't be feeling, though, that France is being bled white. She is not. France is heroically determined, if not triumphant. There seems absolute confidence in this region that the line will hold. I think I have seen a thousand miles of trenches in the last ten days and as much barbed wire entanglement. The Germans have nothing on us as to gas. It is commonly reported here that they want to give up the whole gas business.

A Decision on Amendment Votes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of March 31 A. L. Shepard submits a plan for testing before the Supreme Court the validity of the recent submission by Congress of the prohibition amendment, and argues that my previous letter, showing that several of the existing amendments received less than a two-thirds vote of the members of the respective houses, proved only the "legislative interpretation" of the constitutional requirement as to size of vote in the two houses. I believe that most persons would agree with Mr. Shepard's statement that "no interpretation by Congress of the meaning of terms used in the Constitution is binding on the United States Supreme Court." On the other hand, in the absence of an explicit constitutional requirement of two-thirds of the members of the respective houses, it seems certain that the Supreme Court would be, though not technically bound, yet actually influenced, by the previous interpretations and practices of Congress with respect to amendments which have been a part of our Constitution for so many years. The method suggested by Mr. Shepard for securing a Supreme Court decision sustaining his contention on the point seems hopeless. The purpose of my previous letter was to suggest that it is futile for opponents of prohibition to contest its adoption by any such cumbersome procedure. If there are not stronger and more practical objections to national prohibition, the proposal for such an amendment would in any event soon receive the vote in the houses required by Mr. Shepard's interpretation.

Attention for Sick Soldiers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read "Doctors and the Line," by "A Line Officer," in Saturday's issue. There is one statement he makes which should not be allowed to stand unchallenged. He states that a soldier in need of medical attention must wait for the hour set for the treatment of such cases. This is not true. I am sure this officer did not intend to misstate, but his assertion is both misleading and harmful. A soldier taken sick will get attention day or night if he asks for it and his non-commissioned officer or officers attend to duty. The assertion that he must wait for sick call is absurd. The Medical Corps may have its shortcomings, but one hopeful fact remains, that no officer who have had actual experience on the firing line do not "knock" it.

A Coalition Government.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We want results. Democrats and Republicans in Congress as a whole are not working together on vital war problems. Bad blood is being stirred, ugly passions unloosed when there should be perfect teamwork. Should we have a coalition Government? Is party government best at this time? Should President Wilson take the initiative? Why not see General Wood at the White House? Why not consult with Senator Chamberlain rather than drift into an ugly row? What would Lincoln have done? What the people want is to win this war for "righteousness and lasting peace." The people care little who gets the glory, or the offices, or who insists on having his own way.

"Faithful Albion."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I cannot refrain from expressing gratification, which I am sure must be shared by all Englishmen (and women) in this, and European countries as well, for the tribute paid to my country in this time of sore trial in the beautiful and stately poem by Herman Montagu Donner, entitled, "Faithful Albion," in this morning's TIMES. In its simple yet dignified lines there is the deep emotional strain which forms—and must form—the true basis of every great poem. It will, I am sure, hearten every English bosom, as it has mine, to hear the anxious strain of these days of harrowing suspense, and I am truly grateful to the author of the poem as well as to you for printing it.

A Day of Grace.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is said that while the light burns the sinner may return. So as an appropriate celebration of April 6 let it be understood that those who have not been as loyal to the United States as they should have been receive a chance to redeem themselves, provided they have not been too much the other way. Of course this doesn't include spies or the twelve traitor Congressmen.

IMMUNE.

Now Spring has come, and over you young April
Shakes out its silver rain of garnered tears;
All perfumes and all flowers shall remind you
Of this one Spring through all the pilgrim years;
But I shall slumber deep, nor feel the rain,
Nor thrill to know that lilacs bloom again.

When roses lift their petals to the sunlight
You'll feel my kisses, warm as ruddy wine;
The little airs at evenfall and dawning
Shall whisper in the voice that once was mine;
But I beneath the grass shall lie so deep
I shall not hear them, in my quiet sleep.

When snows have come, upon the wings of Winter,
And all your room is full of mellow light,
Ah, then you'll feel my arms again enfold you,
And sigh for me, so lonely in the night!
But in my tranquil rest beneath the snow
I shall not know, dear heart, I shall not know.

ROOSEVELT TALKS FOR LOAN

Bond Workers Make Trip to Hear Him at Sagamore Hill.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., April 2.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt this afternoon addressed 250 persons connected with the Liberty Loan Committee of the New York District.

"I appeal to our people to back you to the limit of their power," said Colonel Roosevelt. "This is the people's war, it is America's war. If we do not win now, fighting abroad beside our Allies, then sooner or later our sons and grandsons will have to fight here at home without allies for their wives and their little sons.

"Germany has become a menace to the whole world. She is the most dangerous enemy of liberty now existing. She has shown herself utterly ruthless, treacherous, and brutal. The American who is not now heart and soul against her and heart and soul in favor of fighting this war until it is crowned with the peace of overwhelming victory is a traitor to this country and a traitor to mankind. He is unfit to be a free man, for his soul is a soul of a slave.

"If a person living in this country is not an American let him get out. If he is a neutral let him go to some neutral country. They are not wanted here. Men who are conscientious objectors are not wanted either. If a man's conscience tells him not to go to war he is a fool and a traitor. He ought to look at his conscience and investigate it.

"If an objector of this kind doesn't want to kill some one else, I suggest that he be given a spade and go out and dig the trenches for the fighting man. Or perhaps he could be put on a mine sweeper; there he would be in no danger of killing any one, but there is a likelihood of his being killed. This sort of man ought not be allowed to vote in this country."

After his address, the men and women crowded to the porch, where the Colonel shook hands with all. One of the first was John F. Hildebrand, President of the Shults Baking Co. and Chairman of the Baking Division of the Loan Committee. "I am a German by birth," Mr. Hildebrand said, "I came to this country fifty-five years ago and I am now a proud American citizen. My whole heart and soul is with America."

"I can imagine just what a man in your position has had to contend with," the Colonel replied. German-American alliances here have got to be dispensed with. We are proud of men like you. I know hundreds and if I had been placed with the army and had been able to go to France there would have been several officers of German parentage on my staff. They are made, like you, of the right stuff."

Among those who were in the party were Major William Tutherley, Charles Scribner, Pemberton Berman, Guy Emerson, Grosvenor Farwell, Edgar M. Engel, Lionel F. Straus, James Warren Lane, Fred Sterry, Arthur and Russell J. Perrine.

PASS EXCESS PROFITS BILL.

Measure to Keep Down Prices of Necessaries Now Goes to Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—After an extended debate the Assembly passed the Wagner Excess Profits bill this afternoon by a vote of 80 to 45. The measure authorizes the State Food Commission to enact rules fixing the difference between purchase and selling prices of necessaries to prevent excessive profits. Provision is made against conflict with Federal regulations. The bill now goes to the Governor.

Senator Murphy's wire-tapping bill, which found its way to Governor Whitman last year only to be vetoed, again goes to the Governor, after being passed by the lower house today by an 87 to 26 vote. The bill makes it a misdemeanor to tap telephone wires without the consent of one of the parties to the conversation, except by written order of a Supreme Court Justice.

Assemblyman Meyer's Corrupt Practices bill, requiring campaign statements to be filed not later than five days before primary or election, was defeated by 102 to 11 votes.

The Senate Finance Committee this afternoon adopted a resolution calling for adjournment of the Legislature at noon Saturday, April 13.

ART NOTES.

F. Lynn Jenkins is showing portraits and other sculpture at the Reinhardt Galleries. The artist fuses very successfully the qualities of permanent character and momentary likeness in his portraiture. The marble bust of Mrs. William H. Nichols is a fine reading of an interesting personality in which neither graciousness nor dignity is ignored. The bronze bust of William H. Nichols is compact and energetic in modeling; the charming marble portrait of little Gloria Gould ripples with the sensitive undulations of contour and promises of development characteristic of the childish type and very difficult to render; the sketch portrait of "Miss M. M." in colored plaster is vivacious and light.

The symbolic subjects, "Peace in Exile," "Enigma," &c., make a less positive impression. They show the influence of the antique, and one misses in their generalized forms the sense of that unremitting reference to nature upon which all satisfactory generalization must be based.

Old English Costumes.

At the Knoedler Galleries is an exhibition of water-color drawings of old English costumes by Purcell Jones, who has done interesting work for His Majesty's Theatre and the Ambassador's Theatre in London. Here are Lady Diana Manners and H. P. Irving, Lady Moira Osburne and Miss Evelyn Gordon and Miss Viola Tree as they appeared in "The Italian Masque"; English gothic costumes for Henry VI., Dukes and Duchesses, exquisites, courtesans, Ambassadors, and mummers of the James I. period and a group of Second Empire costumes. The artist has put good flesh and blood into these wooden corsets and heavy satins, the types fit the clothes, and the color is emphatic and full. It is a thoroughly rewarding and stimulating little exhibition in art of a kind that reaches and appeals to a large public. We are just now getting to the point of recognizing that a ballet costume may be as much a masterpiece of art as a painting or a statue, or the dance in which it plays its part. The field of art is not broadening, for it always was as wide as the world, but the field of intelligent appreciation of art in multitudinous forms of expression is attaining very satisfactory proportions.

Cuban Pictures by Randall Davey.

At the Montross Gallery are paintings by Randall Davey made during his recent visit to Cuba. Mr. Davey has taken immense pleasure in the negro type as he has found it on this agreeable island, and his portraits are marked by close research into the character of his subject. Most of the negress heads are of the coffee-brown complexion prevailing among the colored people in Cuba, and have also the typical expression of profound melancholy and gentleness. One little black boy, however, is blacker than any ace of spades, and the blue lights on his shining skin are like the high lights on burnished steel.

The color in the paintings has a tropical intensity, but the artist's palette has risen to a higher scale of values than he formerly used. He puts blue, yellow, and pink together with considerable daring, but justifies the combination by the delicacy and precision of his transitions. Above all, his present work shows the freshness of enthusiasm. Not a worn moment is recorded. It is all young and vigorous and wholesome and on the way to a fuller achievement. The exhibition lasts until April 13.

$100,000,000 POOL PLANNED FOR LOAN

CALLS FOR JOINT ACTION

Heads of All City Banks and Trust Companies Are Asked to Co-operate in Scheme.

The Liberty Loan Committee announced yesterday the preliminary steps of an important program for facilitating subscriptions to bonds of the third loan in small denomination through joint action by the national and State banks and trust companies throughout the city. It is proposed that the banks join in a $100,000,000 pool to carry bonds for subscribers to $50 and $100 pieces, and put into operation a new method for collecting the installment payments. The plan will permit persons who subscribe for bonds at one bank to make their payments at any other bank which joins the arrangement. In the preceding loans it was found that the partial payment plan in many cases imposed a hardship on workers and others who started their payments at one bank and afterward removed to another part of the city.

Benjamin Strong, Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee, sent a letter yesterday to the President of every commercial banking institution, suggesting the formation of the money pool and describing the system for collecting payments. The proposal provides for the issue of coupon books to subscribers on the partial payment plan. When the books are presented at a bank, together with a payment on a bond, a coupon and its stub will be stamped by the bank. The coupon will then be sent with the money to a bureau representing all the participating banks, where the clerical work will be done. The Federal Reserve Bank engages to look after the bookkeeping details without expense either to the bond subscribers or the banks. The plan was devised by Arthur M. Anderson and associates in the Distribution Committee.

Chairman Strong sent a letter to the savings banks outlining the plan and asking their co-operation, but without asking their participation in the pool. It is proposed that the buyer of a $50 bond pay down $2 when he obtains a coupon book, while a $100 bond buyer will pay $4. There are forty-eight coupons at $2 each in the $100 book and forty-eight at $1 each in the $50 book. If any payment remains overdue for two weeks a notice will go to the subscriber, and if within a week

RELIEF TO BANKS IN DRAIN FOR TAXES

TO LESSEN COMING STRAIN

McCormick Offers Bill for Installment Payments of Excess Profits Taxes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—In response to pressure from banking interests and men of affairs for relief in the payment of income and excess profit taxes, which under the law must be made by July 1 next, the Senate Finance Committee has tentatively agreed upon an amendment to the Bond bill.

Several bills have been offered in Congress providing for the payment of these taxes in installments, but the Secretary of the Treasury has opposed the plan. He has agreed, however, to the proposed amendment, which permits reputable banks becoming Government depositories to hold on deposit all taxes paid through them and all money received from the sale of Government bonds until such time as the Treasury shall call for the funds thus deposited. This compromise, it is argued by the sponsors for the amendment now under consideration, will permit the money to remain in the localities where it is collected and will give the banks sufficient capital to relend to industries needing it.

The business community has been greatly disturbed for some time on account of apprehension that the Government would offer no relief from the condition which would follow the payment of the enormous taxes on one day.

The question of meeting the needs of banks and business men and at the same time acting with the approval of the Treasury Department was considered in the Finance Committee today. The suggestion was made, and is likely to be carried out by Treasury rulings, under legislative sanction to be embodied in the Bond bill, that all reputable financial institutions complying with the regulations may, upon application, be designated as Government depositories and obtain the privilege previously outlined.

The details of the plan and regulations will have to be worked out by the Treasury Department, but the result will be that there will be no actual turnover or transfer of cash or credits and consequently there will be no sudden and extraordinary demand on the financial world for the actual payment of heavy taxes on one day. Secretary McAdoo is expected to appear before the Finance Committee or send a letter explaining his position on the subject.

Representative Medill McCormick of Illinois, seeking to effect the same result as would be accomplished by the amendment under consideration by the Finance Committee of the Senate, introduced a bill in the House today to permit the payment of excess profit taxes in two installments, half before June 15 and the other half before Oct. 15. Discussing the need of legislation Mr. McCormick said:

"It is estimated that the income and excess profits taxes will bring in from $2,500,000,000 to $4,000,000,000. Under the present law these must be paid by July 1, next. In order to facilitate their payment the Treasury issues tax-anticipation certificates, of which approximately $1,-310,000,000 have been taken up. If the lowest estimate of the total of the income and excess profits taxes is correct, then business men of the country will have to pay, under present conditions, approximately $1,260,000,000 into the Treasury between now and July 1.

"In the same period they will be called upon to subscribe another $3,000,-000,000 in Liberty bonds and to give $100,000,000 to the Red Cross, as well as to finance their regular business enterprises.

"The Treasury, I am told, does not need the money so urgently that it is necessary to strain the credit of the country. If the Government should run short, the banks would better make advances on Treasury certificates, between June 15 and Oct. 15, than to thousands of taxpayers who must borrow to pay taxes. The interest on the certificate would be covered by the interest for which provision is made in my bill."

PASSES WAR FINANCE BILL.

House Also Amends Bond Bill to Clarify Bank Taxation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The House today adopted the conference report on the War Finance Corporation bill, which now goes to the President for approval. Without opposition the conference report was accepted, as was the amendment offered by Representative Claude Kitchin to the bill authorizing the Third Liberty Bond issue. The House calendar was cleared of pending measures.

It was necessary to recall the Bond bill from the Senate for an amendment in order to clarify the language in the section exempting banks from State taxation to the amount of their holdings of Liberty Bonds. The bill as it had been prepared by the Treasury officials originally exempted banks from State taxes only on Liberty Bonds, but as it passed the House last week it was interpreted by the Treasury officials as exempting banks from all State and local taxation.

Representative Kitchin explained the changes that were proposed to be made in the Bond bill, and the House quickly recalled the bill from the Senate and amended it along the lines originally suggested by the Treasury officials. As amended by the House today banks are exempted from local taxation in proportion to the amount of Government bonds held. In other words, in determining the value of the shares of a bank for State taxation, there shall be a percentage deduction equal to the percentage of Liberty Bonds which the bank holds in relation to its gross assets.

The section as it appeared in the bill which passed the House last Thursday read:

"In determining the value of the shares of any national bank, State bank, trust company, or other banking institution for the purpose of taxation by any State or any of the possessions of the United States or any local taxing authority, the par amount of any bonds or other interest-bearing obligations of the United States owned by such bank, trust company, or banking institution, shall be deducted from its assets."

After recalling the bill from the Senate, the House amended the section as follows:

"In determining the value of the shares of any national bank, State bank, trust company, or other banking institution, for the purpose of taxation by any State or any of the possessions of the United States or any local taxing authority, there shall be deducted an amount equal to the same proportion of the value of the shares as the par amount of any bonds or other interest-bearing obligations of the United States issued during the present war, owned by such bank or trust company, or banking institution, bears to its gross accounts."

TWO SPY SUSPECTS NOW IN HOSPITALS

Mme. Nix Faces Operation at Ellis Island—"Baron" de Clairmont at Bellevue.

UNLISTED MAY BE INTERNED

Federal Officials Check Up Police Records Preparatory to Roundup —Nearing Files Demurrer.

Surgeons in the Ellis Island hospital who attended Despina Davidowitch Storch, also known as the Countess de Beville, during her fatal illness after her arrest on the suspicion that she had co-operated with German agents, said last night that Elizabeth Charlotte Nix, who was arrested with Mme. Storch on the same suspicion by agents of the Department of Justice, was also seriously ill in the Ellis Island hospital, and that an operation would be necessary to save her life.

A few hours before Mme. Nix was taken to the hospital on Ellis Island, where her illness was diagnosed as appendicitis, "Baron" Robert de Clairmont, who was also arrested by the Secret Service Bureau on the day the two women were taken to Ellis Island, was taken to Bellevue Hospital, suffering from gastric trouble.

Officials at Ellis Island who had attended Mme. Storch when she was ill with pneumonia, before her death on Saturday, repeated yesterday that there was nothing suspicious in the illness of either woman. It was said that, although a definite diagnosis of the case of Mme. Nix as appendicitis would be made today surgeons were sure of their first diagnosis. It was said that an operation would be necessary at once, and that Mme. Nix had consented to the operation.

Assistant Attorney General William Wallace, Jr., in charge of the Federal Alien Enemy Bureau for the New York District, is now checking up the police lists of registered enemy aliens, to ascertain the probable number of unregistered subjects of the Kaiser now living or doing business in the district. As soon as Mr. Wallace completes this work the round-up of those Germans who have defied the order of the Government to register will begin, and those who are found to have willfully refused to register will be interned for the period of the war.

Morris Hillquit, attorney for Scott Nearing, the peace agitator, now under indictment for violating the Espionage Act, filed a demurrer in the indictment in the United States District Court yesterday. Argument on the demurrer will be heard some time next week. Mr. Hillquit alleges that the court failed to designate the person or persons in the army or navy among whom the defendant is alleged to have sought to cause insubordination or mutiny. Another defect alleged by the attorney is that the specific charges in the pamphlet which are made the basis of the charge are not clear. Counsel further contends that the Government must show in what manner the alleged crime was committed. A fourth objection is that in the conspiracy section of the indictment, the American Socialist Society and Nearing are improperly joined, and a final objection is that no overt act upon the part of either is specified.

Toronto Ship Plant Burns.

TORONTO, April 2.—The entire plant of the Thor Iron Works on the waterfront, at the foot of Bathurst Street, was destroyed by fire tonight. The company has been engaged almost exclusively in shipbuilding since the war began. A large vessel, almost ready to launch, which was on the runways, was saved by the firemen.

TO REBUILD WAR CRIPPLES.

Reconstruction Work Urged by Red Cross Institute Head.

Douglas C. McMurtie, in charge of the Red Cross Institute for Crippled and Disabled Men, was the principal speaker at yesterday's session in the Academy of Medicine of the New York Conference on Hospital Social Service's special course on physical and mental handicaps. Mr. McMurtie emphasized by means of lantern slides, illustrating what has been done on the other side and what his institution hopes to accomplish for America's war maimed when once those unfortunates begin arriving in this country.

The speaker devoted much of his talk to an exposition of the necessity for the "reconstruction work" for war cripples being made a national work, Government supported and Government directed. He said that Canada alone of all the countries at war had started on a national basis, and that the results there had justified making the undertaking one of official concern.

Miss Florence S. Sullivan of the Rhinelander School, which cares for crippled boys, was the other speaker of the afternoon. She told of the encouragement that disabled youths derive from contact with similar unfortunates, who after proper training have made new successes of their lives.

Put Watch on B. R. T. Schedule.

Superintendent of Plant and Structure Delaney has assigned a force of men to keep tabs on all of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's cars and trains which start for the Manhattan end of the various bridges and then turn back at Sands Street without completing the distance. The order came from Mayor Hylan, who said in a letter of instructions to Mr. Delaney that passengers were very badly treated by the railroad company, and that the practice of dumping passengers out at any place the company pleased had to stop. Signs have been posted at the Sands Street terminal inviting passengers to make complaint whenever they were compelled to transfer from one car to another.

SPIRITED MATCHES MARK PROGRESS OF NATIONAL INDOOR TENNIS TITLE TOURNEY

VOSHELL HAS KEEN MATCH WITH JUNIOR

Indoor Tennis Champion Forced to Close Three-Set Contest by Gerald Emerson.

ROSENBAUM BEATS SHAFER

Gains Victory at 7—5, 2—6, 6—1 —Spirited Play Marks Opening of Title Event in Doubles.

Several spirited matches marked the play in the national indoor tennis championships at the Seventh Regiment Armory yesterday. That the younger tennis players are already beginning to challenge some of the leading experts, in point of skill, was once again demonstrated in the match between S. Howard Voshell, the national indoor champion, and Gerald B. Emerson. Voshell, one of the most accomplished players hereabouts, was pressed to a three-set match before overcoming his younger rival, who was at all times threatening. The score of the encounter was 6—3, 4—6, 9—7.

In justice to the title holder it must be said that he was not playing anywhere near to the form that he displayed on his first appearance in the tournament. The effect of lack of practice was evident in his work and his muscles seemed tied up a bit because of the exertion in Monday's contests. As a result Emerson, with a fine brand of tennis, was able to carry the match along to a close conclusion.

Dr. William Rosenbaum, who frequently comes into the limelight with a trick racquet, stood to the fore yesterday without having to call into the game his freak invention. In fact, he scored a notable triumph when he disposed of G. Carleton Shafer, a veteran of many former tournaments, for the indoor title, at 7—5, 2—6, 6—1. Rosenbaum showed once more, to the satisfaction of the gallery, that when he is going at top speed his play is to be feared. Shafer found this true to his discomfiture.

In the first set Rosenbaum raced along to an early lead at 4—2, and was still ahead at 5—4, but Shafer was able to pull even. Shafer was serving the next game, and Rosenbaum, with a spirited net attack, succeeded in breaking through, and, by winning his own service, clinched the set. The sting of defeat served as a spur to Shafer, who played a whirlwind game in the second set, completely smothering Rosenbaum's efforts at defense. In the final set Shafer won the opening game, but thereafter was called to face a fire of shots from Rosenbaum's racquet that swiftly forced him into submission.

Only two other matches were played in singles. Frederick B. Alexander of international fame swept through to victory over Harry S. Parker of the Rockaway Hunting Club in straight sets. The score was 6—3, 6—4. Alexander, even though out of practice, showed flashes of the finished play for which he is famous, and Parker's game could not stand up before it. In another match H. H. Manchester succeeded in defeating Carrol J. Post, Jr., by 6—0, 6—4.

All the victors in yesterday's competition are now in the round before the semi-finals. Alexander and Rosenbaum are in the upper half of the draw, and the winner will meet William T. Tilden, 2d, in the semi-final round, the latter having already secured his bracket.

The doubles tournament opened yesterday, and the play in the first round was rather better than usual. One of the ranking doubles teams of two years ago, S. Howard Voshell and Fred C. Baggs, went down to defeat in the first clash, which was against Arthur S. Cragin and W. Dixon Cunningham. Baggs was far from being in condition for a hard match, and, with Voshell somewhat tired because of his exertions in the singles, the usual strength of the team was lacking. Cragin and Cunningham won by a score of 6—4, 6—4.

The summaries:

Singles.—Third Round—Dr. William Rosenbaum defeated G. Carleton Shafer, 7—5, 2—6, 6—1; Frederick B. Alexander defeated Harry S. Parker, 6—3, 6—4; S. Howard Voshell defeated Gerald B. Emerson, 6—3, 4—6, 9—7; H. H. Manchester defeated Carroll J. Post, 6—0, 6—4.

Doubles.—First Round—Arthur S. Cragin and W. Dixon Cunningham defeated S. H. Voshell and Fred C. Baggs, 6—4, 6—4; King Smith and G. Carleton Shafer defeated R. L. James and M. Goldman, 6—1, 6—2; Allan Behr and Vincent Richards defeated J. L. Anderson and Julian S. Myrick, 8—6, 6—3; W. T. Tilden, 2d, and Cecil Donaldson defeated G. B. Emerson and F. T. Anderson, 6—4, 6—2; W. J. Gallon and R. B. Gatcomb defeated Abraham Bassford, Jr., and Abraham Bassford, 3d, 1—6, 6—1, 6—3; Frederick B. Alexander and Dr. William Rosenbaum defeated Ingo Hartman and H. H. Manchester, 6—4, 6—3.

Second Round—W. T. Tilden and Cecil Donaldson defeated Allan Behr and Vincent Richards, 2—6, 6—3, 6—2.

NEW BILLIARD BODY GROWS.

Officers Elected and Two Tournaments Will Begin Next Week.

At the second meeting of the newly formed American Amateur Billiard Association, a rival to the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, at Maurice Daly's Academy last night, the full list of officers was elected. William Gershel was named President of the association at a meeting last week. The additional officers elected last night were Edgar S. Appleby, First Vice President; John E. Lewis, Second Vice President; Shepard G. Barclay, Secretary, and Charles McCarthy, Treasurer. No Executive Committee has thus far been elected, but a committee to draw up a constitution and by-laws was appointed last night. It includes, in addition to the officers of the association, Arthur R. Townsend, a former Class A champion; Hal Coleman, a former Class B champion, and Lawrence L. Strauss.

An Advisory Committee composed of three roomkeepers was appointed. This is made up of John Doyle, Maurice Daly, and Joseph Thum.

The meeting decided to start immediately two metropolitan championship events, one in balkline and the other at three cushions. They will be run simultaneously, starting next Monday. Seven rooms will have entrants in the balkline event and there will be eight rooms represented in the three-cushion event. William Gershel and Charles P. Conway will be the entrants from Daly's two rooms in the balkline tournament, John E. Lewis will represent Thum's, Hal Coleman, Canfield's, and David Weiner or M. Isaacs, Osborne's. Arthur R. Townsend will also probably play in the tournament. The Morningside Academy has not as yet nominated an entrant. The same rooms will send entrans forth in the three-cushion event.

It was announced last night that Ferdinand A. Unger, recent winner of the National Class C championship, under the auspices of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, had joined the rival organization.

SERVATIUS DEFEATS LEWIS.

Veteran Billiardist Victor In Poggenburg Memorial.

The veteran billiardist, Louis A. Servatius, started off well in the final round robin of the Poggenburg Memorial handicap billiard event at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy last night when he defeated Claude R. Lewis by a score of 115 to 105. The victory was particularly gratifying to Servatius, not alone from the fact that it placed him a step nearer to victory in the tournament but because it is the first time that he has ever been able to vanquish Lewis in tournament competition. A match was scheduled between Jacob Klinger and George Spear, but the former, through a misunderstanding, did not appear for the event, and rather than default him it was decided to play three games tomorrow.

A protest was lodged with the Executive Committee. This came from George T. Moon, Jr., President of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, who was a contestant in the tournament. In one of the divisional round robin tournaments which decided those who were to compete in the final round robin Moon was tied on games won and lost with George Spear and Jacob Klinger. The application of the so-called Olympic system of scoring, which takes the total number of points into consideration in the event of a tie, gave Moon the low total.

The scores of yesterday's match were:

SHAWKEY ENLISTS IN NAVY.

Accepted as Chief Yeoman and Is Lost to Yankees.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—Bob Shawkey, pitcher of the New York American League baseball team, enlisted here today as a chief yeoman in the Naval Reserve. Shawkey went South with the Yankees on the training trip last month, but left the team upon receiving notice that a local draft board had placed him in Class 1. His home is in this city.

PRATT AND LAVAN SUIT UPSET LEAGUE

Ban Johnson, Colonel Ruppert, Huggins, and Griffith Worked to Settle the Action.

The whole American League would have been set topsy-turvy if strong influences had not been brought to bear to bring about the settlement of the slander suit brought by Derrill Pratt, the Yankees' second baseman, and John Lavan against Phil Ball, the owner of the St. Louis Browns. It now develops that, when the case was settled a few days ago, Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees, Ban Johnson, President of the American League, and Manager Clarke Griffith of the Washington Club were instrumental in influencing Pratt and John Lavan to accept a settlement.

Pratt's attorneys, in working up their client's case, planned to call every player of note in the American League. As the trial would not come up until after the baseball season started, this would have caused no end of trouble in the league, and might have resulted in a disarrangement of the schedule. It would have forced players out of the game just at a time when they would have been the most needed.

It now develops that Colonel Ruppert of the Yankees flatly refused to negotiate for Pratt until the suit was disposed of, but he finally consented to allow Manager Huggins to sign Pratt under the pressing need of a second baseman for his club, believing that Huggins would be able to persuade Pratt to accept a settlement instead of having the affair aired in the courts. Huggins advised Pratt to settle the suit from the first.

Ban Johnson, when he heard that the two players had planned to call nearly all the players in the American League to the stand to testify as to their characters, became alarmed. He hurried to St. Louis to smooth the matter out. Johnson and Business Manager Bobby Quinn worked on the St. Louis end of the case, while Huggins got busy with Pratt at Macon and Clarke Griffith used words of persuasion on John Lavan at the Washington Club's camp at Atlanta, Ga. It was mainly through the advice of Huggins that Pratt finally consented to a settlement.

This satisfactory disposal of the case brought to a close one of the most unusual lawsuits in the history of baseball. Pratt and Lavan each sued Owner Ball for $25,000 damages as the outcome of a purported interview with Owner Ball in a St. Louis newspaper last September. On Sept. 4 the Browns were beaten, 13 to 6, by the Chicago White Sox, who were then fighting for the American League pennant. The Chicago team scored eight runs in the eighth inning.

In the alleged interview President Ball was quoted as accusing several of his players of "laying down." On the following day the players refused to put on their uniforms unless Ball issued a retraction. This Ball did, claiming that his was misquoted on several matters. Several days later Pratt and Lavan filed suit against Ball. In his disposition given in the suit Ball characterized the purported interview as "a garbled account of a one-sided interview."

YANKS VICTORIOUS AGAIN.

Defeat Braves by 2 to 1 in Game of Much Chatter.

Special to The New York Times.

MACON, Ga., April 2.—The Yanks defeated the Braves again today, and a rowdy game of baseball it was, with the score 2 to 1. The Braves furnished the sideline chatter, including a deal of umpire baiting.

Love pitched well for the Yanks, but Monroe and Thormahlen were close to blowing up several times, and were saved by fine fielding. In the last inning Thormahlen hit the first two batters with nobody out, but Wilson hit into a double play, and the fussy Mr. Henry flied to Gilhooley.

C.C.N.Y. BOWS TO ST. JOHN'S

Manhattan Collegians Overwhelmed in Baseball Game by 10 to 0.

The St. John's College baseball team partly retrieved itself for the defeats it has suffered in the first two games of its schedule, by trouncing the C. C. N. Y. nine on the Brooklyn institution's field yesterday by the one-sided score of 10 to 0.

Lou Waters, the St. John's southpaw, pitched in excellent form and received good support. The City College clan showed a brand of playing that was just the reverse, frequent errors contributing to their defeat.

Like Mother, Like Child

The health of the nursing child mirrors the health of its mother. Rich, red mother-blood means a richly nourished, vigorous baby. Thin, weak mother-blood means a poor-blooded baby, and life goes hard with a poor-blooded baby. The nursing mother will find Gude's Pepto-Mangan a splendid general tonic, appetizer, and blood food.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan
"The Red Blood Builder"

Gude's Pepto-Mangan helps to build the blood from its very foundation, the red cells. It aids in increasing their number and power to carry life-giving oxygen to every organ, cell, and tissue of the body. Thousands of physicians have prescribed Gude's Pepto-Mangan for weak and run-down people of all ages, and millions of men, women and children have used Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It is easily digested, promptly assimilated by the blood, and exceedingly pleasant to the taste.

Study this picture so you will know how genuine Pepto-Mangan looks.

Friendly Warning: There are many imitations of Pepto-Mangan on the market, but you can be sure of getting the genuine if it bears the name "Gude" and is put up in the bottle and sealed package as pictured here. Ask for it by its full name—"Gude's Pepto-Mangan." For sale at all drug stores.

Women's Fancy Underwear.

With the return of buyers to town after Easter week, very substantial buying of fancy underwear for women has set in, according to reports from manufacturers in this city. Nightgowns and one and two piece pajamas also figure extensively in this business, it is said. For nightgowns, delicately figured voiles, both in white and in flesh color, are proving to be very popular. Crepe de chine as well as voile is apparently well sought in pajama lines, in fancy underwear of whatever sort, both black and white seem to be entirely neglected for fine silks in pink and lavender.

Organdie and Voile Dresses.

Dresses of organdie and of cotton voile are said to be having a very considerable run of popularity in the general Spring trade. Local manufacturers report that they have received since Easter a number of reorders for garments of this sort, indicating that they have been moving over the counter in the retail trade very well. They are taken in a wide variety of colors, both light and dark shades, finished effects with three-quarter length sleeves, pleated skirts, and satin sashes in a contrasting shade are some of the more popular features of these frocks.

Popular Cape Materials.

Women's capes, which have quite suddenly become so generally popular, are preferred in such fabrics as serge, broadcloth, tricotin, and satin. According to reports from the trade in this city, the most favored colors in these fabrics are navy blue, pearl gray, champagne, and the new olive drab. Some of these capes are made with large adjustable collars, others have the straight military collar, and a few are made without any collar at all. They seem to be selling in about the order mentioned. Fancy silks in striking colors, sometimes solid, sometimes a mixture of bright hues, are usually employed for lining.

Features in Separate Skirts.

Separate skirts, made of pongee silk, satin, Oriental silks, taffetas, and the firmer crêpe de chine weaves, are said to have a very heavy pre-Easter sale. Local manufacturers report that these materials have in demonstrating far beyond question that they are by far the best sellers of the season. Orders are already coming in from retailers all over the country for additional supplies of these skirts, and it is expected that business of this sort will become greater as the season develops. Quite a variety of colors has been selling. The leaders among them are said to be pale pink, light green, yellow, sky blue, and lavender. Pleated models are very much in vogue and stripes and checks of the colors mentioned, usually on a white background, are popular.

Easter Millinery Sales Large.

Reports from the local stores indicate that the Easter business in millinery far exceeded even the most optimistic expectations of the buyers. Due to the present vogue for trimmings, business was excellent in all branches. Flower-trimmed hats proved to be the most popular with women, and transparent hats also did well. Nice sales of shapes in lisere and milan, with Georgette, velvet and satin facings, are told of as well. Of the colors, all shades of light or dark blue, brown, black, and, to some extent, red, were the best sellers. For tailored wear were sold hats with trimmings of wings or quills, burnt ostrich or ostrich bandings, jaunty ribbon bows, pompoms and fancy, all-trimmed hats reflected the goods business done in the trimmed ones.

Furs Go On Show Today.

Today will be "show day" at the warehouse of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation, 48 and 52 Great Jones Street, where the furs to be sold at the Spring auction, which begins in the Masonic Temple here on Monday next, will be placed on view. The collection, which is expected to bring well above $3,000,000 at the sale, is the largest ever offered at an auction in this city, and it is estimated that six days' selling will be required to dispose of it. From the viewpoint of the quality of the skins to be offered, the coming sale will also be notable. The collection of silver fox is larger and better than any previously held here, and the same is true of red fox, white fox, and American opossum. The offering of muskrat skins, which will be of good size in spite of the current shortage, will contain a number of extra fine black pelts.

Gray Goods Prices Very Firm.

Prices continued very firm in the local gray goods market yesterday in spite of the lack of snap to trading, and in some cases new levels were reached. Spot and nearby sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were made at 17¼ cents, which was a quarter higher than paid for similar deliveries on Monday. One of the interesting things heard of during the day was the sale of a limited quantity of 38½-inch 60-52s, for October delivery, at 16 cents. Twenty-two cents is being asked for nearby shipments of 48-square, four-yard sheetings, largely due to activities of Red Cross buyers on this construction. Some mills are sold up on these goods until Jan. 1. This is the way printcloth prices closed:

39-inch, 80-80s....22c	38½-inch, 64-60s..17¼c
39-inch, 72-76s....21c	38½-inch, 64-56s..16½c

Charge Accounts "Legitimate."

Apropos the statement recently made in this column, on the authority of certain local retail credit men, that more than the usual number of charge accounts were asked for this year before Easter, the question has come up in certain quarters as to just how "legitimate" these applications were. It was said, for instance, that just before Easter and just before Christmas the stores are always asked for charge accounts by persons who have not ready money enough to buy what they want and who hope in this way to get it and postpone payment until the bills are rendered some time later. It was said yesterday by local credit authority, however, that there were fewer of this type of applications than usual this year because well-posted men have discouraged them in the recent past. As a result, he said, practically all of the charge accounts now granted are "legitimate," and are not sought as means of deferring payments.

Coal Plans Meet with Favor.

The Coal Trade Journal will say today that the decision arrived at by the Fuel Administration not so very long ago, to let practical coal men have more to say about trade regulations, has already resulted in a number of beneficial changes. A case in point is the recent announcement that the anthracite output will be prorated among the various markets on the basis of the 1916-1917 distribution, instead of using 1917-1918 as a guide. The reason 1916-1917 was selected was because at that time conditions were more nearly normal than in the coal year just ended. For the last two weeks the Central Pennsylvania bituminous region has been alive with buyers who were attracted there by the possibility of closing contracts or purchasing larger or smaller tonnages for shipment after April 1.

Will Try to Standardize Colors.

A meeting of the officials of all the trade associations in the women's wear industry will be held Friday noon at the Waldorf-Astoria to discuss the question of standardizing colors. The meeting is called by Frederick Bode, President of the Textile Color Card Association of the United States, and grew out of a preliminary conference on the subject that was held recently under the auspices of the United Waist League of America and was attended by leading factors in the women's wear trade. The purpose of the meeting will be to coordinate the various industries on the question of colors, a movement that is being undertaken for the first time. It will also be attended by manufacturers of hosiery, shoes, millinery, gloves, &c. It is planned later to obtain the cooperation of the country's leading dyestuff makers.

BUSINESS SITUATION SOUND

Failures for First Quarter of 1918 Small and Liabilities Light.

The soundness of the general business situation is attested by reports to the mercantile agencies, covering the first three months of 1918.

"Notwithstanding various factors calculated to enhance the business mortality," says R. G. Dun & Co., "commercial failures in the United States during the first quarter of 1918 make the best numerical exhibit for the period of fully a decade, and the liabilities are the smallest since 1909. Exclusive of banking and other fiduciary suspensions, the insolvencies number 3,240, and involve $49,195,300 of defaulted indebtedness, against 3,937 for $52,307,099 in the corresponding three months last year and 5,387 for $81,492,746 in 1916.

"Comparing with the high record of 7,216 reverses for $105,703,355 in the opening quarter of 1915, the present returns disclose a 55 per cent. reduction in number and a contraction of nearly as much in amount, while the average for the five years prior to 1915 was about 4,300 failures for $70,000,000. The first quarter's exhibit is unusual, as shows larger totals than in the last quarter of 1917, but the numerical increase is less than in many years, and the statistics seem all the more gratifying when the extraordinary weather and transportation conditions of January and early February, which caused general derangement of business and delays in meeting financial obligations, are considered."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Dealings in Stocks Again on a Greatly Restricted Scale—Liberty 4s Shade Off.

In many respects the stock market of the last two days has closely resembled those which used to recur in dull midsummer periods coincidentally with the absence from their desks of nearly all of the men to whom Wall Street is accustomed to look for guidance. Yesterday's turnover has often been exceeded in a single hour of a moderately active session. Prices for the most part were fractionally lower, and there were no movements of a size to attract attention. The attendance in brokerage offices was small and those who followed the course of the market were mostly content to wait for something definitive to happen.

To some extent the dullness has been aggravated, no doubt, by the new tax requirements placing such an added burden on the speculative trader as to make him unwilling to trade except in a market undergoing wide price changes. The stock market has long since relegated local and domestic happenings to the background as factors influencing prices, and has fallen into the habit of waiting for important war news. The course of the great battle has closely followed the expectations aroused by the stubborn resistance of the Allies in the first few days, and so has been conducive to lessened speculative activity. It is beginning to look now as though the Germans had worn themselves out against the wall interposed by the British and French troops without materially altering the relative position of the opposing forces held two weeks ago. The stock market has reconciled itself to a long war—a position which it will no doubt gladly abandon at the first sign of willingness on the part of the Germans to concede the hopelessness of their western objective.

It is apparent, after all, that the element of patriotism must be counted upon to no small extent in selling the new Liberty 4¼'s, with the outstanding 4's which can be converted into the new issue several points under par on the eve of the new offering. The 4's changed hands in large volume yesterday on a slightly lower level; they fell short of reaching 97 in the early transactions and were down to 96.66 at the close. The situation has brought home to the bond men the necessity of going into the new campaign with all of the vigor that attended the first sale. When the Secretary announced the low minimum which he had set for this offering there was in effect a disposition to expect the issue to sell itself, but preparations are going forward on the theory that not to surpass by a generous margin the total fixed for the sale starting next week would be almost a confession of failure.

LONDON MARKET IS FIRM.

Quotations Put Up as the Result of Reassuring News.

LONDON, April 2.—The reassuring news from the western front induced dealers on the Stock Exchange to mark up quotations a fraction all round today in anticipation of an accumulation of buying orders, and though the latter were only small, a feeling of confidence prevailed and prices closed firm everywhere.

Consols advanced three-eighths and the war loan an eighth, while tin mines were leading features in the other sections. Money was easier and discount rates were steady.

Trading Calm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, April 2.—Trading on the Bourse today was calm. Three per cent. rentes were quoted at 57.25. Exchange on London was 27.19½. The 5 per cent. loan was quoted at 88.35.

TELLS OF STUDEBAKER PLAN

President Erskine Predicts Earnings of $6,000,000.

A. R. Erskine, President of the Studebaker Corporation, informed stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday that the outlook for profits this year was considerably better than a year ago. He said that net earnings of $6,000,000 might be reached, compared with $3,500,000 in 1917, provided that Government requirements did not absorb more of the company's facilities in future months than at this time. At present 50 per cent. of the plant capacity is being devoted to Federal orders.

Mr. Erskine was called on to answer numerous questions. In respect to rumors that big bonuses had been paid to officers, he said that the profit-sharing plan reached all officers, and certain clerks of long service with the company. In no case, he asserted, did the profit-sharing fund acquire more than 15 per cent. of the net profits in a year, while last year the amount paid in was much smaller.

Arthur Lehman of Lehman Brothers was elected a Director to succeed Major H. H. Lehman, who resigned to enter the Government's service.

SLOSS-SHEFFIELD EARNINGS

Operating Profit in 1917 $3,370,614, a Gain of $1,140,614.

The Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company reports an operating profit in 1917 of $3,370,614, an increase of $1,140,614 over the total reported in the statement for 1916. The management wrote off $685,741 from earnings to cover depreciation and depletion of ore reserves and set aside $350,000 for the Federal war taxes. Neither of these items appeared in last year's statement. The figures actually covered the thirteen months ended Dec. 31, owing to a change in the company's fiscal year.

The balance for dividends was $2,152,373, the amount available for the common stock being equal to $15.78 a share, compared with $15.22 in the previous fiscal period. The statement to stockholders said that the abnormal conditions affecting the company's operations made it necessary to conserve cash, particularly in view of the early maturity of the bonded debt of $4,000,000. While transportation troubles impeded deliveries last year, the plants were kept working steadily and are now at capacity.

Stock Dividend Outlook for Standard Oils

The Standard Oil subsidiaries, since their segregation from Standard Oil of New Jersey, have established a remarkable record for periodical distribution of accumulated profits to stockholders, in the form of large stock dividends.

At the present moment there are eight of the Standard Oil subsidiaries which have piled up sufficient surpluses to justify distribution of profits to stockholders, and these are dealt with in detail in our fortnightly publication

AMERICAN SMELTING EARNS $18,495,625

President Guggenheim Says Government's Action Has Cut Into Profits.

SALES BREAK ALL RECORDS

Balance Available for Dividends Is $3,656,624 Less Than In Preceding Year.

Daniel Guggenheim, President of the American Smelting and Refining Company, says to stockholders in the report for 1917 that governmental action in fixing metal prices, and at the same time following the "cost plus commission" method of letting out construction contracts, is having an adverse effect on the company's expenses and profits. In this he refers to current conditions. Last year the corporation had the greatest receipts in its history, and the income before fixed charges, taxes, depreciation, &c., showed a substantial gain over the result of the preceding year.

The balance of $18,495,625 available for dividends was $3,656,624 less than in 1916, the decline being due, in part, to increased taxes. Dividends on the company's preferred stock and the preferred issues of the American Smelters Securities Company required $4,712,665. The remainder of the net income was equal to 22.5 per cent. on the common stock, compared with 29.9 per cent. the year before. The salient features of the income account and balance sheet of the companies, taken together, are presented in this table:

	1917.	Increase Over 1916.
Cash receipts	$443,980,301	$85,862,465
Operating gross	28,194,927	2,895,178
Total gross	31,602,615	3,484,784
Net income	18,495,625	*3,656,624
Taxes, including Federal war tax	3,849,670	2,864,005
Depreciation, &c.	4,954,482	2,964,484
Surplus	9,513,099	*3,505,316
Total surplus	26,953,394	3,513,099

*Decrease.

Current Assets $38,280,808.

The increase of $2,864,005 in taxes presumably was accounted for chiefly by the reservation for Federal war income and excess profits imposts. The cash item of $10,901,717 showed a decline of $6,039,774 in the year, a movement which was more than offset by an increase of $6,419,250 in the holdings of Liberty bonds. The aggregate of current assets at the end of the year was $38,280,808, as compared with current liabilities amounting to $27,694,865.

"The company is now suffering," Mr. Guggenheim says, "from the entire lack of economic law, and is operating under the direction of governmental commissions, whereby the value of the metal products of the company is fixed. But the cost of labor and supplies is not fixed; in fact, owing to the various governmental contracts for shipbuilding and other construction of great magnitude, which have been made on the basis of cost plus a commission, the contractors have no interest in holding labor costs at a point where a profit can be made, and, in fact, their own interests are in favor of as high a cost as can be in any way justified.

"By these two governmental actions, first, by reducing the value of our product, and, second, by constantly increasing our cost, this great corporation, producing what is absolutely necessary to the Government in carrying on the war, is having its ability to pay a fair return to its stockholders seriously jeopardized. While it may be said that the previous profits were excessive, had it not been for such profits, the company would not have been able to enlarge its works and increase its output, all of which has been of vital necessity to the Government. These enlargements have been effected at a cost of fully $15,000,000, all of which has been taken out of the earnings of the company, and the enlarged capacity will doubtless be entirely useless after the war demand ceases."

Labor Troubles Serious.

The statement says that the company's greatest difficulties are in connection with the lack of an adequate supply of labor and the demands of labor. At the same time, general expenses are continuously advancing, supplies and building material are costing from 50 to 150 per cent. more than in normal periods.

The report, which is to be issued today, notes that total expenditures in 1917 for new property and additions amounted to $6,605,690. This outlay brought the company's smelting and refining capacity up to 1,150,000,000 pounds of electrolytic copper a year, and production at present is running at the rate of 1,000,000,000 pounds per annum. The amount of copper turned out last year was 848,888,000 pounds, an increase of 59,450,000 pounds over the preceding year. Gold to a total of 2,496,693 ounces was produced, a decline of 165,317 ounces, and the output of silver, 69,841,061 ounces, was 1,027,390 ounces less than in 1916. Zinc was produced to a total of 52,522,000 pounds, an increase of 4,714,455 pounds.

The company increased the pay of all its employes on salary from 15 to 25 per cent. at the close of the year, in consideration of the high cost of living and in recognition of efficient service.

THE COTTON MARKET

Trading Irregular, with Close Barely Steady, Net 4 Points Higher to 6 Lower.

The cotton market was nervous and irregular yesterday, reflecting an easier technical position after the big advance of the previous day, and an unsettled or reactionary sentiment around the ring. Reports of showers in the Southwest, with prospects for more precipitation promoted a generally favorable view of immediate new crop conditions, while the continued scarcity of ocean tonnage appeared to be attracting more attention, and there was renewed talk of price-fixing during the afternoon. The latter appeared to have more definite basis than previous rumors of a similar character, however, and bearish features were opposed by the continued bullish average of Southern spot advices. After selling off to 32.62 cents, July contracts rallied to 32.99, making a new high record for the season, but lost a good part of the advance, closing at 32.82. The general list closed barely steady, net 4 points higher to 6 points lower.

The market was under considerable pressure during the earlier trading. There was naturally a good deal of realizing as well as scattered selling for a reaction and before the end of the morning active months sold 11 to 25 points net lower. Offerings were pretty well absorbed at this level, however, while early sellers were disappointed by the failure of pressure to increase on a scale down and the market stiffened up during the early afternoon on covering. For a time contracts were scarce and most of the active months made new high records for the season with the old crop selling 21 to 25 points, and the new crop 9 to 12 points net higher. The later market was unsettled by the renewed talk of price-fixing with last prices showing reactions of some 15 to 20 points from the best.

The talk of price-fixing was inspired by Washington advices quoting an official of the War Industry Board to the same effect as announcements from that source reaching here a week or two ago. It was recalled in this connection that a conference between cotton goods interests and Washington officials last week had adjourned without action, and that the goods people had been informed that there appeared no immediate reason for price regulation.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

Advices from Washington indicated that considerable opposition has arisen in connection with the bill providing for an advance in the price of next year's wheat crop to $2.50 per bushel. The weather in the Northwest was colder, with prospects of snow, which was less favorable for the seeding of the new Spring wheat crop. It was the general opinion, however, that a large acreage will be sown, and at the present time the trade feels very hopeful over the prospects for both the Winter and Spring wheat crops. The movement at Western points was small, but was somewhat interrupted by the Western holidays. It was said that the Food Administration has located some good-sized lots of wheat on farms which were apparently considered as having been improperly held, and that the wheat will be commandeered if owners refuse to sell.

RYE.

The local rye market was entirely nominal in absence of business. In the West a somewhat easier tone prevailed, Minneapolis being 4 cents lower, at $2.91, while Duluth was down 3 cents, at $2.90.

CORN.

A holiday feeling prevailed in the corn market owing to the fact that most of the Western markets were closed for Spring elections. Prices in St. Louis, where the market was open, were a trifle higher, but there was no real new feature to the situation. Weather conditions over the belt were again mild, but the outlook was for a considerable drop in temperatures, with probable snows over quite a wide area, and this may result in some falling off in receipts. In the local cash market Kiln dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.82½; No. 4 yellow, $1.75½; No. 2 white, $2.20¼, cost and freight, New York; Argentine corn, $2.40, free on board cars.

OATS.

The market for oats was inactive, with most of the Western markets closed on account of election. Prices in Minneapolis and Winnipeg were firmer, but apparently the action of values there was due more to local technical conditions than to any change in the general situation. The cash market recently has developed an easier tone, and premiums for the West have been considerably reduced. The local cash market was easier; natural quoted at $1.04½ to $1.05½, and clipped white $1.05 to $1.08, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

Owing to the holidays in the West the provision market was entirely nominal. Hog prices were firmer, however, and this partially offset the effects of the bearing monthly statement of stocks issued on Monday. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 20,000; estimated for Wednesday, 20,000. Kansas City received 8,000 and Omaha 19,000 hogs.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was featureless, with a dearth of business, and closing bid prices were net unchanged. The cash market was inactive, with spots selling in a jobbing way at around 21 cents. Range of prices:

	Close.	Prev. Close.
Spot	19.75	19.75
April	19.75@20.00	19.75

June	20.00@20.50	20.00
July	20.00@20.50	20.00
August	20.00@20.50	20.00

COFFEE.

Coffee futures were easier yesterday under realizing by old longs or trade selling, which was accompanied by rumors of prospects for an improvement in the volume of imports. Nothing very definite developed in this connection, but the freight situation was much discussed around the ring, and there appeared to be an impression that the Shipping Board might fix berth rates as well as charters, and that arrangements would be made to replenish supplies here before there was any real scarcity. The market opened unchanged to 5 points higher and closed net unchanged to 21 points lower. The Brazil cable gave the Rio spot market 75 reis higher, with Santos spots 50 reis higher. Santos futures were irregular, 25 reis higher to 25 reis lower. Receipts at the two ports were 30,000 bags, against 16,000 bags a year ago. Steamer arrivals from Santos were 90,217 bags. SUGAR.

About the only feature in the sugar market was the large purchases reported through the International Sugar Committee, including 107,800 bags Cuban raw sugar, April shipment, at 4.985c, cost and freight, and 100,000 bags Porto Ricos at 6.005c, cost, insurance, and freight, April shipment. Receipts of raw sugar at all Cuban ports were 15,000 tons less than a week ago. Exports from Cuba were disappointing, showing a considerable falling off from the previous week. No change was reported in refined sugar, a small daily distribution being made to the trade.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 6,725 packages. Demand not quite so brisk as it was the day before, and feeling on the top grades of creamery was perhaps a trifle easier, though quotations have not changed materially. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 43½@44c; extras, (92 score,) 43c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 41@42½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 88½@40½c; thirds, 36@37½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 44½@45c; extras, 43½@44c; firsts, 41½@43c; seconds, 39@41c; creamery held, extra to quality, 35@41c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 42@43c; good to prime, 39@41½c; common to fair, 35@38c; renovated, extras, 39@40c; firsts, 38@38½c; lower grades, 34@37c; imitation creamery, firsts, 36@37c; factory, current make, firsts, 35@35½c; seconds, 33½@34c; lower grades, 31@33c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 34c; No. 2, 33c; lower grades, 28@32c.

EGGS.—Receipts, 57,722 cases. The arrivals continue excessive, larger than the tone of Western advices had led receivers to expect. Much of the stock is going directly to the storage warehouses, owing to the high cost and the inability to place them on the present market except at a loss. The demand is limited, being affected by the several holiday beginning last evening, and prices rule in buyers' favor. An ample supply can be obtained for current needs at a decline of about ½ cent from yesterday's quotations, although a good deal of the best stock here is not offering at any reduction and is under orders to store rather than force sales on the present market. Nearby white eggs are in liberal accumulation and prices show further decline, the market closing unsettled but with some evidences of considerable speculative demand for storage on the basis of about 40c for round lots of desirable quality. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 38½c; storage packed firsts, 37@38c; regular packed extra firsts, 36½@37c; regular packed firsts, 35@36c; seconds and poorer, 33@34½c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 34@34½c; No. 2 and poorer, 32@33c; fresh gathered checks, ordinary to choice, dry, 30@33c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western henneryy whites, fine to fancy, 40@41c; ordinary to prime, 39c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 38@40c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 37@39c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby henneryy browns, 39@40c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 36@37½c; duck eggs, 50@65c; goose eggs, a dozen, 75c.

MUST AWAIT INTEREST ON $16,200,000 BONDS

Semi-Annual Payment of Rio Grande Western Railroad Held Up.

The semi-annual interest on $16,200,000 first consolidated 4 per cent. bonds of the Rio Grande Western Railroad, due at the Guaranty Trust Company on April 1, is not being paid and bondholders will have to wait for their money until further progress has been made at Washington in working out details of the Federal management of the country's railroads. Ample funds have been earned by the company to meet the interest, but the income derived from operations since Jan. 1 may not be used because it is to be turned into the "pool" of railway earnings. The income accumulated prior to the date when the Government took control is not available because it has been attached by court order.

The Rio Grande Western became part of the Denver & Rio Grande system in 1908, and as part of this road it is affected by the suit brought by the Equitable Trust Company as Trustee of a mortgage of the Western Pacific Railroad, which was guaranteed by the Denver & Rio Grande. The suit was brought last year and a judgment for a sum approximating $36,000,000 was obtained by the trust company some time ago. In December last the trust company attached all the earnings of the Denver system, the order continuing in effect until the Government took over the road.

The bondholders are in the unusual position of knowing that their coupons are entirely good, but not convertible into cash. When the railroads became Government property for the war period a committee headed by John Skelton Williams, Controller of the Currency, began the huge task of deciding what each road was entitled to in the way of income under the railroad statute. Pending the allocation of funds to the roads in proportion to their average earnings in the three years ended with 1916 it was decided to impound the income of all the roads into a general fund which would be solely at the disposal of the Government. The carriers are not permitted to use their earnings which have come in since Jan. 1 to pay fixed charges, maintenance, upkeep, &c., except with the consent of the Director General of the railroads. Bondholders who displayed anxiety about their money yesterday were informed by bankers interested in the Rio Grande Western that there was nothing to do but wait. It was learned that the Equitable Trust Company stood ready to lend the company money to meet the interest, but the management presumably thought it better to wait for the Government to act, and the loan was not taken.

The Government is empowered by the law which transferred the railroads to Federal ownership to lend money to a company for such a purpose as paying bond interest. In railroad quarters it was predicted yesterday that the Rio Grande Western would receive a loan before many days pass, although no specific information in respect to it could be obtained.

BETHLEHEM BONUS SYSTEM.

Stockholders Give Sanction to Long-Existing Payment Plan.

Stockholders of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation at the annual meeting in Newark yesterday adopted an additional by-law providing for the payment of bonuses to employes on an established basis. Under the new rule the management is allowed the right to distribute in extra remuneration to officers and other workers a sum equal to 8 per cent. of the total net earnings in any one year after deducting all interest charges and providing for taxes, but before making allowance for depreciation.

The corporation has been paying bonuses for many years, but without the specific sanction of the shareowners. Last year the amount paid out was $3,913,833, equal to 7.98 per cent. of the net income.

Charles M. Schwab, Chairman, expressed his appreciation of the stockholders' action.

"By this action of the stockholders," said he, "I believe the future of the corporation is safeguarded. Through the establishment of a bonus system it has been possible to obtain the personal interest of employes in a manner not heretofore obtainable in a large corporation. The use of the bonus system has been the only successful way to secure individual co-operation to the extent we have found desirable."

After the meeting Mr. Schwab told inquirers that Bethlehem operations in the past month were considerably more active than earlier in the year. The steel plants were working at about 80 per cent of capacity, he stated, and the shipyards were working full. In January and February steel plant operation dropped to as low as 50 per cent. The Bethlehem works, said the head of the corporation, was doing more Government work than any other organization of the same size.

John W. Griggs, Archibald Johnson, B. H. Jones, and George R. Sheldon, whose terms as Directors expired, were re-elected for another term of three years.

J. A. STILLMAN TAKES HIS FATHER'S PLACE

Son of Late James Stillman Elected Chairman of City Bank Board of Directors.

NOMINATED BY VANDERLIP

New Head Also Becomes Ex-Officio Member of the Board of Executive Managers.

James A. Stillman was elected yesterday Chairman of the Board of Directors of the National City Bank, succeeding his father, James Stillman, who died on March 15. Mr. Stillman, who is about 45 years old, has been with the bank for about twenty years, and at the time of his father's death held the office of general executive manager. At yesterday's meeting of the board the nomination of Mr. Stillman for the post of Chairman was made by Frank A. Vanderlip, the President, who will continue as the administrative and active head of the bank.

Although Mr. Stillman resigned as general executive manager in order to assume the office of Chairman, the Directors elected him an ex-officio member of the Board of Executive Managers. Charles V. Rich, one of the executive managers, was elected general executive manager. A year ago last January there was created the Board of Executive Managers, the senior Vice Presidents being given the higher rank. Under the plan then adopted one of the executive managers was to serve as general executive manager for the period of one year, in rotation. For the first year, William A. Simonson held that post, and at the annual meeting this year his place was taken by James A. Stillman.

It had been generally understood that James A. Stillman was not disposed to accept the Presidency of the bank, even in the event that Mr. Vanderlip was elected Chairman as successor to James Stillman, and for that reason the election yesterday of Mr. Stillman to the Chairmanship did not cause any surprise.

After the late Mr. Stillman retired from the Presidency of the bank and became Chairman of the board in 1909 he was not active in the affairs of the institution, and spent a good deal of his time in Paris. At the same time he kept in close touch with what was going on and continued to direct the general policies of the bank. After the United States entered the war and President Vanderlip was appointed Chairman of the National Committee on War Savings, which required his going to Washington, Mr. Stillman resumed active charge of the bank's business.

The fact that J. A. Stillman was elected yesterday an ex-officio member of the Board of Executive Managers is an indication that he does not expect to limit his activities to the usual duties of Chairman, but that he will also continue the work that he has been doing as an executive manager.

Mr. Vanderlip, it was learned yesterday, will devote practically all of his time to the bank, although he will, from time to time, make trips to Washington for the purpose of continuing his services to the Government. The succession of Mr. Stillman to the place formerly held by his father does not in any way affect the standing of President Vanderlip, who remains the active and directing head of the bank.

Mr. Stillman is a Harvard graduate, and was a member of the Harvard crew. He first came to the bank in 1898 and about a year later was elected an assistant cashier. Some years later he was made a Vice President, and about a year and a half ago was elected an executive manager. He has been a Director for several years. Mr. Stillman married the daughter of Mrs. James Brown Potter. He is a golfer of standing and is interested in yachting. His father named him one of the trustees of his estate.

The Board of Directors, at their meeting yesterday, did not fill the vacancy on the board created by Mr. Stillman's death.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The National City Bank of New York has completed preparations for opening a branch office at San Juan, Porto Rico.

The Foreign Trade Banking Corporation, recently organized with George A. Gaston as President and Max May as managing Director, has leased the lower floor of 25 Wall Street. The quarters are fully equipped with banking facilities. The institution is expected to open for business in about two weeks.

The Bond Club of New York will hold a Liberty Loan luncheon on Friday at the Bankers' Club. Governor Strong of the Federal Reserve Board will be chief speaker.

Walker D. Hines and Carl Gray have resigned as Directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad. Vice President Edward Chambers also tendered his resignation, which was accepted at a meeting of the Directors. Their successors have not yet been chosen.

Directors of Cosden & Co. declared yesterday a stock dividend of 5 per cent. on the common stock, payable May 1 to stockholders of record April 10. The payment was the same as that on Feb. 1.

BRITISH EDUCATOR TELLS NEED OF MEN

Sir George Adam Smith of Aberdeen University Here to Urge Speed.

ENGLAND WILL HOLD OUT

America's Entrance a Tremendous Moral Stimulus, He Says, but Predicts Great Sacrifices.

Clad in the uniform of a Colonel of the British Army, Sir George Adam Smith, Principal and Vice Chancellor of Aberdeen University and one of the noted Biblical scholars of modern times, told in an interview at the Manhattan Hotel yesterday of England's firm determination to see this war through to the bitter end. He had not the slightest doubt that the ultimate result would be victory for the Allies, but he felt certain, on the other hand, that the United States, France and England, would be called upon to make tremendous sacrifices before that victory was achieved.

"What we need from America, of course, is ships and men," he said, "but aside from the material aid, I may say that the moral stimulus given by the entrance of America in the war is tremendous. Man power, however, is the vital issue. We need men terribly. I have no doubt that following this German attack the military age will be advanced. The number of men between 40 and 50 who have gone in is not inconsiderable. It used to be only the women who reduced their ages, but now it is the men.

Sir George Adam Smith has just arrived from England as the representative of the Department of Public Information of the British Foreign Office to give a series of lectures.

Discussing the present offensive, Sir George said:

"We are now facing a very serious crisis. It is a test of our strength and a test of our moral courage. We will hold out until you are ready. America today is somewhat in the position that Britain was when the Kaiser greeted the approach of the British forces in 1914 as a "contemptible army." There probably were not more than 160,000 men available at that time, but we pushed on what we had to the front. The army was small but eager and compact, and it managed to help France stay the enemy advance."

Sir George discussed the effect that the war has had in deepening the religious feeling of the British peoples.

"War," he said, "will rebuke the somewhat easy views of God entertained before the war. We had been thinking of Him only as a God of peace and of love; we have neglected the righteousness of God and His judgments. Now at last our eyes are opened, and we are fighting for justice against the doctrine that might is right.

"The heightened faith and the deepened spiritual consciousness of the people as the result of the war were brought home to me particularly in my contact with the faculty and students of Aberdeen University who have fallen in battle. Two hundred and thirty students of our university out of 2,000 in the conflict have been slain. I have been personally in touch with the families of all these men. I have been struck with their faith, their resignation, and the great revival of the belief in future life."

During his visit to this country Sir George will speak in favor of the British project to create Palestine for the Jews as a future home land. He has given a great deal of study to the subject and has written several works on the Holy Land. He delivered his first lecture on the "Moral Aims of the War" before the Union Theological Seminary last night.

REJECT APPEAL OF BOLO.

High Court Makes Decision as Brother Asks Reopening of Case.

PARIS, April 2.—The Court of Cassation today rejected the appeal of Bolo Pacha from the sentence of death imposed by court-martial for treason. The court also rejected the apeal of Darius Porchere, an accountant, who was tried with Bolo Pacha and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

The appeals were based on the argument that French military justice was incompetent in the case of a Frenchman committing a crime in a neutral country. The appeals of Bolo Pacha and Porchere were denied on March 12 by the Court of Revision.

Mgr. Bolo filed at the Ministry of Justice an application for revision of the case of his brother. A special commission will consider it.

MYSTERIOUS EPIDEMIC ASSAILS FORD PLANT

2,000 Workers Affected by Disease Resembling Grip—200 a Day Laying Off.

DETROIT, April 2.—Officials of the Ford Motor Company confirmed a report this afternoon that more than 200 men had been affected daily by a mysterious epidemic resembling grip, which has been prevalent in the plant. It is estimated that about 2,000 employes have been ill thus far.

Ernest G. Liebold, private secretary to Henry Ford, made this statement today:

"The disease seems to resemble grip. I have just returned to work after being laid up for three days. I do not feel very strong yet. Scores of men in the offices have been ill, while an average of 200 factory workers a day have been laying off for the last ten days.

"At first we thought the water might be contaminated in some manner due to Spring weather, but an analysis showed this theory to be wrong. The germs evidently are floating through the air."

The Ford Motor company has been doing a large amount of Government work.

In February, 1917, foodstuffs sent abroad were worth $89,000,000, and for the first eight months of the fiscal year they were $759,000,000.

DOCTORS' CORPS FOR I.W.W.

Government May Engage Medical Men to Speed Conviction Trial.

CHICAGO, April 2.—A corps of physicians to maintain health among more than 100 leaders of the Industrial Workers of the World, on trial for alleged violation of the Espionage act, may be engaged by the Government to prevent further delays of the case through illness, District Attorney C. F. Clyne announced tonight.

When the way had been cleared late today for the selection of a jury, counsel for the defense announced that adjournment would be necessary because of the illness of Walter T. Neff of Philadelphia, Secretary of Branch 100, Marine Transport Workers of the Atlantic.

"The Government will make immediate arrangements with Chicago physicians to attend the defendants if further delays occur," Mr. Clyne declared.

W. B. Cleary, the Bisbee, Ariz., attorney, who, with several hundred Industrial Workers of the World, was deported from Bisbee at the time of the serious mining disorders last year, arrived here tonight and announced that he would aid the defense.

MRS. HIRSCH IS FREED.

Atlanta Blackmailer Let Off with Fine of $300 by Court.

ATLANTA, April 2.—Judge Hill today reduced to a fine of $300 the sentence of one year in prison and fine of $1,000 imposed on Mrs. Margaret Hirsch, who was convicted with J. W. Cook of attempting to blackmail Mayor Candler for $500,000. Herman H. Hirsch immediately paid his wife's fine and she was released from custody.

Judge Hill, in commuting the original sentence, declared that he was actuated by the fact that Mrs. Hirsch's health was impaired by her long confinement. He said her reputation had been ruined and her husband had been greatly humiliated.

Cook was sentenced to a year and a day on the chain gang and fined $1,000. He is at liberty on bail pending a hearing on his motion for a new trial.

53 GRADUATED AT STEVENS.

Mechanical Engineers to Enter Service of the Government.

Fifty-three students were graduated from the Mechanical Engineering Department of the Stevens Institute in Hoboken yesterday with exercises held two months before the regular commencement, to enable the men to enter the Government service.

Twenty-five men of the class had already entered the army, and it was announced yesterday that when these men chose to return at the end of the war every facility of the institute would be thrown open to them and that after they had completed their work they would be listed as graduates in the class of 1918. A service flag with 445 stars, representing the number of graduates and students already in the service, was unveiled. Three white stars had been placed in the red border to indicate the three men who have died in the service already.

The honorary degree of doctor of engineering was conferred upon J. Waldo Smith, who was chief engineer on the new Catskill aqueduct, recently turned over to the city to increase the water supply. The Cyrus J. Lawrence prizes for excellence in scholarship were awarded to Merrick W. Phelps of Dayton, Ohio, and John W. McQuillen of Passaic, N. J., the Alfred Marshal Mayer prizes in physics were awarded to James M. Horn of New York and Gordon R. Milne of Newark, and the Priestly prize for chemistry was awarded to Sidney Klein of Woodhaven, N. Y. James M. Horn also won the William A. Macy prize for general excellence in scholarship.

MAKE LESS ICE THIS YEAR.

Natural Crop to be Used to Save Ammonia for War.

Production of ice in New York this year is to be reduced 40 per cent. and very largely throughout the State to aid the Government by the conservation of ammonia, fuel, and labor, according to statements made yesterday at the annual meeting of the State Ice Manufacturers' Association at Trommer's Hall, East New York.

Arthur P. Miller said the demand for ammonia for fertilizer and explosives last year was 150,000,000 pounds, and that the supply had fallen 20,000,000 pounds short. Reduction of ice manufacture affords one of the principal opportunities for conservation.

To meet the demand this year a crop of natural ice, estimated for the State at 2,500,000 tons, 700,000 tons more than the Winter before, is available.

MANHATTAN EXODUS TODAY

Last of Names of 6,388 Recruits Who Will Be Sent to Yaphank This Week Published.

The second selective draft contingents for the second national army of the United States left New York for Camp Upton yesterday. The men who reported at Camp Upton yesterday afternoon represented all boroughs in the city except Richmond, the total number of men involved in the movement being about 1,700. The Bronx and Queens detachments left from Long Island City, Jamaica, and other points in Queens Borough, those from Manhattan entrained at the Pennsylvania Station, while Brooklyn's second contingent departed from the Flatbush Avenue station.

Only five Manhattan districts sent their quotas to Upton yesterday. They were from the 89th to 93d districts, inclusive. The first big Manhattan movement takes place today, when the men from the 94th to 119th districts start for the cantonment.

THE TIMES this morning prints the last of the names of the 6,388 men who will go from the city to Camp Upton this week as New York's first contribution to the second draft army. In addition to the names of those originally selected to go to camp, the names of other men designated as alternates are also printed. The names follow:

N.Y.A.C. EXONERATES BROWN

Governors Find That He Had No Part in Pro-German Celebration.

It became known yesterday that Vernon C. Brown, a member of the New York Athletic Club, who had been suspended by the Board of Governors on the suspicion that he had taken part in a celebration by some pro-Germans in the club in honor of the German drive in France, had been exonerated on Monday night after a formal hearing. The oBard of Governors were in session until midnight and listened to Mr. Brown's story, as well as to those of the other two suspended members, Basil Ruysdael, basso of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Henry Lampe, formerly of the Hamburg-American Line.

No action was taken on the cases of Ruysdael and Lampe, and it was said that the two cases would be further investigated at a regular meeting of the board to be held next Tuesday evening.

"Mr. Brown is an honorable gentleman," said Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Vice President of the club, yesterday. "He has made many sacrifices for the Government, and after hearing him we decided to exonerate him. He happened to be at the same table with some others when a regrettable occurrence took place, and had absolutely nothing to do with what happened. He was an innocent victim, and we were glad to exonerate him when we heard the facts."

WOMEN HELP RECRUITING.

Start Drive Here to Fill 3,700 Vacancies in New York Divisions.

The need of 3,700 volunteers to fill the vacancies in the 27th New York Division before it goes to France caused the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense to undertake yesterday a drive for recruits that will be pushed to all the five boroughs during the next two weeks. Recruiting tents will be erected for the special work of the drive on all the important squares, and speakers at noon hour and evening meetings will endeavor to impress upon the public the opportunity which the 27th Division offers to all men above and below draft age to come forward and do their bit for their country.

Two more recruiting tents will be erected for the drive today—one in Columbus Circle, and the other in City Hall. Formal exercises will be held at both places by the Mayor's Committee within a few days. The chief recruiting stations for the divisions are at the Fifth Avenue Armory, the Seventh Regiment Armory, Park Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street; the Twenty-second Engineers Armory, 168th Street and Fort Washington Avenue; the Second and the Second Field Artillery Armory at Park Avenue and 166th Street, the Bronx, nd the Second Field Artillery Armory at 165 Claremont Avenue, Brooklyn. Captain Tristram Tupper is in general charge of the recruiting.

PROMISES CHEAPER COAL.

Fuel Administrator Reduces Profit Margin by 35 Cents a Ton.

Reeve Schley, New York County Fuel Administrator, announced yesterday the marginal retail profits on anthracite coal for this city. The new margin is now fixed at $2.25 a ton on domestic sizes. The Government has given the railroads promises to charge 15 cents more a ton for hauling, and this reduces the benefit to the consumer by that amount, and his actual reduction over Winter months will be 35 cents a ton.

On steam sizes, or coal used for office buildings and factories, the margin of profit is $1.75 a ton. For pea coal and soft coal, as they have been mixing soft coal with anthracite ever since the shortage, the margin of profit allowed is $2.10 a ton.

"Many of the dealers have held off," Mr. Schley said, "because they did not want to fill orders when there was an apparent misunderstanding as to what they could charge. These margins of profit will now stand, and the consumer should start at once to lay in a supply for next Winter. Unfortunately there is not enough coal in the city to fill all demands now, but there will be before the Summer is over."

In the wholesale trade Harry T. Peters, Chairman of the Coal Conservation Committee and a large coal dealer, said there would be no changes in price or profit margin, as the Government has decided to allow the margins made eighteen months ago to stand.

ARE YOU THE MAN?
ARE YOU THE MAN?

The business of the advertiser is the readjustment of going businesses preliminary to further financing. This involves variously a readjustment of the corporate form to make place for new securities, attractive to investors, often changes in the methods of doing business, and, on occasion, new men in the administration.

The work is of a highly specialized character, and so strictly limited as to require frequently the preliminary employment of nationally recognized accounting, appraisal and engineering firms.

Its full success develops often a need to find especially competent executives and three such places are often opened within six months at salaries from $6,000 to $9,000 annually.

The value of the service is testified to by the amount of money secured by those businesses which have used it—$800,000 within seven months.

The service is of no value except to those businesses inherently so sound as to permit presentation of the readjusted security issues to members of the Investment Bankers Association.

The advertiser is the creator of this service, which has latterly been organized by banks and private banking firms, on behalf of their own clients and investment offerings.

The advertiser seeks to employ from one to three men who can first help in developing business, later handle important phases of the work, and, finally, fill the administrative places which open. The qualifications are, apart from those indicated by the character of the work to be done, age 25-35, some familiarity with corporate and financial problems, and ability to meet business men on their own plane.

The compensation paid will be a fixed (minimum) amount per month and an agreed upon share of the fees received.

In replying state age, employments dating from 1912, and minimum amount per month required. All replies received will be dealt with in the utmost confidence. T 88 Times.

Franklin F. Hopper, campaign director for Manhattan, the Bronx, and Richmond, of the American Library Association is making a campaign to obtain books for soldiers and sailors, appealing to people to give what they can spare from their own shelves. While he has reached many of the teachers through various ways, it has appeared to him that through a brief appeal telling of the great need there is for books to be sent abroad and to the navy he would succeed in reaching all the teachers directly. All donations of books should be sent to a public library.

Druggists in this city are selling vaccination certificates to children. The certificates were signed in blank by physicians and were filled in by the druggists. The Commissioner of Health recommends the following: "Principals do not accept vaccination certificates unless the physician signing the certifies that he personally vaccinated the child on a particular day at a specified time. That a child unable to produce such a certificate upon entering school, or at any time subsequent thereto, be examined by a medical inspector of the Board of Health, who will furnish the necessary certificate, if, in his opinion, after such examination, the child was successfully vaccinated."

SAYS SPIES SPOILED 2,900 GAS MASKS

Perforated Them, Then Packed Discarded Pile in Shipment, Thomas Tells Senate.

LABOR STRIKES DENOUNCED

Resolution to Suppress Enemy Language Papers—Drastic Amendment to Espionage Act.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Senator Thomas of Colorado alleged in the Senate today that German spies, working in one of the war factories, had tampered with gas masks. Out of 5,000 masks made for the American troops, he said, it had been discovered that 2,900 were defective, tiny perforations having been made in the rubber. The defective masks were discarded by inspectors but were later found packed among a shipment. Once more they were put aside. The perforations were so small, Senator Thomas said, as not to be visible to the eye until the rubber was stretched. The masks would have been entirely useless in a gas attack.

The Colorado Senator, urging the passage of a bill offered by Senator Hoke Smith, to appropriate $100,000 for preliminary work by the Bureau of Education in a campaign on illiteracy, advocated the teaching of English in every community in the country as a way of stamping out what he called Pan-German propaganda. Senator Thomas declared that in many communities English was not spoken and that German intrigue was carried on under the German tongue.

During the debate Senator King offered a resolution, providing that after July 1, 1918, and until the end of the war, "no newspaper, magazine, news item, editorial, or other matter" produced in the language of any country with which the United States is at war be allowed the privilege of the mails. This would not apply to newspapers or magazines brought in from abroad. Violation would entail a $5,000 fine or five years' imprisonment. The resolution went to the Judiciary Committee.

Propaganda Most Dangerous.

In revealing the plot to tamper with gas masks, Senator Thomas declared that German propaganda in the United States had long since reached a "most dangerous stage."

"The time has come when no man who is unable to speak the English language in this country ought to be allowed to exercise political rights," insisted Senator Thomas. "I believe we ought to take steps now, while this war is on, to make English the universal language. There are many communities in this country where the English tongue is not heard. These communities are made up of foreigners who are banded together under the control of Boards of Education, whose members wield the influence their vote gives them, to keep up the teaching of the foreign tongue. It is nothing short of scandal. It tends to undermine the principles of Americanism.

"This absence of unity of purpose in our country has manifested itself since the war began. I know that the Secret Service system is hampered by the prevalence of so many tongues in different parts of the country. Plots of all sorts are hatched out in these nests of foreigners with practical immunity because the language that flourishes is not English. It is difficult for agents to discover these plots and punish the offenders.

"The work of German spies is a serious menace to this country. The contemptible work of perforating gas masks in one of our factories is only a small part of it. We read in today's papers of 5,000 men on strike at Newport News and 60,000 men threatening to strike in New York. Other strikes are reported throughout the country. Is this coincidence? To my mind it is nothing less than a part of the German propaganda, which avails itself of every conceivable artifice. I believe that any man who incites a strike during this wartime ought to be treated as an enemy of the country. I would punish him as a traitor."

Senator Thomas was informed, he said, that 700,000 men of draft age could not read nor speak English.

"Think of that!" exclaimed the Colorado Senator. "And we are putting these men in our army to fight for this great English-speaking race."

"That is a burning shame," commented Senator Page of Vermont. "There is the fact, also, that 1,500,000 native-born whites could not read or write English, according to the last census."

"It is a severe reflection upon American intelligence and progress," agreed Senator Thomas.

Senator Reed of Missouri blamed illiteracy for the inroads made by the I. W. W. among some classes of workmen. He denounced organized labor for not discouraging strikes.

The Judiciary Committee reported favorably an amendment to the Espionage act so as to make it a penal offense to "wilfully make or convey false reports or false statements with intent to interfere with the operation or success of the military or naval forces of the United States" or to obstruct the sale of Liberty bonds or any other Government loans, or to "wilfully cause or attempt to cause, or incite or attempt to incite, insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny, or refusal of duty in the military or naval forces," or to obstruct or discourage recruiting.

An amendment to the committee's amendment, offered by Senator Poindexter of Washington, went even further in providing against disloyal utterances.

HUDSON TUBE LINES WILL BE EXTENDED

Shipping Board Provides Better Transportation for 250,000 Workers.

Plans to extend the Hudson tubes rapid transit system from its terminal in Newark to the Newark Bay section to provide better transportation facilities for the 250,000 workers to be employed in the shipyards filling the contracts of the United States Emergency Fleet Corporation were announced yesterday by A. L. Drum, transportation engineer for the Shipping Board. Mr. Drum said that the system would be extended at a cost of less than $3,500,000, and that the improvement would mean a saving of at least $50,000,000 to the Government because it would take at least that amount to provide houses for the 50,000 workmen who will be benefited by the extension.

Work on the extension will begin at once, and it will be rushed so that the trains will be running within three months. The tracks will be laid south from the present Newark terminal through Avenue R, Newark, to the Lincoln Highway, and the new terminal will be built at the gates of the Federal Shipbuilding Company, now engaged in the construction of fabricated steel ships for the Government, but unable to rush its work because of a shortage of workmen, caused by the lack of housing facilities. From this terminal express trains will be run to Cortlandt Street in sixteen minutes and to Broadway and Thirty-third Street in twenty-six minutes. Workers may reach Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, in about thirty-one minutes.

It is estimated that at least 50,000 workers unable to work in the shipyards because of lack of transit facilities will be brought to the yards by the new trains and that thousands of others may be induced to work there after a subsequent plan has provided for the construction of trolley lines radiating to all the shipyards and factories from the Lincoln Highway terminal.

Surveys of the transit facilities at twenty-eight other shipyards on the Atlantic Coast have been made by the Shipping Board, and many other improvements will be made. These plans will make it unnecessary for the Government to carry out its plans for providing houses for hundreds of thousands of workers, Mr. Drum said.

Gamut Club Closes Camp Tour.

The Gamut Club unit of the Stage Women's War Relief Entertainment Committee, has just finished a four days' tour of camps and naval bases in the vicinity of Philadelphia and through Southern New Jersey. The workers in the unit, volunteers of the stage who contributed their services as entertainers, included Jefferson de Angelis, Percy Haswell and company, Edna West, Grace Goodall, and Muriel Pollack.

Large Forces Patrol the City—Official Report of Dead and Wounded of Monday's Riot.

QUEBEC, April 2.—Large forces of troops were stationed at nightfall in the area where rioting occurred here last night. The people heeded the warning issued by the military authorities and, although the evening was pleasant, St. Joseph Street, which last night was thronged, was almost deserted tonight. The few men who were about were searched by soldiers and were told to return home.

A new battalion of troops arrived today from Toronto and gave the authorities an adequate force with which to cope with any situation that might arise. Several suspects were arrested during the evening, but there was no disorder.

An official list issued by the authorities today placed the casualties in the anti-conscription rioting last night at four civilians dead, fifteen wounded, and five soldiers wounded. It is believed others were wounded and were treated privately.

ANY ONE CAN USE THE DALTON

No more experience is required to use the 10-KEY DALTON than to use the telephone.

Executives and clerks use it with equal facility. Expert help or previous training is unnecessary.

The 10-KEY DALTON is more than an adding machine. It subtracts, multiplies and divides in a fraction of the time required by brain and pencil.

The DALTON has but one key for each figure. You strike the same key to indicate hundreds, thousands or millions. The machine places the figure in the right column.

The DALTON is simpler but more efficient. It does everything the more complicated machines do, with accuracy and increased speed.

You can operate the DALTON by "Touch Method"—possible only on the 10-Key machine.

Let us give you a DALTON demonstration in your office. Learn how it will save time, economize help and insure accuracy in your figure work.

Telephone, call or send us your name and address on coupon below and you will be given full information.

Fore-runner of Progress

A thousand miles without changing cars; freight from coast to coast; fast express from afar;—all are the outgrowth of a great principle first applied by

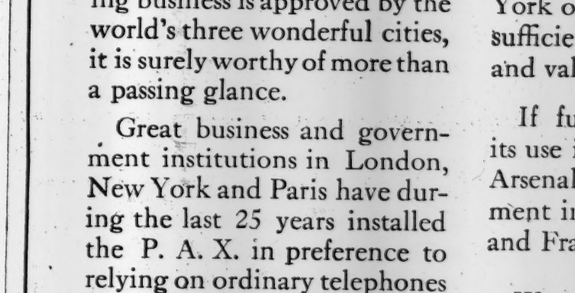
when it brought under one system the early unconnected telegraph lines. On this principle of "through connections" all freight, express and sleeping car service is based today.

THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH CO.



In New York, London and Paris

When a system of conducting business is approved by the world's three wonderful cities, it is surely worthy of more than a passing glance.

Great business and government institutions in London, New York and Paris have during the last 25 years installed the P. A. X. in preference to relying on ordinary telephones to furnish interior service.

The P. A. X.—our term for our Private Automatic Exchange with its automatic telephones—is the best in private exchanges.

It gives unfailing 24-hour service without operators.

Another of its visible advantages over ordinary telephones is speed.

Still another is absolute secrecy.

The character of the New York organizations using it is sufficient evidence of its merit and value.

If further proof is needed its use in every United States Arsenal and in many government institutions in England and France should satisfy.

We are certain that it can effect for you improvements in service and savings whether your organization is a factory or a bank, a department store or a publishing house, a club or a compact suite of offices.

Our Mr. Roger's office at 46 West Broadway—Telephone Barclay 6532—can give you all required information, detailed or general.
